

Carter picks 13 aides

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter Friday named the 13 top aides who will assist him in the White House. Six are Georgians and only one did not work in Carter's presidential campaign.

The names were announced by Carter's secretary, Jody Powell, who said it is intended that all will have equal access to Carter and that each will be expected to deal with his own area of responsibility without direct supervision from any chief of staff.

Powell said also that Carter intends to keep his promise to reduce substantially the total number of White House staff members and that he will do that before Inauguration Day Jan. 20.

In general, the White House staff will be organized along the "spokes of the wheel" concept which Carter used as governor of Georgia.

"The point of a management set up like this one is that you do not impede other staffers of equal rank in getting to the president," Powell said.

"One of the things that is required for a system like this to operate is that those who do have access be judicious in its use and be secure enough in their own positions not to need to be around the president just to gratify their own egos," he said.

Powell said he believed the White House team named by Carter has that quality of restraint.

In a separate development Carter also announced the nominations of a number of persons to fill high-level slots in the State and Commerce departments.

No trial for CIA mail-openers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Friday it will not prosecute CIA employees who took part in a secret program of opening overseas mail from 1953 to 1973.

The department said that after a lengthy investigation it concluded it is unlikely convictions could be obtained if charges were brought.

Under the 20-year mail surveillance program, the CIA opened thousands of letters addressed to Americans from Iron Curtain countries and Communist China.

In a lengthy report, the Justice Department acknowledged that the mail openings "would be unlawful if undertaken today

Nonetheless, the report said there will be no prosecutions because of the unavailability of important evidence and the "state of the law that prevailed during the course of the mail openings program."

"It would be mistaken to suppose," the report said, "that it was always clearly perceived that the particular mail-opening programs of the CIA were obviously illegal."

The report said there is evidence "suggesting that President Eisenhower had knowledge of and approved" the program.

Interviews with senior officials of the Eisenhower administration recalled that the mail-opening program was discussed at Cabinet meetings, the report said.

It is not clear, however, the report said, how much former Presidents Kennedy or Johnson were aware of the project, although both were briefed regularly by CIA officials on sensitive CIA operations.

Former President Nixon has said he was aware that mail from China was being "monitored," but did not know any was being opened.

Thus, the department said that in a criminal trial it would be unable to prove that the CIA employees were acting without presidential knowledge or approval.

The department said its investigation showed that the CIA first monitored overseas mail of U.S. citizens in February 1953, when envelopes to and from the Soviet Union were photographed, with the cooperation of the postal department.

Gradually the program expanded to include opening and reading first-class mail coming through postal facilities in New York City.

In addition to opening mail in New York City, the report said, the CIA also ran a West Coast operation in which more than 2,100 pieces of mail from China were opened between 1969 and 1971.

Any prosecution on that operation is barred by the statute of limitations, the department said.

Grand jury investigating Helms

By ANTHONY MARRO
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department has formally notified an attorney for former CIA Richard Helms that he is a target of a federal grand jury investigation, Justice Department sources said Friday.

The grand jury, which is meeting here, reportedly is hearing allegations that Helms and officials of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. were involved in a conspiracy to fabricate and coordinate the statements they made during a 1973 Senate investigation into ITT and Central Intelligence Agency activities in Chile.

A Justice Department source said Friday that Helms, also former ambassador to Iran, faced possible charges of perjury and obstruction of justice, both felonies. He said that Edward Bennett Williams, the Washington attorney who represents Helms, was notified "within the past week" that Helms is a target of the probe.

Williams did not return calls to his office Friday, and Helms could not be reached for comment.

The formal notification followed a New York

Times story which reported on Dec. 23 that the grand jury was focusing on the activities of Helms and two ITT officials, Harold S. Geneen, the corporation's president, and John A. McCone, a member of the board of directors, who also served as CIA chief from 1961 to 1965. The story quoted a "high-level source" describing Helms as being the "primary target" of the grand jury.

A number of criminal lawyers said Friday that in investigations as extensive as this one has been, it would be unusual to notify a person he was a target if serious thought had not been given to prosecution.

Two sources stressed that it was not likely that any indictment could be handed up before Jan. 20, and that the investigation would continue into the Carter administration.

Hughes will said forgery

Associated Press

The probate lawyer for the purported Howard Hughes will that leaves millions to a former Utah gas station owner said Friday the will looks like a forgery.

Harold Rhoden, attorney for former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich, said a Jan. 25 court hearing has been set in Las Vegas to bring Melvin Dummer to the witness stand for testimony under oath.

"If this will is a forgery, and it does look like it, I want to get out of this as soon as possible," Rhoden said. Dietrich was named executor in the will, which was filed for probate in Las Vegas.

Dummer admitted to Rhoden on Wednesday that he was the mystery person who delivered the will to the Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City about three weeks after Hughes' death last April. However, Dummer denied writing the will or knowing who did, and he gave conflicting stories as to how he got the will.

After hearing press accounts of Rhoden's news conference Thursday, Clark County District Court Judge Keith Hayes, under treatment in a Houston hospital, scheduled a special hearing for Dummer's testimony. Dummer has promised to appear but is under no legal obligation, Rhoden said.

Rhoden said he wants to get Dummer to tell his story under oath.

"If he lies, he will probably walk out of that courtroom in handcuffs," said Rhoden. "I think he'll be afraid to lie. We'll finally get to the bottom of this."

Rhoden said an FBI analysis of the will is under way and the results should be presented in court soon.

Claudine Longet guilty of negligent homicide

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet, the singer-actress who swore that she shot her ski champion lover by accident, was found guilty Friday of criminally negligent homicide, a misdemeanor.

The jury of seven men and five women who brought in the verdict after only three hours and 40 minutes of deliberations, reduced the original charge of reckless manslaughter, which was a felony.

The jury's finding of a lesser offense left Miss Longet facing a possible maximum sentence of two years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

THAT WAS much less than the possible maximum under the original charge. If convicted of reckless manslaughter, she could have been imprisoned for 10 years and fined $30,000.

The slim, dark-haired Miss Longet, 35, composed as the verdict was read in a packed courtroom, told reporters later: "I am not guilty."

"I have too much respect for human life to be guilty," she said in her soft, French-accented voice.

Her ex-husband, singer Andy Williams, was in the courtroom as the jury returned. He clasped his hands to his mouth as the suspense mounted, but, like Miss Longet, showed no reaction when the decision was announced.

Miss Longet's attorney, Charles Weedman, who had pleaded with jurors earlier in the day to "look at the grief in her face" and to have mercy, said he was disappointed.

"But thank God the jury did not find her guilty of a felony," Weedman said.

Ashley Anderson, the young prosecutor in the case, was jubilant. He told reporters: "We think the jury made a good decision. We think it was a fair trial, a fair jury."

THE JURY'S verdict climaxed a trial which involved virtually all residents of this tiny Rocky Mountain ski village. The victim, Vladimir "Spider" Sabich, was a local hero, a professional ski champion and one-time member of the U.S. Olympic team.

He was 31 when he died last March 21, shot through the stomach by a .22 caliber bullet fired from a gun held by Miss Longet. He bled to death on the bathroom floor of the mountainside chalet the couple had shared for two years.

Miss Longet would explain it later as a tragic accident. "I loved Spider," she wept on the witness stand. "I loved the man that he was."

RESUMPTION OF FLU SHOTS URGED

ATLANTA (AP) — The federal Center for Disease Control's advisory committee on immunization practices Friday recommended that the nationwide swine flu vaccination program be resumed.

The committee received a report earlier in the day of two cases of possible transmission of swine flu among humans, but a CDC spokesman said the report had no bearing on the recommendation to resume the immunization program.

The committee recommended that the moratorium on the swine flu vaccine be lifted to allow inoculation of persons in high-risk groups, such as the elderly and the chronically ill.

It said the decision whether to offer the vaccine to other adults should be left up to individual physicians.

Nursing homes face Medicare cutoffs

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

County health officials have asked federal and state authorities not to renew Medicare and Medi-Cal agreements for the Bixby Knolls Towers Convalescent Hospital in Long Beach because of numerous alleged health code violations, including improper medication and unsanitary cooking conditions.

A similar recommendation was made for a Downey sanitarium.

A spokesman for the Health Department said a Dec. 10 inspection at Bixby Knolls uncovered more than 80 deficiencies and that a follow-up investigation showed that several remained uncorrected.

The inspectors' report on "the facility, at 3747 Atlantic Ave., listed such violations as drugs being administered without proper doctor's orders, sterilized supplies and equipment not being dated, medical equipment stored in unlocked compartments, drugs in an emergency kit being kept past expiration date, problems with the physical plant, menu deficiencies and unsanitary kitchen conditions.

The Towers has accommodations for 350 residents. Most of them live in apartments. The convalescent hospital has about 125 beds.

The building is owned by the Retirement Housing Foundation, a nonprofit corporation affiliated with the United Church of Christ. The Rev. Clark Harshfield, director of the foundation and chief staff officer of the Towers, could not be reached for comment.

Officials have also recommended that Medicare and Medi-Cal agreements not be renewed for the Westview Sanitarium, 13607 Paramount Blvd., Downey.

In the case of the Downey facility, the inspection report showed that water was not hot enough for disinfecting kitchen utensils, food was not clearly labeled or dated, some patients did not have identification tags, and supporting receipts and vouchers were not available for monies drawn on patients' trust accounts.

Other alleged violations included infectious waste being combined with other solid wastes and refuse bins not being kept clean.

Frank Batchkoff, a senior official in the department's Health Facilities Division, said that when the county recommends nonrenewal of Medicare and Medi-Cal agreements it is "very rare" that federal and state authorities do not accept the recommendation.

He said affected nursing homes have the opportunity to appeal the county's recommendation.

Generally the county makes its inspection from 60 to 90 days in advance of the renewal date of Medicare and Medi-Cal agreements, he said. If a follow-up visit shows "miraculous" improvements, he said, the county then recommends that the facility be given a short-term contract to continue receiving Medicare and Medi-Cal payments, usually up to six months.

However, if inspectors find there has not been a dramatic effort to correct the deficiencies on the follow-up inspection, the recommendation to revoke renewal of the contract goes forward.

Once the appropriate federal and state authorities accept the recommendation, Batchkoff said, a letter is sent to relatives of each patient informing them that Medicare and Medi-Cal payments for the patients will cease at a certain date.

After that, the families would be required to pay for the patient's care out of their own pockets unless they choose to transfer the patient to another facility that is in compliance with health standards.

Peter Finch, star in film 'Network,' dies suddenly

ACTOR PETER FINCH, shown in a scene from the critically acclaimed movie "Network," died suddenly Friday of an apparent heart attack at UCLA Medical Center. He was 60.

—AP Wirephoto

Combined News Services

Actor Peter Finch, who often played dissolute aristocrats and capped a brilliant career portraying a deranged anchorman in the movie, "Network," died Friday. He was 60.

Finch's personal publicist, Neil Koenigsberg, said the actor collapsed at the Beverly Hills Hotel Friday morning as he waited for a breakfast meeting with "Network" director Sidney Lumet.

The announcement was delayed more than two hours while authorities tried to notify the actor's wife, Eletha, who had left the couple's Bel Air home to take their children to school.

A UCLA Medical Center spokesman confirmed that Finch died at 10:22 a.m. but the cause of death was not determined. A spokesman at the Beverly Hills Hotel said Finch had suffered an apparent heart attack while sitting in the lobby waiting for Lumet.

"When I walked into the lobby about 9 o'clock," said Lumet, "I saw Peter start to leave and then fall over. He opened his eyes once and I think he saw me, but then he went out."

Finch had appeared on NBC's "Tonight Show" Thursday night, and a spokesman for the show said, "He looked old to me, older than I had expected."

Finch was stricken at the peak of a long and distinguished career. Critics had hailed his portrayal of the mad newscaster Howard Beale in "Network," and a posthumous Academy Award nomination for best actor seems certain. The actor had prepared for the role with customary thoroughness, studying the network anchorman but not copying them.

His most recent role was in the NBC version of the Israeli commando rescue of airline hostages, "Raid on Entebbe." Finch had recently moved his family to Los Angeles to pursue his career.

"I don't like living in England and my wife doesn't like the climate," he told an interviewer. "I tried living in Paris, but, like New York, it is a lovely place to be — but not for a long time. I lived in Switzerland and found the life orderly there, but dull. Jamaica I loved, but I decided it was a mistake for an actor to be so far away from things.

"It makes sense for me to live in Hollywood. It is still the center of the movie business."

Finch had been in films almost 40 years, starting in Australia in 1938. He was born in London Sept. 28, 1916, of Australian parents, his father a physicist and member of the Leigh-Mallory expedition to Mt. Everest in 1922.

His parents separated when the boy was 2 and he lived for eight years with a grandmother near Versailles.

The grandmother took the boy to India where she apprenticed him to a Buddhist priest, but British authorities intervened and he was sent to Australia to be reared by relatives. He worked briefly as a reporter on the Sydney Sun and bummed around Australia before drifting into the theater.

"Network" brought him to the height of his career, providing his pick of scripts.

Ex-Prime Minister Eden dies at age 79; Britain mourns

Combined News Services

ALVEDISTON, England — Former Prime Minister Anthony Eden, remembered for his stand against the Nazis and for the 1956 Suez invasion fiasco, died Friday. He was 79. Eden died peacefully in his sleep at his country home in southern England, his doctors said.

"To those who grew up in the '30s, Anthony Eden will always be remembered as a staunch opponent of fascism and the Fascist dictators," the British government said in an official statement following Eden's death.

Freed terrorist won't quit

PARIS — The Palestinian leader freed by France after his arrest as the suspected organizer of the Munich Olympic terrorist killings said Friday in Algiers he would soon return to fighting Israelis and Zionists.

But Abu Daoud indicated he believes the Israelis might assassinate him. "If they have good luck," Abu Daoud said of a possible Israeli attempt on his life, "it will be OK. They will think of something."

In a telephone interview from the headquarters in Algiers of Al Fatah, the Palestinian guerrilla organization, Daoud asserted:

"I am going to continue my style of life, a revolutionary against the Zionists and the discrimination inside our occupied territories. . . I am planning to take a small vacation here (in Algiers) and then I have to go back to resume fighting."

Handsone, suave and aristocratic, clad in impeccably tailored pinstripe suits and a black Homburg, Eden in his day became a model for diplomats and was much admired by women.

The British Press Association commented that the tragedy of Eden's political career was that it remains identified with the failure of the 1956 Suez adventure, in which British and French forces tried to take control of the Suez Canal after it was nationalized by Egypt.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said: "It is with great sorrow that we learned of the death of Lord Avon." Eden was granted the title Lord Avon in 1961.

In failing health for many years, Eden had been suffering progressive liver failure, his doctor reported.

Rhodesia writes off talks

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — Prime Minister Ian D. Smith Friday called the Geneva conference on Rhodesia's future "a dead duck," and said that he expected the Carter administration to give his government full diplomatic support in seeking an accord with black groups outside the framework of the conference.

Smith said he had been assured by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger four months ago that Carter, then the Democratic candidate for the presidency, would back proposals for a settlement that Kissinger was advancing. The proposals called for a transition to black rule within two years, with guarantees for the white minority.

FCC votes to investigate power of big TV networks

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission voted 7 to 0 Friday to investigate whether the commercial television networks — NBC, CBS and ABC — dominate the programming of their affiliated stations.

The inquiry is expected to extend at least into mid-1978 and focus on the relationships between the networks and the stations and between the networks and program suppliers.

Sniper found guilty

WICHITA, Kan. — A jury found Michael R. Soles guilty on Friday of killing three persons and wounding seven others with sniper fire. Soles pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, and the defense claimed he was in a trance-like state when he fired 40 to 50 shots during a 15-minute span from the 26th floor of a downtown Wichita hotel last Aug. 11. The prosecution said that Soles had conducted a conscious "war against society."

MP held in killings

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. — A military policeman was accused Friday in the midnight massacre of two high school boys and a girl who were shot to death and buried under a snowdrift in a desolate corner of Ft. Leonard Wood. Spec. 4 Johnny Lee Thornton, 23, was arraigned on a federal charge of murder on a government reservation.

The FBI said agents obtained directions to the scene from a survivor of the slayings, 19-year-old Juanita Deekard, who had been wounded and left for dead.

She rose from a snowy grave after the killer left about midnight Wednesday. Despite two gunshot wounds, she found her way out of six miles of rugged terrain in freezing temperatures and seven inches of snowfall to find help at a rural home near the base about 10 hours later. Miss Deekard's condition was described as satisfactory Friday. She was shot in a breast and an arm. A doctor said the wounds were superficial.

The dead, Anthony Lee Bates, 18, Wesley Hawkins, also 18, and Linda Needham, 16, were from Plato, a small Texas county community of 54 persons south of the base.

The FCC said the action reaffirms the principle that each local station must be responsible for selecting the programs it broadcasts.

The commission said its actions also express a belief that effective independent program judgment by the station owners depends on the availability of competitive programming from a variety of sources.

Commissioner Joseph R. Fogarty issued a statement saying he agrees that the focus of the investigation should be on the three major networks, but added that he does not think it should preclude "the examination of any issues as to multiple ownership as it may affect the programming market."

Thief loses on seat

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A Rhode Island House credentials committee voted Friday to deny a seat in the legislature to Rep.-elect William H. Bailey, who has been convicted of shoplifting in several states and faces a prison sentence in another.

The committee voted 12-1 with two abstentions to recommend to the full House that Bailey be barred under a state constitutional provision prohibiting convicted felons from holding public office.

The 40-year-old Providence Democrat was convicted of shoplifting in several states, including Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, in the 1960s and faces a pending two-to-four year sentence for a 1973 shoplifting charge in Michigan.

Sweden's 'first lady' will fast to protest policies

The wife of Sweden's new prime minister touched off a furor Friday when she announced in Stockholm that she would join a fast to protest the "miserly allocation of cultural funds for north Sweden."

Solveig Falldin's decision prompted evening tabloid headlines that said "Hunger Strikes Against Her Husband's Government's Policy."

But Mrs. Falldin and the government's culture minister disputed that, maintaining the State Cultural Board, which distributes culture funds, is an independent agency and not part of the government.

"I feel very strongly about the way northern Sweden is mistreated when the funds for culture are distributed," the 41-year-old Mrs. Falldin said from the family's sheep farm in the north.

When told of the press reaction, she said she "was afraid they might do something like that. But it would have been cowardly not to stand up for my views and help a good cause."

Mrs. Falldin's husband, Thorbjorn, 50, became Sweden's first non-Socialist prime minister in 44 years after his Center Party coalition defeated the Socialist-Communist alliance of former Prime Minister Olof Palme last September.

"Thorbjorn had no objections when I told him of my decision last night," said the dark-haired Mrs. Falldin, who has demonstrated her independence in the past. She and her husband share an interest in the theater and have been enthusiastic amateur thespians since their youth.

"When I was asked by our good friend Rolf Tourd whether I would join the protest action I felt I could not refuse. But these are my private views," she said.

Tourd, 56, is an artist and theater group manager who has been a friend of the Falldins for years. He has protested the state's cultural policy several times in the past.

Ex-Prime Minister Eden dies at age 79; Britain mourns

Combined News Services

ALVEDISTON, England — Former Prime Minister Anthony Eden, remembered for his stand against the Nazis and for the 1956 Suez invasion fiasco, died Friday. He was 79. Eden died peacefully in his sleep at his country home in southern England, his doctors said.

"To those who grew up in the '30s, Anthony Eden will always be remembered as a staunch opponent of fascism and the Fascist dictators," the British government said in an official statement following Eden's death.

Freed terrorist won't quit

PARIS — The Palestinian leader freed by France after his arrest as the suspected organizer of the Munich Olympic terrorist killings said Friday in Algiers he would soon return to fighting Israelis and Zionists.

But Abu Daoud indicated he believes the Israelis might assassinate him. "If they have good luck," Abu Daoud said of a possible Israeli attempt on his life, "it will be OK. They will think of something."

In a telephone interview from the headquarters in Algiers of Al Fatah, the Palestinian guerrilla organization, Daoud asserted:

"I am going to continue my style of life, a revolutionary against the Zionists and the discrimination inside our occupied territories. . . . I am planning to take a small vacation here (in Algiers) and then I have to go back to resume fighting."

FCC votes to investigate power of big TV networks

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission voted 7 to 0 Friday to investigate whether the commercial television networks — NBC, CBS and ABC — dominate the programming of their affiliated stations.

The inquiry is expected to extend at least into mid-1978 and focus on the relationships between the networks and the stations and between the networks and program suppliers.

Sniper found guilty

WICHITA, Kan. — A jury found Michael R. Soles guilty on Friday of killing three persons and wounding seven others with sniper fire. Soles pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, and the defense claimed he was in a trance-like state when he fired 40 to 50 shots during a 15-minute span from the 26th floor of a downtown Wichita hotel last Aug. 11. The prosecution said that Soles had conducted a conscious "war against society."

MP held in killings

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. — A military policeman was accused Friday in the midnight massacre of two high school boys and a girl who were shot to death and buried under a snowdrift in a desolate corner of Ft. Leonard Wood. Spec. 4 Johnny Lee Thornton, 23, was arraigned on a federal charge of murder on a government reservation.

The FBI said agents obtained directions to the scene from a survivor of the slayings, 19-year-old Juanita Deckard, who had been wounded and left for dead.

She rose from a snowy grave after the killer left about midnight Wednesday. Despite two gunshot wounds, she found her way out of six miles of rugged terrain in freezing temperatures and seven inches of snowfall to find help at a rural home near the base about 10 hours later. Miss Deckard's condition was described as satisfactory Friday. She was shot in a breast and an arm. A doctor said the wounds were superficial.

The dead, Anthony Lee Bates, 18, Wesley Hawkins, also 18, and Linda Deedham, 16, were from Plato, a small Texas County community of 54 persons south of the base.

Handsomeness, suave and aristocratic, clad in impeccably tailored pinstripe suits and a black Homburg, Eden in his day became a model for diplomats and was much admired by women.

The British Press Association commented that the tragedy of Eden's political career was that it remains identified with the failure of the 1956 Suez adventure, in which British and French forces tried to take control of the Suez Canal after it was nationalized by Egypt.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said: "It is with great sorrow that we learned of the death of Lord Avon." Eden was granted the title Lord Avon in 1961.

In failing health for many years, Eden had been suffering progressive liver failure, his doctor reported.

Rhodesia writes off talks

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — Prime Minister Ian D. Smith Friday called the Geneva conference on Rhodesia's future "a dead duck," and said that he expected the Carter administration to give his government full diplomatic support in seeking an accord with black groups outside the framework of the conference.

Smith said he had been assured by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger four months ago that Carter, then the Democratic candidate for the presidency, would back proposals for a settlement that Kissinger was advancing. The proposals called for a transition to black rule within two years, with guarantees for the white minority.

Actor Peter Finch, who often played dissolute aristocrats and capped a brilliant career portraying a deranged anchorman in the movie, "Network," died Friday. He was 60.

Finch's personal publicist, Neil Koenigsberg, said the actor collapsed at the Beverly Hills Hotel Friday morning as he waited for a breakfast meeting with "Network" director Sidney Lumet.

The announcement was delayed more than two hours while authorities tried to notify the actor's wife, Eletha, who had left the couple's Bel Air home to take their children to school.

A UCLA Medical Center spokesman confirmed that Finch died at 10:22 a.m. but the cause of death was not determined. A spokesman at the Beverly Hills Hotel said Finch had suffered an apparent heart attack while sitting in the lobby waiting for Lumet.

"When I walked into the lobby about 9 o'clock," said Lumet, "I saw Peter start to leave and then fall over. He opened his eyes once and I think he saw me, but then he went out."

Finch had appeared on NBC's "Tonight Show" Thursday night, and a spokesman for the show said, "He looked old to me, older than I had expected."

Finch was stricken at the peak of a long and distinguished career. Critics had hailed his portrayal of the mad newscaster Howard Beale in "Network," and a posthumous Academy Award nomination for best actor seems certain. The actor had prepared for the role with customary thoroughness, studying the network anchormen but not copying them.

His most recent role was in the NBC version of the Israeli commando rescue of airline hostages, "Raid on Entebbe." Finch had recently moved his family to Los Angeles to pursue his career.

"I don't like living in England and my wife doesn't like the climate," he told an interviewer. "I tried living in Paris, but, like New York, it is a lovely place to be — but not for a long time. I lived in Switzerland and found the life orderly there, but dull. Jamaica I loved, but I decided it was a mistake for an actor to be so far away from things.

"It makes sense for me to live in Hollywood. It is still the center of the movie business."

Finch had been in films almost 40 years, starting in Australia in 1938. He was born in London Sept. 28, 1916, of Australian parents, his father a physicist and member of the Leigh-Mallory expedition to Mt. Everest in 1922.

His parents separated when the boy was 2 and he lived for eight years with a grandmother near Versailles.

The grandmother took the boy to India where she apprenticed him to a Buddhist priest, but British authorities intervened and he was sent to Australia to be reared by relatives. He worked briefly as a reporter on the Sydney Sun and bummed around Australia before drifting into the theater.

"Network" brought him to the height of his career, providing his pick of scripts.

Gilmore

Three judges, including a state Supreme Court justice, and Utah Gov. Scott Matheson turned back separate attempts on Friday to postpone convicted killer Gary Gilmore's execution, scheduled for sunrise Monday.

Another request for a stay of execution was scheduled to be heard today by the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

Matheson denied pleas by two lawyers who appeared in his office after regular work hours to ask that he exercise "inherent power" to stay Gilmore's execution.

Matheson, who took office this week, said he could not intervene because his predecessor, Gov. Calvin Rampton, had exhausted gubernatorial powers in the case by issuing a stay that lasted until the state Board of Pardons reaffirmed Gilmore's death penalty.

Another lawyer, one of several fired by Gilmore during his battle to face the firing squad, tried unsuccessfully to convince Supreme Court Justice D. Frank Williams to take action in the case. In other rulings Friday, U.S. District Court Judge Aldon Anderson and Utah 3rd District Court Judge Dean Conder refused requests to delay the execution.

Recall

I recently read that the Ford Motor Co. is recalling 86,000 1976 and '77 Ford Granadas and Mercury Monarchs because of possible defects in the suspension and shoulder belts. A few weeks ago I bought a used 1976 Mercury Monarch and I'm worried that my car may be involved in this recall. I called the dealer, but got no satisfactory answer from them. They just said I would be notified if my car is involved, but I'm not the original owner. I keep thinking that the previous owner will get a notice and I won't know anything about it. Can Action Line look into this? Mrs. S.B., Bellflower.

Your car is not involved in the current recall program, but it is one of the Monarchs that was recalled back in May because of a possible defect that could cause the throttle to stick. According to a Ford Motor Co. spokesman, a notice was sent to the person who owned your car in May, but the firm's records do not show that the automobile's throttle was checked by a dealer. You can take your car to any Ford dealer for servicing and you should specify that your car is involved in recall campaign No. 192, the spokesman said. With all recall programs, the Ford Motor Co. notifies the person who is listed at the time as the registered owner. But since the department of Motor Vehicles' records are not always current, a new owner would not receive a notice if his car registration records hadn't been recorded with the state at the time of the recall. If a person believes his car is involved in a recall, but he hasn't received a notice and he can't get any help from the dealer who sold him the car, he should contact Ford's owner relations office at 723-8633.

Slow start

My husband was laid off three weeks ago and applied for his unemployment payments but he was told he has to wait until he gets a card in the mail before he can start collecting his benefits. We've had no money coming in and I'd like to know why he has to wait to collect his payments when he has paid into the unemployment fund for so long? Mrs. K.T., Downey.

The employer, not the employee, pays for unemployment benefits and it can take several weeks for the California Employment Development Department to verify that your husband earned the required amount of wages from an employer who paid unemployment insurance premiums. EDD's Sacramento headquarters determines an applicant's initial eligibility and this usually can be done within two weeks, but it occasionally can take several weeks to verify the claim, said a spokesman for the department's Long Beach office. "We realize people need the money, and if the claim isn't verified by Sacramento within 10 to 12 days, we automatically follow up on the application to get a person's eligibility established as quickly as possible," he added. Once a person is deemed eligible by the Sacramento headquarters, he will be paid benefits retroactive to the Sunday nearest the date he applied for unemployment and then the local EDD office takes over and determines his eligibility week by week. To qualify for the benefits, a person must have earned at least $750 in wages from July 1, 1975 to June 30, 1976, from an employer who paid unemployment insurance premiums. As of Feb. 6, the base period will be Oct. 1, 1975, to Sept. 30, 1976.

Cop suspended in 'mistake slaying'

A plainclothes Long Beach policeman was relieved of duty Friday in the wake of a mistaken-identity slaying of a Compton businessman, authorities said.

Compton police said Thomas Spatorolos, 26, owner of Tom's Good Old Boy's Sandwich Shop, 1521 S. Long Beach Blvd., Compton, was shot to death after he and Long Beach patrolman Robert Schroeder each thought the other was an armed robber.

POLICE said Schroeder and his partner, Steven Filippini, were returning about 1:30 a.m. Friday from a stakeout of an unidentified Compton man suspected of robbery and murder when they saw a man standing in the parking lot of a restaurant with a shotgun in his hands.

The officers said they parked their unmarked car around the corner from the restaurant and approached the building from the rear, splitting up to converge on the man from both sides.

As Schroeder reached the front of the restaurant, he said he saw a man by the door holding a pistol. Schroeder said he pointed his pistol at the man and shouted "Police — freeze!"

ACCORDING to Schroeder, the man, later identified as Spatorolos, whirled and pointed his own gun. Schroeder said he fired one shot, hitting the man in the head.

Spatorolos died two hours later at County-USC Medical Center.

The man with the shotgun was identified as restaurant employee Jesse Compos, of Downey.

Compos told investigators he and Spatorolos customarily armed themselves with the shotgun and the pistol while closing up for the night, fearing they might be robbed.

Long Beach Police Lt. Richard Roberts said Friday that Schroeder was indefinitely "taken off patrol and reassigned to a special desk job while Long Beach and Compton police investigate."

Filippini remained on patrol duty, Roberts added.

UCLA player, two others free of charges

Sports star cleared in holdup

Charges of robbery and kidnaping against UCLA football star Pat Schmidt and two other Torrance men were again dropped Friday for lack of evidence.

Deputy Dist. Atty. John Provenzano, former head of the Long Beach branch of the district attorney's office before being transferred to Torrance, said his office declined to file charges because evidence was "insufficient to prosecute."

Schmidt, a third-year

Bruin starting safety and All-Coast selection, was arrested Nov. 21 on suspicion of being the getaway driver in the $7,000 robbery of Cash Electronics, 3838 Sepulveda Blvd.

The robbery came less than 24 hours after Schmidt, 20, proved the hero of the Bruin squad against USC, even though UCLA lost 24-14.

Also arrested were Charles Comeaux and Steven Zak, both 19. All three had been free on bail.

Charges of robbery and kidnaping against the three men were first rejected by prosecutors for lack of evidence Nov. 24 when Torrance police sought felony complaints.

Employees at the store said two men walked in the night of Nov. 21 and took more than $5,000 cash and $2,000 in checks. The employees said they were left bound and gagged in a storeroom while the bandits fled with a third man.

Employees said they recognized one of the bandits as Zak, a former employee. Torrance police said Zak's arrest two hours later led to the arrest of Schmidt and Comeaux.

Police said they found $2,000 cash and two guns at Zak's home, while a search of Schmidt's home in Torrance uncovered $1,072.

Provenzano said that while police had a quantity of evidence, which he declined to identify, it was insufficient to prosecute any of the men.

Trial for 3 L.B. men set in stabbing death

Three Long Beach men charged with murder in the stabbing death of a 26-year-old man last month were arraigned in Superior Court Friday and their trial was scheduled for March 4.

The defendants—John V. Gonzales, 34, of 1062 Long Beach Blvd.; Jon Rabaca, 30, of 904 Park Circle; and Leroy Apodaca, 27, of 1070 Loma Vista Drive—each pleaded not guilty to one count of murder.

The charges stem from the death of Trevor Aiken, whose body was found by his roommate, 26-year-old Lupe Ontiveros, in a bedroom at their apartment Dec. 12. Aiken had been stabbed six or seven times, and there was blood in nearly every room of the apartment.

Judge Charles Litwin appointed attorneys to represent each of the defendants and scheduled Jan. 21 hearings for any pretrial motions which might be made.

UCLA player, two others free of charges

Sports star cleared in holdup

Charges of robbery and kidnapping against UCLA football star Pat Schmidt and two other Torrance men were again dropped Friday for lack of evidence.

Deputy Dist. Atty. John Provenzano, former head of the Long Beach branch of the district attorney's office before being transferred to Torrance, said his office declined to file charges because evidence was "insufficient to prosecute."

Schmidt, a third-year

Bruin starting safety and All-Coast selection, was arrested Nov. 21 on suspicion of being the getaway driver in the $7,000 robbery of Cash Electronics, 3838 Sepulveda Blvd.

The robbery came less than 24 hours after Schmidt, 20, proved the hero of the Bruin squad against USC, even though UCLA lost 24-14.

Also arrested were Charles Comeaux and Steven Zak, both 19. All three had been free on bail.

Charges of robbery and kidnapping against the three men were first rejected by prosecutors for lack of evidence Nov. 24 when Torrance police sought felony complaints.

Employees at the store said two men walked in the night of Nov. 21 and took more than $5,000 cash and $2,000 in checks. The employees said they were left bound and gagged in a storeroom while the bandits fled with a third man.

Employees said they recognized one of the bandits as Zak, a former employee.

Torrance police said Zak's arrest two hours later led to the arrest of Schmidt and Comeaux.

Police said they found $2,000 cash and two guns at Zak's home, while a search of Schmidt's home in Torrance uncovered $1,072.

Provenzano said that while police had a quantity of evidence, which he declined to identify, it was insufficient to prosecute any of the men.

Trial for 3 L.B. men set in stabbing death

Three Long Beach men charged with murder in the stabbing death of a 26-year-old man last month were arraigned in Superior Court Friday and their trial was scheduled for March 4.

The defendants—John V. Gonzales, 34, of 1052 Long Beach Blvd.; Jon Rabaca, 30, of 904 Park Circle; and Leroy Apodaca, 27, of 1070 Loma Vista Drive—each pleaded not guilty to one count of murder.

The charges stem from the death of Trevor Aiken, whose body was found by his roommate, 26-year-old Lupe Ontiveros, in a bedroom at their apartment Dec. 12. Aiken had been stabbed six or seven times, and there was blood in nearly every room of the apartment.

Judge Charles Litwin appointed attorneys to represent each of the defendants and scheduled Jan. 21 hearings for any pretrial motions which might be made.

Cop suspended in 'mistake slaying'

A plainclothes Long Beach policeman was relieved of duty Friday in the wake of a mistaken-identity slaying of a Compton businessman, authorities said.

Compton police said Thomas Spathorolos, 26, owner of Tom's Good Old Boy's Sandwich Shop, 1521 S. Long Beach Blvd., Compton, was shot to death after he and Long Beach patrolman Robert Schroeder each thought the other was an armed robber.

POLICE said Schroeder and his partner, Steven Filippini, were returning about 1:30 a.m. Friday from a stakeout of an unidentified Compton man suspected of robbery and murder when they saw a man standing in the parking lot of a restaurant with a shotgun in his hands.

The officers said they parked their unmarked car around the corner from the restaurant and approached the building from the rear, splitting up to converge on the man from both sides.

As Schroeder reached the front of the restaurant, he said he saw a man by the door holding a pistol. Schroeder said he pointed his pistol at the man and shouted "Police — freeze!"

ACCORDING to Schroeder, the man, later identified as Spathorolos, whirled and pointed his own gun. Schroeder said he fired one shot, hitting the man in the head.

Spathorolos died two hours later at County-USC Medical Center.

The man with the shotgun was identified as restaurant employee Jesse Compos, of Downey.

Compos told investigators he and Spathorolos customarily armed themselves with the shotgun and the pistol while closing up for the night, fearing they might be robbed.

Long Beach Police Lt. Richard Roberts said Friday that Schroeder was indefinitely "taken off patrol and reassigned to a special desk job while Long Beach and Compton police investigate."

Filippini remained on patrol duty, Roberts added.

Bill to block harbor LNG terminal promised

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

The chairman of the Assembly's permanent subcommittee on energy said Friday in San Pedro he will introduce legislation to block construction of a liquefied natural gas (LNG) terminal on Terminal Island.

Assemblyman Terry Goggin, D-San Bernardino, said his bill will require that any LNG site be surrounded by a sterile area two miles across with no homes or industrial plants. The requirement would preclude the use of the proposed Terminal Island site.

Thomas, D-San Pedro, participated in the San Pedro press conference with Goggin, and Thomas said he is considering co-sponsoring Goggin's bill. Thomas said he would talk with Los Angeles City Council and Harbor Commission members before he takes a stand on the legislation.

Thomas previously said, however, that he objects to building the proposed LNG tanker and storage facility on Terminal Island.

"The terminal would be located right next to the fish canneries where 8,000 workers are employed," Thomas said Friday.

An alternate site has been suggested near Oxnard in Ventura County.

Goggin said he was not recommending the Oxnard site. He said he wants to preserve that city's right to approve the project.

Also at the news conference was freshman Assemblyman Charles Imbrecht, R-Oxnard, who said he supported Goggin's bill and would be a co-author.

Southern California Gas Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Pacific Lighting Corp., plans to bring from Alaska, and perhaps Indonesia, natural gas that has been chilled to a temperature of minus-260 degrees Fahrenheit. At that temperature the gas becomes a liquid which occupies only 1/600 the space of gas.

Carried in large, specially insulated ships, the LNG would be transported to an on-shore terminal, which the gas company proposed to build on a yet-to-be-created portion of Terminal Island. The liquid would be pumped ashore, regasified and fed into the gas company's distribution lines.

"LNG is extremely hazardous. An extensive quality control (and) safety system must be established by the state," Goggin said.

He said there has been no independent third-party testing to provide safety and operating reliability assurances for LNG systems.

$100 a day not enough 3 Civil Service chiefs hit pay

From Our L.A. Bureau

The county's three Civil Service commissioners are seeking more pay because they say the present system of compensation is inadequate.

Civil Service commissioners are now paid $100 a day for attending each commission meeting, up to a limit of 65 days a year. They also receive $100 a day for each time they sit as hearing officers in appeals by employees against firing, demotions and other job determinations.

In a letter to supervisors, Commissioners Louise Frankel, Ernest Sanchez and Frank Work said the compensation is far below that paid others for similar work and that they are not paid at all for many services, such as preparing for hearings and interviewing prospective candidates for department head jobs.

They said commissioners cannot "be public-spirited citizens devoting minor portions of their time for a nominal stipend."

They said "getting the job done requires a heavy investment of time and effort which means sacrifice of other pursuits, both professional and personal."

They said service on the commission should not be limited to persons who are financially self-sufficient because such a board would be "unrepresentative" of the general county population and the range of individuals who come before them.

An alternative would be to have a full-time commission with full-time pay.

However, they suggested that such an arrangement would destroy the "essential objectivity and independent perspective" of the board.

The commissioners asked for compensation at the maximum rate allowed all commissioners, $150 a day for commission meetings.

In addition, they asked for $170 a day for sitting as hearing officers, saying this was the normal rate paid persons hired from the outside to hear appeals.

Additionally, they asked for $150 a day to deal with screening and review of department head jobs and $150 a day when required to meet in executive session.

Under the current allowance, the officials said, Commissioner Work has been paid $12,100 from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1976, for 121 days; Sanchez $5,300, and Commissioner Frankel $4,300.

Members of the Employee Relations Commission, which deals with such matters as unfair labor practices and rulings on case loads, receive $150 a day. Citizens sitting on the Assessment Appeals Board are paid $100 a day.

Yoshimura testimony is reread

OAKLAND (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura's jury spent nearly an hour Friday listening to the rereading of testimony about the day she rented a garage where police later found an arsenal of illegal weapons and explosives.

The eight-woman, four-man jury, in its second day of deliberations, asked to reread the testimony of Michael Grabianowski, the apartment manager who rented the Berkeley garage in 1971 as a place to store personal belongings.

THE JURORS made the request after reviewing for several hours a huge stack of evidence including a diary Miss Yoshimura kept while hiding out with Patricia Hearst.

Jurors also asked to reread portions of the final instructions from Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich dealing with circumstantial evidence and the legal definition of conspiracy.

The jury deliberated 6½ hours Friday, ordering lunch brought in, without reaching a verdict. At midafternoon, the panel adjourned until Monday.

Miss Yoshimura, 33, was charged with possessing an explosive, a machine gun, materials with the intent to make a destructive device, and an explosive with intent to harm people or destroy property. The stiffest sentence she could receive if convicted is five years to life in prison.

THE PANEL'S request for Grabianowski's testimony was considered unusual because it was not in dispute. The witness never identified Miss Yoshimura, but said she looked "similar" to the woman who rented the garage.

Defense attorney James Larson conceded during the trial that the defendant met Grabianowski on Aug. 3, 1971, and rented the garage under an assumed name.

Larson said Miss Yoshimura used the fictitious name to protect her boy friend, who was evading the draft. He said he was never aware of the garage's lethal contents.

PROSECUTOR Jeff Horner argued during the trial that Miss Yoshimura rented the garage as a hideout and bomb-making factory for political radicals conspiring to blow up military buildings as an antiwar protest.

The defendant's boy friend, William Brandt, and two other men were arrested at the garage on March 31, 1972. All three pleaded guilty to illegal weapons charges.

After 3½ years as a fugitive, Miss Yoshimura was arrested Sept. 18, 1975, with Miss Hearst, her underground roommate in San Francisco.

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Ed Edelman said Friday he will strongly oppose a move by Supervisor Pete Schabarum to water down the county's fledgling Consumer Affairs Department.

Schabarum has recommended that the department be limited to providing referral services and public education for consumer problems. Schabarum said he was calling for the change because the county's limited budget does not give the department the tools to do an effective investigative job.

Schabarum's motion was set to come before the board Tuesday. Edelman said Friday, though, he will be in Washington, D.C., that day and will ask his colleagues to postpone the issue until he returns Jan. 25.

Edelman said that, if passed, Schabarum's motion would be the "death blow" to the department he helped create in 1975.

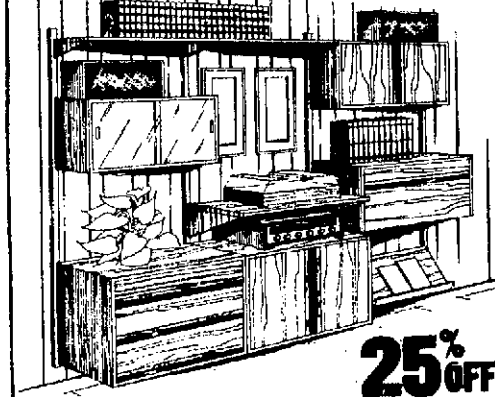

He said that after only six months of operation, the new department's budget was cut 35 per cent.

"That was the highest reduction suffered by any department and was a staggering blow to the cause of consumer protection to the people of Los Angeles," he said.

Edelman said it is true the department has a severe case backlog because of the budget slash.

Bill to block harbor LNG terminal promised

Maritime Editor

The chairman of the Assembly's permanent subcommittee on energy said Friday in San Pedro he will introduce legislation to block construction of a liquefied natural gas (LNG) terminal on Terminal Island.

Assemblyman Terry Goggin, D-San Bernardino, said his bill will require that any LNG site be surrounded by a sterile area two miles across with no homes or industrial plants. The requirement would preclude the use of the proposed Terminal Island site.

Assemblyman Vincent

Thomas, D-San Pedro, participated in the San Pedro press conference with Goggin, and Thomas said he is considering co-sponsoring Goggin's bill. Thomas said he would talk with Los Angeles City Council and Harbor Commission members before he takes a stand on the legislation.

Thomas previously said, however, that he objects to building the proposed LNG tanker and storage facility on Terminal Island.

"The terminal would be located right next to the fish canneries where 8,000 workers are employed," Thomas said Friday.

An alternate site has been suggested near Oxnard in Ventura County. Goggin said he was not recommending the Oxnard site. He said he wants to preserve that city's right to approve the project.

Also at the news conference was freshman Assemblyman Charles Imbrecht, R-Oxnard, who said he supported Goggin's bill and would be a co-author.

Southern California Gas Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Pacific Lighting Corp., plans to bring from Alaska, and perhaps Indonesia, natural gas that has been chilled to a temperature of minus-260 degrees Fahrenheit. At that temperature the gas becomes a liquid which occupies only 1/600 the space of gas.

Carried in large, specially insulated ships, the LNG would be transported to an on-shore terminal, which the gas company proposed to build on a yet-to-be-created portion of Terminal Island. The liquid would be pumped ashore, regasified and fed into the gas company's distribution lines.

"LNG is extremely hazardous. An extensive quality control (and) safety system must be established by the state," Goggin said.

He said there has been no independent third-party testing to provide safety and operating reliability assurances for LNG systems.

"The state must carefully create a siting and quality control system that will protect the public from a potential holocaust of immense proportion. The exact nature of the risks from large LNG installations is unknown," Goggin said.

He said the quality control standards involved in planning, siting, constructing and operating an LNG facility are dangerously below the quality control standards of a nuclear power plant.

"The magnitude of the disaster which could result from a maximum credible accident at either type facility is approximately the same," Goggin said.

Goggin offered six natural gas supply options for the Southern California area:

—Share gas supplies with the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in Northern California.

—Develop known offshore gas reserves.

—Increase California production.

—Take gas out of the Navy's Elk Hills reserves near Bakersfield.

—Use synthetic natural gas.

—Decentralize the cost of natural gas.

After Goggin's news conference, gas company representatives objected to his comments regarding the potential hazards of dealing with LNG.

Keith C. McKinney, director of LNG projects for the Southern California Gas Co., said:

"With proper design and rigid safety standards—which we welcome—LNG is safe to handle."

He said there have been more than 2,300 round-trip voyages involving LNG since 1959 without any untoward incident, and this safety record makes conditions contained in Goggin's proposed legislation "unwarranted."

McKinney predicted that, unless the Alaska-Indonesia LNG project is cleared in 1977, by the winter of 1980-81 the lack of gas supplies will have a "devastating effect on the economy of California." Lack of gas could subtract 700,000 existing jobs in Southern California, he said.

Assemblyman Imbrecht said that, because the Federal Power Commission staff has endorsed the Oxnard site over Terminal Island, Oxnard is the only place the terminal can be built in time to prevent cutbacks in gas supplies to industry and possibly to residential users.

Transportation blueprint sees fuel needs met

By RICHARD WITKIN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. put forward Friday a 400-page planning document predicting that, with prompt and proper national choices, 1990 transportation demands could be met without increased consumption of energy.

The document, which the soon-to-depart Cabinet officer called a "first of a kind" compilation of transportation data, recommended that truck-size and weight limits be raised as one conservation measure.

Among other measures, it also called for an intense search for the proper mix of rail and slurry-pipeline facilities to carry surging volumes of coal, and correcting the "imbalance" between pricing of auto travel and mass transit.

In presenting the data-packed overview at a news conference here, Coleman emphasized that it was not intended as a finished blueprint but as a "starting point" for public debate.

Coleman stressed that all transportation planning would be strongly affected by two prime considerations. One was the continuing availability of liquid fuels. The other was the changes that have been taking place in "settlement patterns of our population."

The report, entitled "National Transportation, Trends and Choices," assumed that transportation growth in the next 15 or more years would not be inhibited by shortages of fuel or other resources.

Flowing from this was a second assumption: that the auto "is likely to continue to be a 'reasonable' solution to mobility needs simply because the present carries over into the future."

At the same time, the document strongly supported measures — some already taken, some newly recommended — to insure that the auto did not aggravate environmental and social problems, but rather found an optimal place in a balanced transportation system.

Measures already enacted into law are those requiring autos to meet stringent emissions standards and to be more economical in fuel consumption. The measures newly proposed in the study were aimed primarily at correcting the "imbalance" between pricing of auto travel and mass transit.

THIS correction, it was hoped, would help reverse the process in which the auto has contributed to the economic and environmental decline of cities.

"Automobile travel must be priced to reflect the full cost to society of its use," the Transportation Department document said. "This is most important for use of automobiles during peak hours in congestion-prone areas, and may be accomplished using parking surcharges, supplementary licensing schemes, or more sophisticated peak-hour pricing differences."

Legislation on auto fuel consumption was cited as a key factor in making possible the prediction that constantly increasing transportation demands between now and 1990 could be met without a total national increase in energy consumed.

ANOTHER optimistic prediction of the report was that, if recommendations covering the various transport modes were implemented, the nation's transportation investments in the 1975-1990 period would be reduced "by more than $5 billion."

Among other key points made in the massive document were:

— Intensive study should be made of the Amtrak passenger-rail experiment to see how the system could be shrunk to a size making maximum economic and social sense. "Comparing bus and rail, it appears that there is little or no justification for subsidizing rail service in competition with virtually unsubsidized interstate bus services. In fact, the only justification one can see is the possible need to keep a national passenger rail system intact in the event there becomes a liquid fuel shortage of a permanent nature."

— The level of user charges imposed on non-airline commercial aviation should be increased so they are "commensurate with the costs imposed by this group on the national airport and airway system."

— Users of waterways by no means pay the full costs of operating the waterways system. This results in a "less efficient allocation of national resources and a higher cost transportation system." Three possible solutions are: a decrease in subsidized services, an equal subsidy for competing modes, or an imposition of waterways user charges.

— Implementation of all these subsidy proposals "would reduce annual federal subsidies out of general revenues to transportation by $2.128 billion in 1990. The taxes individuals would have to pay to subsidize transportation would decrease."

— Use of twin 40-foot trailers on the interstate highways might result in diverting revenues of up to $225 million a year from railroads and air freight to trucks, but it would result in cost savings to the nation's shippers of up to $800 million a year in 1990.

Ford budget would end Vista

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford's budget proposes to phase out the domestic antipoverty program Vista by the fall of 1978, congressional and agency sources said Friday.

The Volunteers in Service to America was a part of President Johnson's war on poverty, with persons taking low-paying jobs to help economically and racially disadvantaged communities in a domestic complement to the Peace Corps.

ITS current budget is $23 million, with 4,500 persons working at 250 projects.

A companion program, the University Year of Action, provides full-time jobs in poverty programs for college students who earn college credit for their jobs. There are currently 2,000 persons in this program at 53 locations, on a budget of $7.3 million.

Under the Ford budget, the funds for both programs would be cut to $8 million, enough only to pay salaries and other costs for persons now in the program for a final phaseout late in 1978. A few university contracts would extend into 1979 before being terminated.

The incoming Carter administration is expected to ask for funds to continue the programs and, at least for now, to keep them together under Action, which also embraces the Peace Corps and volunteer programs for older persons.

The Nixon and Ford administrations tried to curtail the Vista program, but met resistance from Congress and, specifically, from one of the original authors, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Congressional critics have contended, however, that the Republican administrations have taken the focus off the original goal of fighting poverty and have turned the agency into one promoting volunteerism. Charlene Hirsch, head of the Carter transition team for education and human development programs, said there has been more concern over the fate of Vista and the Peace Corps than all the education programs put together. "I think there is a very strong attachment to the programs," she said.

Only temporary, hopefully Huge deficit expected under Carter stimulus

New York News Service

WASHINGTON — Bert Lance, the man who will supervise federal spending in the new administration, said Friday that President-elect Carter's program to stimulate the economy would widen the budget deficit in the fiscal year ending next Sept. 30 to between $73 billion and $75 billion.

He said the deficit next year would be "substantially less," adding, however, that "this is not so much a prediction as a hope."

LANCE, an Atlanta banker designated by Carter as budget director, provided his first projection of the impact of the new Carter stimulus on 1977 federal finances at a meeting here with newsmen.

He said his "best guess" was that the deficit this year without the Carter program of up to $15 billion of tax cuts and job measures would be between $69 billion and $62 billion.

Lance, one of Carter's closest economic advisers, categorized a $75 billion deficit as a "psychological barrier" beyond which inflation would be aggravated. "If we move up, say to $80 billion, it creates problems in the minds of the American people," he stressed.

The new administration, he asserted in apparent efforts to reassure the business community, is intent on managing the economy in a "careful, prudent and sound way."

But he pointed out that at the moment there was enough slack in the economy and liquidity in the banking system to absorb a fresh stimulus of Carter-package dimensions without any inflationary effect.

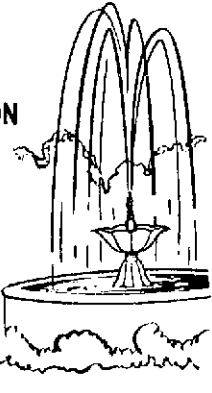

He noted that for the first time in years banks, because savings are so plentiful, actually are starting to trim the rates they pay on savings deposits. In Tennessee, he observed, rates have been cut from 5 to 4 1/2 percent. Lance said that although a final decision had yet to be taken, he believed that those who pay no income taxes at all would get some fiscal dividend from the $7 billion to $11 billion of tax rebates contemplated in the Carter proposal.

The government has no precise figures on the number of Americans who pay no taxes. There are, however, some 35 million Social Security recipients and an additional 3.5 million to 4 million welfare mothers.

IN THE 1975 rebate these people were given $50 each. At the upper end of the scale in 1975, those who earned more than $20,000 received a maximum rebate of $200 and those who earned more than $30,000 were sent a maximum rebate of $100.

Scientist hits use of nitrites 'excuse'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food additives known as nitrites, which have been linked to cancer, have not been removed from the market because people might get botulism without the use of nitrites, the U.S. Agriculture Department said Friday.

However, a leading cancer researcher criticized the government for not acting against nitrites in other testimony to the Senate Small Business Committee.

The dispute concerns a group of food additives used to color and preserve cured meat, including bacon and ham.

Harry Mussman, a department official, said the major benefit to use of nitrites is that they inhibit growth of the bacteria that cause botulism, a severe and often fatal type of food poisoning.

"The department does not feel that a ban of nitrites is warranted when compared to what little is known about" the possible risk of cancer, he said.

William Lujinsky, director of a program dealing with chemical causes of cancer at the private

Frederick Cancer Research Center at Frederick, Md., disagreed with this. He said little has been done about lowering nitrite consumption or finding alternatives in the seven years since nitrites were first linked to cancer.

"Hundreds of scientific papers have been published on the subject, scholarly meetings have been held, and special advisory groups have been set up by the Department of Agriculture, the Food and Drug Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency to assess the problem," he testified.

"These committees seemed to be chosen to exclude those scientists particularly knowledgeable in the subject," Lujinsky said.

Lujinsky said nitrites combine with other substances in the stomach to form nitrosamines, which may cause cancer.

"Nitrosamines comprise the most broadly acting group of carcinogens (cancer-causing agents). Many of them induce tumors in experimental animals at quite low doses and no resistant species is known. Almost every type of tumor found in man can be simulated in rodents with some nitrosamine, including cancer of the lung, esophagus, bladder, brain, pancreas, kidney and liver," he said.

He said no attempt has been made to keep nitrites out of foods in which botulism is not a hazard. "It is difficult to discover what effort is being expended by industry to search for a substitute for nitrite or for ways of eliminating the need for nitrite," he said.

Tighter tobacco ad rules sought

ATLANTA (AP) — A five-year program aimed at ending government subsidies to tobacco growers and extending the regulation of sales and promotion of cigarettes was announced Friday by the American Cancer Society.

"We believe this program will save 70,000 lives a year," said Allan K. Jonas of Los Angeles, chairman of the society's task force on tobacco and health.

"Approximately 50 million smokers are hooked on the weed," he said. "Many of them are young people."

Jonas and Thomas P. Ulmer, chairman of the board of the cancer society, told a joint news conference the problem of smoking among young persons has become so serious that the organization's educational program will extend downward to the third grade.

"In the next five years, we want to ban all cigarette advertising except those cigarettes which contain 50 per cent less of the harmful ingredients than the year before," Jonas said.

He said that means 50 per cent less tar and nicotine than the product contained the previous year. "We will try to ban advertising of the higher tar and nicotine content," he said.

"We would like to phase out the government tobacco subsidy," Jonas said. "The government is packed with regional interest, but we think we can outvote the tobacco interests," he said.

"Over the past 10 years, the nicotine content of cigarettes has been reduced 33 1/2 per cent," Jonas said. "Low tar and low nicotine cigarettes are saving lives, but we are not advocating smoking of any kind," he said.

U.S. imports fish 'unfit' in Canada

TORONTO (AP) — Commercially harvested fish unfit for human consumption in Canada are exported to the United States and Europe, the director of Canada's fisheries and marine services said Friday.

Bob Douglas said the United States allows higher levels of polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) than does Canada and in Europe there is no standard for safe consumption.

PCBs, industrial chemicals used mainly as insulation in electrical transformers and capacitors, have been determined to be a potential source of cancer.

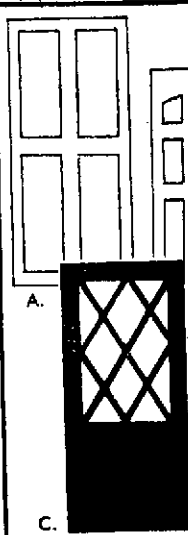

In some areas of the Great Lakes, fish have been found to have excessive levels of PCBs and have been banned from commercial sale by the United States. Residues have also turned up in cattle and fowl near the Great Lakes.

Tests by the Canadian fisheries agency have shown carp caught in eastern Lake Ontario have a PCB content slightly higher than the Canadian standard of two parts per million, Douglas said. The U.S. standard is five parts per million.

He said a ban on the sale of carp for consumption in Canada will be announced Jan. 25 at a meeting in Toronto of the Ontario Council of Commercial Fishermen.

Scientist hits use of nitrites 'excuse'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food additives known as nitrites, which have been linked to cancer, have not been removed from the market because people might get botulism without the use of nitrites, the U.S. Agriculture Department said Friday.

However, a leading cancer researcher criticized the government for not acting against nitrites in other testimony to the Senate Small Business Committee.

The dispute concerns a group of food additives used to color and preserve cured meat, including bacon and ham.

Harry Mussman, a department official, said the major benefit to use of nitrites is that they inhibit growth of the bacteria that cause botulism, a severe and often fatal type of food poisoning.

"The department does not feel that a ban of nitrites is warranted when compared to what little is known about" the possible risk of cancer, he said.

William Lujinsky, director of a program dealing with chemical causes of cancer at the private

Frederick Cancer Research Center at Frederick, Md., disagreed with this. He said little has been done about lowering nitrite consumption or finding alternatives in the seven years since nitrites were first linked to cancer.

"Hundreds of scientific papers have been published on the subject, scholarly meetings have been held, and special advisory groups have been set up by the Department of Agriculture, the Food and Drug Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency to assess the problem," he testified.

"These committees seemed to be chosen to exclude those scientists particularly knowledgeable in the subject," Lujinsky said.

Lujinsky said nitrites combine with other substances in the stomach to form nitrosamines, which may cause cancer.

"Nitrosamines comprise the most broadly acting group of carcinogens (cancer-causing agents). Many of them induce tumors in experimental animals at quite low doses and no resistant species is known. Almost every type of tumor found in man can be simulated in rodents with some nitrosamine, including cancer of the lung, esophagus, bladder, brain, pancreas, kidney and liver," he said.

He said no attempt has been made to keep nitrites out of foods in which botulism is not a hazard. "It is difficult to discover what effort is being expended by industry to search for a substitute for nitrite or for ways of eliminating the need for nitrite," he said.

Big freeze to last another month, weatherman warns

Associated Press

The Great Lakes were freezing, the Ohio and Mississippi rivers were jammed with ice, and some homeowners were asked to turn down the heat at night to save energy. And more cold may be on the way, the weatherman said Friday.

The National Weather Service predicted that after a weekend of dreary but less chilly weather over the eastern half of the nation, the temperature would plunge again early next week with no real thaw expected for a month.

THE Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. in Syracuse, N.Y., warned that it might have to cut back natural gas supplies if customers didn't turn down thermostats. For homes, it suggested 68 degrees for daytime hours and 63 overnight. For schools and businesses, it urged a 55-degree setting for nights and weekends.

The Virginia Electric and Power Co. reported a record output of electric power for a 24-hour period Tuesday.

In Washington, D.C., city officials said the supply of salt for use on the streets of the nation's capital was running low. Unusually heavy snowfall has used up 14,000 tons of the winter's normal supply of 25,000 tons of salt, and the city has placed an emergency order for more.

Officials in Chicago and Illinois reported similar shortages of rock salt because the barges carrying the salt up the Mississippi were slowed or halted by ice jams.

Officials in St. Louis said the city was out of rock salt, and Jack Leigh, a maintenance engineer for the state of Virginia, said his state has had difficulty getting rock salt. "We're just living from day to day. The roads have been too hazardous for the truckers (delivering the salt) to get through."

Ship and barge traffic was moving slowly on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers and on other waterways in the Midwest and East because of the ice.

Lake Erie was almost completely frozen, and Lake Michigan appeared about to freeze over for only the fourth time this century. Earlier-than-normal ice buildups were reported on the lake.

MOST Great Lakes shippers have said there will be little economic impact if the lakes do freeze because they usually plan on other transportation methods for the winter months and build up stockpiles of goods.

The lakes were open to shipping all of last year.

Leonard Crooks, executive director of the Great Lakes Basin Commission, said ships were taking longer to reach port and the companies were using more ships.

"The economic impact really isn't going to be severe in my opinion," he said. "There will be more maintenance on the ships and so forth but nothing major."

But economic problems were developing in the Southeast as a result of the cold weather.

Dalton, Ga., a carpet-manufacturing city, has closed half of its mills and is laying off 7,000 workers because of natural gas cutbacks and lack of alternative fuels.

The U.S. Steel mills in Birmingham, Ala., also are beginning layoffs because of the gas shortage.

"They are fearful they will have to bank their furnaces and close down completely if they don't get natural gas in four or five days," said Walter M. Starke of Southern Natural Gas Co., a major supplier in the area. He said it could be three to four weeks before the company had natural gas available for industrial use.

The Mississippi was closed between Cape Girardeau, Mo., and St. Louis Thursday after an ice jam broke up, sinking a grain barge. Officials said the river would be opened after the barge was located and marked.

IN ADDITION, the Coast Guard recommended closing a 180-mile section of the Mississippi between Cape Girardeau and Cairo, Ill., because of the ice gorges and floes.

Despite the hardship in many parts of the country, there were those pleased with the cold weather and snow.

Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine reported good to excellent snow cover and said crowds were better than usual for this time of year at ski resorts. A spokesman for the Okemo Mountain Ski Area in Ludlow, Vt., said lodges were "busier than ever for mid-week."

And in the western mountains, California resorts reported improved skiing with conditions fair to good.

The nominations include those of two former members of Congress and of a black woman who had been the State Department's highest-ranking woman official until she was fired by President Ford in 1975.

Until Friday, Powell was the only White House staff member to have been announced officially — as White House press secretary.

The others are: —Robert J. Lipshutz, 55, a prominent Atlanta lawyer who will be counsel to the president. Lipshutz was treasurer of the Carter campaign.

—Margaret "Midge" Costanza, 44, vice mayor of Rochester, N.Y., and co-chairperson of Carter's New York state campaign, who will be assistant to the president in charge of contact with citizen groups.

—Frank Moore, 41, who was Carter's liaison to the Georgia Legislature when he was governor and who will serve as Carter's liaison with Congress. He was southern co-ordinator of the campaign until midsummer last year and then set up a liaison office with the Senate and House.

—Hamilton Jordan, 32, who has been associated with Carter since 1966 and who was his campaign director, will be assistant to the president to "act primarily in the area of political advice and activity." Powell said that Jordan "would be to some extent" Carter's administrative assistant.

—Jack H. Watson, Jr., 38, who directed planning for the Carter administration throughout the fall campaign and who is co-ordinator of the Carter-Mondale transition planning group, to be assistant to the president for inter-governmental relations, including liaison with big city mayors, and cabinet secretary.

—Stuart Eizenstat, 33, Carter's campaign issues director and a principal author of the Democratic platform, to be assistant to the president for domestic affairs and policy. Eizenstat has been issues adviser to Carter since his 1970 campaign for governor.

HELMS IS JURY TARGET

difficult," said one person familiar with the investigation. The basic structure of the CIA made it difficult to trace the flow of paper or to reconstruct a decision-making process, he said, and Justice Department investigators have had great difficulty in trying to establish "just what pieces of paper and just what people he had access to."

IN SHORT, it has been difficult to establish for certain that Helms knew certain facts that his subordinates knew, and actually read materials that had been prepared for his use.

One source said that the investigation also had been slowed by the time-consuming procedures required to declassify some of the documentary evidence that was needed.

The issue of possible perjury and obstruction of justice centers on a series of hearings held in March and April 1973 by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's subcommittee on multinational corporations, which was headed by Frank Church, D-Idaho. Officials from both ITT and the CIA testified that there had been no exchanges of intelligence information or other covert contacts between them concerning Chile.

In 1975, however, the Senate Intelligence Committee, which also was headed by Church, obtained information that ITT, after obtaining advice from the CIA on how to proceed, provided $350,000 in cash to a conservative opponent of Salvador

Allende, a Marxist whose election as president in 1970 was opposed both by the U.S. government and American corporations with business interests in Chile.

The Senate Intelligence Committee investigation also disclosed that the CIA had a major secret operation of its own during that time period and had funneled more than $8 million to help opponents of Allende, who died during a coup d'etat in September 1973.

This disclosure appeared to contradict testimony that Helms had given at another Senate hearing, when he responded to a question about whether the CIA had caused any money to be passed to Allende's opponents by saying, "No, sir." Helms, who resigned his post in Iran at the end of last year, had been under investigation by the Justice Department for nearly two years because of his testimony denying CIA aid to the opponents of Allende.

AIRLINES 2% FARE HIKE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board on Friday granted a two per cent fare hike to the nation's domestic airlines.

At the same time, the board agreed to let the carriers put the price hikes into effect in February rather than immediately.

A spokesman for the board said some airlines planned to raise their prices on Feb. 1.

Conservative Brock wins Republican chairmanship

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican Party on Friday chose Bill Brock of Tennessee, himself a recent election victim of the GOP decline, as the national chairman to lead its rebuilding.

Brock, who drew support from the moderate-liberal wing of the party after it failed to come up with a candidate of its own, defeated Utah State Chairman Dick Richards, who had the support of Ronald Reagan's conservative following, and three other candidates.

Elected on the third ballot of a secret vote by the national committee, Brock succeeds Mary Louise Smith of Iowa who stepped aside voluntarily following the defeat of President Ford, who had named her to the job.

The election of a Tennessee as national party chairman gives that swing state two of the GOP's highest-ranking politicians. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., became Senate minority leader last week and will be the ranking Republican in the country when Ford leaves office next week.

Although Brock's own politics are viewed as conservative, he began his term as national chairman by calling on the party to reform itself, broaden its base and improve its image.

"We have the making of the greatest new majority this country has ever seen," Brock said in his acceptance speech. "Yet, we're not there. We're a long way from there."

Brock said the recent reverses the GOP has suffered in the wake of Watergate and a persistent recession are "not as much a reason for gloom as ... an incredible opportunity."

"We're going to challenge the Democrats in every field, with every opportunity we have," he said. "But I think it is important that we challenge ourselves first. We can and we must do better."

Brock began his career as a grassroots volunteer in his native Chattanooga and served two terms in the U.S. House before being elected to the Senate in 1970, defeating veteran Democrat Albert Gore.

Last fall, however, Brock lost to Democrat James Sasser, a relative political novice who was swept to victory in a presidential landslide by Jimmy Carter in the state.

Brock led from the first ballot on Friday and gained a winning majority of 90 votes on the third. Richards started with 48 votes and finished with 46. Ohio State Chairman Kent McGough wound up with 14 votes, party co-chairman Bob Carter of Washington, D.C., had 6, and Arthur Fletcher, a black urban affairs adviser to Ford, had 5.

Following Brock's selection the Rison Society, representing the liberal wing of the party, said it is looking forward to working with him and said his first task is to broaden the party's appeal.

Just before the nominations were made, Indiana Chairman Tom Milligan, who had been viewed by many as a middle-ground compromise, withdrew, saying he just didn't have the votes. Milligan released his voters "to go where they wanted to go," but said he was voting for Richards because of "an outstanding record as a party technician."

Mary Louise Smith, the Ford-picked incumbent chairman who announced her resignation shortly after the presidential election, said in her farewell speech that the party has to broaden its appeal or face disaster.

Ellsberg paper may hurt Sorensen

Associated Press

An affidavit filed in the Daniel Ellsberg case by Theodore C. Sorensen, who was counsel and speech writer for former President Kennedy, may jeopardize his appointment as Central Intelligence Agency director, it was reported Friday.

The development, outlined in a story by the Los Angeles Times from Washington, was attributed to unidentified U.S. Senate sources.

In the 1972 affidavit which supported Ellsberg, then on trial for releasing the Pentagon Papers, Sorensen admitted using secret government documents in writing books.

The newspaper said copies of the document have been circulated among members of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, which is scheduled to open hearings Monday on Sorensen's nomination by President-elect Jimmy Carter to the intelligence post.

One Senate aide, asked if the affidavit could torpedo Sorensen's nomination, was quoted by the newspaper as saying, "That's a possibility."

A statement taken from the affidavit read: "In keeping with the long-standing practice that the papers and files of the president and his top appointees belong to them and may be removed from their offices at the conclusion of their service, I removed 67 cartons of papers, documents and files of all kinds (seven cartons of which were classified) from my office in the White House upon my departure in February of 1964.

"I drew upon this material, keeping some of it in my own home, in writing the book 'Kennedy,' published in 1965. The classified material included copies of the Kennedy-Khrushchev correspondence, the transcript of their summit meeting at Vienna, secret memoranda and directives relating to the Cuban missile crisis, Berlin, Laos and Congo crisis."

Sorensen and Carter were not immediately available for comment.

Ship and barge traffic was moving slowly on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers and on other waterways in the Midwest and East because of the ice.

Lake Erie was almost completely frozen, and Lake Michigan appeared about to freeze over for only the fourth time this century. Earlier-than-normal ice buildups were reported on the lake.

MOST Great Lakes shippers have said there will be little economic impact if the lakes do freeze because they usually plan on other transportation methods for the winter months and build up stockpiles of goods.

The lakes were open to shipping all of last year.

Leonard Crooks, executive director of the Great Lakes Basin Commission, said ships were taking longer to reach port and the companies were using more ships.

"The economic impact really isn't going to be severe in my opinion," he said. "There will be more maintenance on the ships and so forth but nothing major."

But economic problems were developing in the Southeast as a result of the cold weather.

Dalton, Ga., a carpet-manufacturing city, has closed half of its mills and is laying off 7,000 workers because of natural gas cutbacks and lack of alternative fuels.

The U.S. Steel mills in Birmingham, Ala., also are beginning layoffs because of the gas shortage.

"They are fearful they will have to bank their furnaces and close down completely if they don't get natural gas in four or five days," said Walter M. Starke of Southern Natural Gas Co., a major supplier in the area. He said it could be three to four weeks before the company had natural gas available for industrial use.

The Mississippi was closed between Cape Girardeau, Mo., and St. Louis Thursday after an ice jam broke up, sinking a grain barge. Officials said the river would be opened after the barge was located and marked.

IN ADDITION, the Coast Guard recommended closing a 180-mile section of the Mississippi between Cape Girardeau and Cairo, Ill., because of the ice gorges and floes.

Despite the hardship in many parts of the country, there were those pleased with the cold weather and snow.

Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine reported good to excellent snow cover and said crowds were better than usual for this time of year at ski resorts. A spokesman for the Okemo Mountain Ski Area in Ludlow, Vt., said lodges were "busier than ever for mid-week."

And in the western mountains, California resorts reported improved skiing with conditions fair to good.

Conservative Brock wins Republican chairmanship

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican Party on Friday chose Bill Brock of Tennessee, himself a recent election victim of the GOP decline, as the national chairman to lead its rebuilding.

Brock, who drew support from the moderate-liberal wing of the party after it failed to come up with a candidate of its own, defeated Utah State Chairman Dick Richards, who had the support of Ronald Reagan's conservative following, and three other candidates.

Elected on the third ballot of a secret vote by the national committee, Brock succeeds Mary Louise Smith of Iowa who stepped aside voluntarily following the defeat of President Ford, who had named her to the job.

The election of a Tennesseean as national party chairman gives that swing state two of the GOP's highest-ranking politicians. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., became Senate minority leader last week and will be the ranking Republican in the country when Ford leaves office next week.

Although Brock's own politics are viewed as conservative, he began his term as national chairman by calling on the party to reform itself, broaden its base and improve its rebuilding.

"We have the making of the greatest new majority this country has ever seen," Brock said in his acceptance speech. "Yet, we're not there. We're a long way from there."

Brock said the recent reverses the GOP has suffered in the wake of Watergate and a persistent recession are "not as much a reason for gloom as... an incredible opportunity."

"We're going to challenge the Democrats in every field, with every opportunity we have," he said. "But I think it is important that we challenge ourselves first. We can and we must do better."

Brock began his career as a grassroots volunteer in his native Chattanooga and served two terms in the U.S. House before being elected to the Senate in 1970, defeating veteran Democrat Albert Gore.

Last fall, however, Brock lost to Democrat James Sasser, a relative political novice who was swept to victory in a presidential landslide by Jimmy Carter in the state.

Brock led from the first ballot on Friday and gained a winning majority of 90 votes on the third. Richards started with 48 votes and finished with 46. Ohio State Chairman Kent McGough wound up with 14 votes, party co-chairman Bob Carter of Washington, D.C., had 6, and Arthur Fletcher, a black urban affairs adviser to Ford, had 5.

Following Brock's selection the Ripon Society, representing the liberal wing of the party, said it is looking forward to working with him and said his first task is to broaden the party's appeal.

Just before the nominations were made, Indiana Chairman Tom Milligan, who had been viewed by many as a middle-ground compromise, withdrew, saying he just didn't have the votes. Milligan released his voters "to go where they wanted to go," but said he was voting for Richards because of "an outstanding record as a party technician."

Mary Louise Smith, the Ford-picked incumbent chairman who announced her resignation shortly after the presidential election, said in her farewell speech that the party has to broaden its appeal or face disaster.

Ellsberg paper may hurt Sorensen

Associated Press

An affidavit filed in the Daniel Ellsberg case by Theodore C. Sorensen, who was counsel and speech writer for former President Kennedy, may jeopardize his appointment as Central Intelligence Agency director, it was reported Friday.

The development, outlined in a story by the Los Angeles Times from Washington, was attributed to unidentified U.S. Senate sources.

In the 1972 affidavit which supported Ellsberg, then on trial for releasing the Pentagon Papers, Sorensen admitted using secret government documents in writing books.

The newspaper said copies of the document have been circulated among members of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, which is scheduled to open hearings Monday on Sorensen's nomination by President-elect Jimmy Carter to the intelligence post.

One Senate aide, asked if the affidavit could torpedo Sorensen's nomination, was quoted by the newspaper as saying, "That's a possibility."

A statement taken from the affidavit read: "In keeping with the long-standing practice that the papers and files of the president and his top appointees belong to them and may be removed from their offices at the conclusion of their service, I removed 67 cartons of papers, documents and files of all kinds (seven cartons of which were classified) from my office in the White House upon my departure in February of 1964.

"I drew upon this material, keeping some of it in my own home, in writing the book 'Kennedy,' published in 1965. The classified material included copies of the Kennedy-Khrushchev correspondence, the transcript of their summit meeting at Vienna, secret memoranda and directives relating to the Cuban missile crisis, Berlin, Laos and Congo crisis."

Sorensen and Carter were not immediately available for comment.

The nominations include those of two former members of Congress and of a black woman who had been the State Department's highest-ranking woman official until she was fired by President Ford in 1975.

Until Friday, Powell was the only White House staff member to have been announced officially — as White House press secretary.

The others are:

—Robert J. Lipshutz, 55, a prominent Atlanta lawyer who will be counsel to the president. Lipshutz was treasurer of the Carter campaign.

—Margaret "Midge" Costanza, 44, vice mayor of Rochester, N.Y., and co-chairperson of Carter's New York state campaign, who will be assistant to the president in charge of contact with citizen groups.

—Frank Moore, 41, who was Carter's liaison to the Georgia Legislature when he was governor and who will serve as Carter's liaison with Congress. He was southern co-ordinator of the campaign until midsummer last year and then set up a liaison office with the Senate and House.

—Hamilton Jordan, 32, who has been associated with Carter since 1966 and who was his campaign director, will be assistant to the president to "act primarily in the area of political advice and activity." Powell said that Jordan "would be to some extent" Carter's administrative assistant.

—Jack H. Watson, Jr., 38, who directed planning for the Carter administration throughout the fall campaign and who is coordinator of the Carter-Mondale transition planning group, to be assistant to the president for inter-governmental relations, including liaison with big city mayors, and cabinet secretary.

—Stuart Eizenstat, 33, Carter's campaign issues director and a principal author of the Democratic platform, to be assistant to the president for domestic affairs and policy. Eizenstat has been issues adviser to Carter since his 1970 campaign for governor.

HELMS IS JURY TARGET

difficult," said one person familiar with the investigation. The basic structure of the CIA made it difficult to trace the flow of paper or to reconstruct a decision-making process, he said, and Justice Department investigators have had great difficulty in trying to establish "just what pieces of paper and just what people he had access to."

IN SHORT, it has been difficult to establish for certain that Helms knew certain facts that his subordinates knew, and actually read materials that had been prepared for his use.

One source said that the investigation also had been slowed by the time-consuming procedures required to declassify some of the documentary evidence that was needed.

The issue of possible perjury and obstruction of justice centers on a series of hearings held in March and April 1973 by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's subcommittee on multinational corporations, which was headed by Frank Church, D-Idaho. Officials from both ITT and the CIA testified that there had been no exchanges of information or other covert contacts between them concerning Chile.

In 1975, however, the Senate Intelligence Committee, which also was headed by Church, obtained information that ITT, after obtaining advice from the CIA on how to proceed, provided $350,000 in cash to a conservative opponent of Salvador

Allende, a Marxist whose election as president in 1970 was opposed both by the U.S. government and American corporations with business interests in Chile.

The Senate Intelligence Committee investigation also disclosed that the CIA had a major secret operation of its own during that time period and had funneled more than $8 million to help opponents of Allende, who died during a coup d'etat in September 1973.

This disclosure appeared to contradict testimony that Helms had given at another Senate hearing, when he responded to a question about whether the CIA had caused any money to be passed to Allende's opponents by saying, "No, sir."

Helms, who resigned his post in Iran at the end of last year, had been under investigation by the Justice Department for nearly two years because of his testimony denying CIA aid to the opponents of Allende.

AIRLINES 2% FARE HIKE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board on Friday granted a two per cent fare hike to the nation's domestic airlines.

At the same time, the board agreed to let the carriers put the price hikes into effect in February rather than immediately.

A spokesman for the board said some airlines planned to raise their prices on Feb. 1.

FTC accuses dentists of price fixing

By LEE BYRD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission slapped charges of price fixing against the dental profession on Friday, an action aimed at allowing Americans to shop for tooth care as they would a candy bar.

The commission accused the American Dental Association, whose 124,000 members include 95 per cent of the nation's dentists, of violating federal antitrust law through ethics codes that bar advertising and "prevent or hinder . . . price competition."

The case is the latest in a series of commission steps designed to open up competition, and particularly the advertising of prices, in professional services. Similar moves have been made against lawyers, doctors, opticians and the drug industry within the last year.

IN CHICAGO, the ADA issued a statement that it "has neither fostered any practices nor engaged in any conduct relating to its advertising ethics which is in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act."

The FTC said that, aside from the complaint against the ADA, it is beginning an investigation of the entire dental care field. The probe will determine "whether restrictions imposed by private and governmental entities on the provision of dental services may be unfair methods of competition," the agency said.

The ADA noted in its statement that restrictions on dentists' advertising are included in many state laws as well as its own private codes. The FTC, in the announcement of its broad investigation, seemed to be heading toward new rules that would overturn such statutes.

THE PROBE, in addition to looking at state or private rules on advertising, also will focus on restrictions regarding the accreditation of dental schools, licensing requirements, and transfers of licenses from one state to another, the FTC said.

The commission noted that its complaint against ADA charges that the organization "has eliminated competition among dentists in the United States through the adoption and enforcement of its Principles of Ethics."

The complaint named also the Indiana Dental Association, the Indianapolis District Dental Society, the Virginia Dental Association, and the Northern Virginia Dental Society.

ACCORDING to Owen M. Johnson Jr., director of the FTC Bureau of Competition, these ADA-related groups were singled out because each has variations of the parent code which the FTC also thinks should be struck down.

The commission charged that under these codes:

— "Prices of dentists' services have been stabilized, fixed or otherwise interfered with."

— "Competition among dentists . . . has been hindered, restrained, foreclosed and frustrated."

— "Consumers of dentists' services have been deprived of information pertinent to the selection of a dentist and of the benefits of competition."

— "Development of innovative systems for the delivery of dentists' services has been hindered or restrained."

The ADA claimed it restricted advertising because "unrestricted advertising would have no economic benefit for the public and, instead, might lead to serious abuses in the delivery of dental care." The statement did not explain how such abuses would occur.

Eruption spews death, destruction

Smoke rises from 11,500 foot Nyiragongo volcano near Goma, Zaire, in airview of eruption that reportedly wiped out two villages, killing 50 people earlier this Israel's rocketing arms sales seen causing friction in U.S.

By WILLIAM FARRELL
New York Times Service

JERUSALEM—Israel's arms industry, which has grown rapidly since the Six Day War of 1967, has vastly increased its exports of armaments to foreign countries with total sales in 1976 of $320 million compared with pre-war sales averaging about $60 million a year.

According to military officials, who provided the sales figures, Israel hopes to sell $400 million worth of military equipment this year, ranging from tents and parachutes to electronic devices and missile parts.

AS AN arms merchant, Israel does not rank in the big league, which is dominated by the United States and the Soviet Union. Israel is still heavily reliant on the U.S. for advanced military supplies for its own defense forces.

But for a small country with a staggering balance of payments deficit, the arms industry represents both a means for trying to close the trade gap as well as a commitment toward providing much of its own weaponry while vigorously competing in the world arms market to sell its surplus.

Recently, foreign press reports indicated that some of Israel's arms sales were causing friction with officials in Washington because of charges that in some cases Israel was re-exporting U.S. parts and U.S. technology without getting permission from the U.S.

ACCORDING to foreign sources, the most recent instance concerned the sale by Israel of six Super Mystere jets to Honduras as part of an agreement to provide a dozen such planes.

The planes, which are about 20 years old, were outfitted by the Israelis with newer engines manufactured by Pratt and Whitney.

There is a dispute over whether permission for the sales was obtained by the Israelis and whether U.S. law was violated.

The Israeli Defense Ministry denies that arms sales to foreign nations are made that violate U.S. statutes and says that permission is obtained when needed.

Military officials say Israel currently provides about 40 per cent of its own light ammunition requirements, although it still is heavily dependent on the U.S. for heavy artillery ammunition.

A limited-circulation illustrated brochure published by its Defense Ministry says Israel is currently offering a wide variety of military equipment for sale.

The items include the Uzi submachine gun, which Israel has sold to many nations over the years, including the U.S. (Secret Service); the Galil, a light assault rifle that converts into a submachine gun, sniper rifle, automatic rifle, light machine gun or grenade launcher capable of firing antitank or antipersonnel ammunition; the Gabriel sea-to-sea missile; the Shafrir air-to-air missile, and a whole range of communications equipment from teleprinters to scanners.

In addition, according to foreign press reports, the Israelis are offering the Kfir jet airplane for sale, a sophisticated Israeli-built fighter that contains an engine manufactured by General Electric.

OTHER items produced by the Israeli arms industry, not all of them necessarily for sale, reportedly include a tank of advanced design that is supposed to be highly maneuverable in desert warfare, a ground-to-ground missile with a range of more than 300 miles, a television-guided air-to-ground missile, a modified barrage rocket similar to the Soviet Katyushas, missile gunboats and a sophisticated antipersonnel radar system for use against infiltration by terrorists.

Information about Israel's arms dealings is limited by official censorship and self-imposed restrictions on the part of officials connected with the arms industry.

Among countries mentioned as Israel's customers in foreign press reports have been Taiwan, Iran, South Africa and a number of Latin American countries.

The most recent issue of a publication called "The Military Balance," Israel is identified as a primary arms supplier to Bolivia, Ecuador, El Salvador, Mexico and Nicaragua. No estimates of the costs or quantity of the Israeli arms are given.

According to estimates available here, some 30,000 Israelis are directly employed in the military and defense industries, with perhaps another 60,000 workers engaged in work related to the arms industry through subcontractors and parts producers.

THE Defense Ministry brochure says there are more than 150 private and public firms engaged in the Israeli arms and munitions industries.

One military official said he was aware of reports from the U.S. about possible Israeli infringements of U.S. laws governing the dispersal of U.S. military equipment and technology. "Officially," he said, "we never got an official complaint from an American firm that we are using their technology against their wishes."

One Israeli familiar with the country's arms industry said that whenever Americans questioned whether Israel was taking undue advantage of its access to U.S. technology the Israelis tended to reply by saying: "We gain experience with systems based on our battlefield experience and you (the Americans) then improve on them. Our experience is made available to the American military establishment. This is a mutual effort."

Another Israeli official said he felt the problem focused primarily on Israeli arms sales to Latin American countries because some American arms manufacturers have complained to U.S. officials that Israel was becoming a competitor in an area that has traditionally been an American market for weaponry.

"The problem so far is not a political problem," this official said, adding that he thought that U.S. and Israeli officials were attempting to work out an agreement acceptable to both nations.

Under the Soviet program, 10 stations are or will be under construction during the 10th five-year plan (1976-80). Work on a dozen others is to be started in the 1980s.

Possible future sites have been identified in an article titled "Nuclear Energy of the U.S.S.R. in the 10th Five-Year Plan" by Oleg D. Chuvilkin, a geographer on the faculty of the Moscow Institute of International Relations, a Foreign Ministry school. The article appears in the September-October issue of the journal Geografiya Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper. The institution will have 3,500 students.

While nuclear power gained rapidly in the West, the Soviet Union was slow to build up its industry and, by 1975, announced the operation of only five large civilian stations. They are Voronezh, Kola and Leningrad in European Russia; Beloyarsk in the Urals; and Shvetschenko, a water-desalting and electric complex on the Caspian Sea in Kazakhstan. Leningrad has two million kilowatts, is currently the largest.

Two more stations began electrical output last month. One is at Kurchatov, near Kursk, where the first of four one-million kilowatt units went into operation on Dec. 18. The other is at Metsamor in Armenia, where the first of two 405,000-kilowatt reactors started up on Dec. 28. Both have been under construction since 1969.

Russ speed up new A-power plants to beat energy crisis

By THEODORE SHARAD
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The Soviet Union, without anti-nuclear citizens' lobbies to deal with, has accelerated its atomic power program. One-fifth of all electrical capacity installed between now and 1980 is to be fueled by nuclear reactors.

The upsurge, after a slow start in the 1960s, is being spurred by a geographical imbalance between a concentration of population and industry in European Russia and most fossil-fuel resources in distant Siberia and other Asian areas. To make up for the energy shortage, nuclear power capacity is being installed in the European regions.

THERE HAS been little evidence of public opposition either because of nuclear hazards or because of site selection. A survey of the antinuclear movement in the current issue of Energy Policy, a British quarterly, deals with problems in the United States, West Germany, France, Sweden and Japan, but mentions none in the Soviet Union.

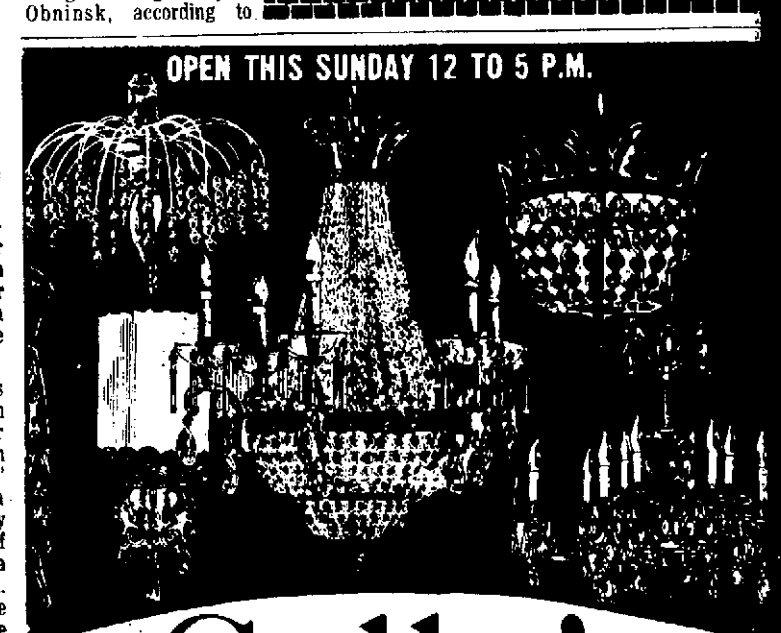

BECAUSE of increasing manpower needs, an entire nuclear engineering college is being set up at Obninsk, according to v Shkole (Geography in School), a teaching aid.

To equip the expanding nuclear industry, a reactor-manufacturing complex, known as Atom-mash, for Atomic Machinery, is rising in southern Russia on the banks of the Don River, at Volgogradsk. The first stage is to be completed in time for the 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution next November.

Nuclear engineers have been trained so far by the Obninsk branch of the Moscow Engineering-Physical Institute, with a student body of 1,200. Obninsk, a reactor-research center 70 miles southwest of Moscow, was the site of the first, experimental 5,000-kilowatt power reactor in 1954.

'Anti-Mexico media campaign' charged

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's image is being hurt in a "campaign" by newspapers, radio and television in the United States against Mexico, officials of tourist-related industries said in speeches reported Friday in Mexico City's major daily newspapers.

The Mexican tourism business could face one of its worst years in the last 20 years, and "it is top priority to regain the image outside the country of peacefulness and hospitality," said Rodolfo Casparius, president of the Mexican Association of Hotels and Motels.

CASPARIUS and other tourism officials spoke Thursday at an annual convention of the hotel industry. Other businessmen also mentioned what they called a news media campaign against Mexico.

Mexico earned more than $2 billion a year on tourism until 1976, when tourism receipts fell almost five per cent. Much of the decreased tourism was attributed then to a boycott by U.S. Jews and other Americans protesting Mexico's vote in the United Nations for an Arab-backed resolution equating Zionism with racism. The boycott ended last fall.

Casparius and other officials did not cite any specific examples of what they called an "orchestrated" publicity campaign against Mexico.

The Wall Street Journal and the magazine "Trailer Life" each published a story last year saying it was dangerous to visit Mexico because of treatment received from the police and other authorities.

The American Automobile Association recently declared it was unsafe to travel by car in parts of Mexico.

Little has changed since those stories were published. It still is a common practice for policemen to stop motorists even when they have not committed an infraction, demand a bribe to let them go on their way and inconvenience them by lecturing them and over studying their papers or hauling them off to police headquarters for a day of sitting around if they do not agree to pay.

Incoming administration warned on SALT hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration's chief arms control official warned the incoming Carter administration Friday of the dangers and frustrations of trying to negotiate disarmament agreements with the Soviet Union.

In what amounted to a valedictory statement before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Fred Ikle, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said that many issues remain unresolved. He blamed the Soviet Union for a failure to "make any counter-proposals of its own which could help resolve these issues."

Ikle cited "grey area" weapons systems which could have both strategic and tactical uses, citing the Soviet Backfire bomber and intermediate range Cruise missiles as two examples.

Ikle said the United States has "long been ready to resolve these issues in an equitable way."

"This administration has been flexible in SALT (strategic arms limitation talks) where flexibility was warranted, and firm where firmness was needed."

He added that "had the Soviets shown only some of this flexibility, an agreement might long since have been reached."

Ikle opened his statement saying he did have some good news for the committee: "Substantial progress has been made in 1976 in drafting treaty language, article by article to flesh out the Vladivostok accord. Without such a detailed and specific text, we could not know what we have agreed on and this would leave room for evasion and foster future disputes."

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said the committee had called Ikle to testify to determine the accuracy of recent reports that intelligence experts have discerned a change in Soviet strategic intentions.

Black diplomat to head Latin affairs

Knight News Service

Terence A. Todman, black Foreign Service career officer currently ambassador to Costa Rica, was named Friday as the Carter administration's choice for the State Department's top Latin American affairs post.

Secretary of State-designate Cyrus Vance said in Washington that President-elect Jimmy Carter intends to nominate Todman to be the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs. He would succeed Harry Shlaudeman, another career Foreign Service officer, who has served in the position since last June.

Vance also announced that former Wyoming Sen. Gale McGee, defeated in a re-election bid last fall, would be nominated as ambassador to the Organization of American States.

A third Latin American affairs position, is expected to go to Robert Pastor, a 29-year-old Harvard Ph.D. who has served as staff director of the private Commission on U.S.-Latin American Relations headed by former OAS Ambassador Sol Linowitz. Pastor is to become the Latin America specialist on the National Security Council staff headed by Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The Linowitz Commission's two reports, one in October 1974 and the other last month, provide what are expected to become the basic guidelines for the Carter administration's policy towards Latin America and the Caribbean.

The 50-year-old Todman, a native of the U.S. Virgin Islands, will be the man chiefly responsible for carrying out that policy.

Todman, the first black U.S. ambassador ever assigned to a Spanish-speaking Latin American country, arrived in Costa Rica in March 1975. His performance since has won high praise from Costa Rican officials.

'Anti-Mexico media campaign' charged

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's image is being hurt in a "campaign" by newspapers, radio and television in the United States against Mexico, officials of tourist-related industries said in speeches reported Friday in Mexico City's major daily newspapers.

The Mexican tourism business could face one of its worst years in the last 20 years, and "it is top priority to regain the image outside the country of peacefulness and hospitality," said Rodolfo Casparius, president of the Mexican Association of Hotels and Motels.

Casparius and other tourism officials spoke Thursday at an annual convention of the hotel industry. Other businessmen also mentioned what they called a news media campaign against Mexico.

The Wall Street Journal and the magazine "Trailer Life" each published a story last year saying it was dangerous to visit Mexico because of treatment received from the police and other authorities.

It still is a common practice for policemen to stop motorists even when they have not committed an infraction, demand a bribe to let them go on their way and inconvenience them by lecturing them and overly studying their papers or hauling them off to police headquarters for a day of sitting around if they do not agree to pay.

Some Americans and other visitors are surprised also to find that Mexico operates under what is called the Napoleonic code of justice, which means basically that a person is considered guilty until proven innocent.

If a driver hits and kills a pedestrian he is jailed immediately and can spend up to a year behind bars before a judge ever decides guilt or innocence. There are no jury trials in Mexico.

Several years ago an American's car struck a horse, and the driver was seriously injured. The horse fled the scene, and the police guarded the injured driver during his stay of several weeks in a hospital. After his release he was carted off to jail where he stayed several months until it was officially declared that he had committed no crime.

THOSE SORTS OF instances, while few for the number of Americans and other foreigners living here, likely have turned some tourists to other countries.

Mexico's tourism minister, Guillermo Rosell de la Lama, has encouraged policemen and others to give tourists special consideration.

Rude service also has been a continuing problem in many tourism areas in Mexico, bringing some Mexicans themselves to complain that Mexico was losing business to more professional tourist spots in the Caribbean.

"Through attentiveness of everyone and with good service, honesty and professionalism we can create good stories by word of mouth," said the head of Mexico's hotel and motel organization.

The tourism secretariat said 126 trailers of a caravan of mobile homes that visits Mexico each year crossed into Mexico Thursday from Nogales, Ariz.

The tourism secretariat said in an announcement that the more than 300 persons with the trailers "would not be tricked by the campaign against travel in Mexico by U.S. publications."

Militant faces loyalist in fight to lead Steelworkers

By LEE DEMBART
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Some people call Ed Sadlowski the Jimmy Carter of the steel mills, with his warmth and smile supporting his populist campaign for the presidency of the United Steelworkers of America.

More important, Sadlowski is a product of the steel mills, a burly street fighter from working-class Chicago with an engaging manner and a chance at one of the biggest prizes in American labor.

HIS OPPONENT, Lloyd McBride, a loyal career unionist more than 20 years older than Sadlowski, refers to him as an upstart and a creation of public relations and warns that if elected he will destroy the union.

The outcome of the campaign, which is being waged in gray steel towns and at plant gates and union halls from Puerto Rico to the Arctic Circle, will affect not only the union, which is the largest and one of the most influential in the AFL-CIO, but will also help chart the course of organized labor.

McBride is supported by virtually the entire labor hierarchy, from AFL-CIO President George Meany down, and they present a formidable political machine that can bring out the votes — on Feb. 8.

SADLOWSKI'S strength lies in the basic steel industry, where the average worker is under 30 and there is the most dissatisfaction.

But the 400,000 workers in basic steel make up less than one-third of the union's membership. The rest are in container, aluminum, chemical and ferrous and nonferrous metals production and fabrication. No one knows whether Sadlowski's strength in basic steel will overcome his apparent weakness in the rest of the union.

When McBride spoke at a meeting of the Alcoa aluminum local in Alcoa, Tenn., last Saturday night, the leadership produced a crowd of 250, including a busload brought in from Nashville, three hours away.

Sadlowski drew about half that number several nights in near-zero temperatures. But Sadlowski upset the union leadership in a campaign similar to this one when he became director of the Chicago-area district, largest in the union.

HE IS A natural campaigner and has found thousands of followers among the union's 1.4 million members who respond to his appeal to give the union back to the workers.

It is a ready slogan for any dissenter, and it was used by I.W. Abel, who is retiring from the presidency, when he wrested control from David J. McDonald 12 years ago.

Many are concerned that the firebrand Sadlowski, who is 38, would upset 18 years of labor peace in the steel industry, a critical element in the economy, because of his opposition to the no-strike agreement that Abel implemented.

More than that, the election campaign is the long-expected confrontation between the business unionists who have run labor for two decades, concentrating on bread-and-butter issues and making substantial gains for industrial workers, and the ideologues who are concerned with the quality of work and progressive social issues.

THOSE who contend that labor has grown middle-aged with success have found an advocate in Sadlowski.

Meany, McBride and the union bureaucracy maintain that "outsiders" are trying to take over the union for their own ends, specifically accusing Joseph Rauh, Washington lawyer who is one of Sadlowski's closest advisers; John Kenneth Galbraith, economist, and Victor Reuther, brother of Walter

ED SADLOWSKI
Natural Campaigner

Reuther, the late president of the United Automobile Workers.

McBride has made much of the Sadlowski contributions from outside the union. Sadlowski said his figures showed that more than 2,000 persons have contributed $150,000 to his campaign, including about $30,000 from people who are not steelworkers.

In an interview, Sadlowski said, "One guy told me, 'If that Polack from the South Side is smart enough to get that money from the rich on the North Side, that's the guy I'm looking for.'"

McBRIDE and Sadlowski are waging national political campaigns crisscrossing the country in search of hands to shake and voters to convince.

Sadlowski has issues as well as appeal — union democracy, lack of responsiveness, safety, pensions, the dues structure, the no-strike agreement. A Sadlowski researcher said in an interview that issues were necessary because liberal intellectuals thought elections depended on them.

McBride contends that Sadlowski is best at catch slogans and that his long economic analyses tend to be muddled and facile.

McBride, 60, who acknowledges that he does not have his opponent's charisma, stresses the union's economic gains.

He also implies that Sadlowski is a tool of leftists. "The only thing I've said about Ed is that he has not repudiated the support he's getting from the Daily World and other left-wing groups," McBride says. "I've never said that he's a Communist."

WHEN McBride visited steel plants in Detroit last Saturday, his reception matched the 5-degree weather.

"I'm Lloyd McBride, and I'd sure appreciate your support for our team in February," he told each worker whose hand he shook at the Great Lakes Steel Co. plant.

"Everyone I've talked to is for Sadlowski," said Kenny Anderson, a seven-year veteran who had just shaken the candidate's hand. "It's time for a change. He's a rebel."

But the mood in eastern Tennessee was all McBride.

"I don't like Sadlowski's leanings, his tendencies," said Gerald Rhine, who has worked in the Alcoa plant for 31 years.

"Some people say, 'Vote for Sadlowski,'" said Charles Odom, 23. "Some people's got it on their hats. They just say he's tough and everything. But I heard he's a Communist, and I believe it."

Neither candidate is a polished public speaker. They ramble, stepping on applause lines, letting one phrase remind them of another in a stream of consciousness that weaves new thoughts into well-rehearsed ones. They go flat.

McBride is fighting a cold, his back aches and he has an eye infection.

BUT HE presses his cause with all of his diminishing strength. He has worked for the steelworkers' union since 1940 and says he never aspired to the presidency of the union, but was pressed into running to turn back the Sadlowski challenge.

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Soil that has not been improved where roses are to grow, should be supplied with generous amounts of amende material. Amende material may be compost soil the gardener has developed, leaf mold, pre-moistened peat moss, fine barks, well-aged manure, and planter mix with several of the already mentioned materials.

The amendments mixed with the soil prevents a hard clay soil from packing too tightly, and helps a coarse, sandy soil retain moisture longer.

The rose bed can be prepared one of several ways. The whole rose garden area or individual holes may be improved for the roses.

Bed area preparation involves applying a four inch layer of the organic amendment material, plus application of minerals that are applied to a hard clay soil, to additionally help break it up, in addition to bone meal and soil sulphur, then tototilling it in well.

Free film

A free film on "Great Gardens of the World — Japan" will be shown today at 1 p.m. in the El Dorado Nature Center, 7550 E. Spring. Another film, "Australia the Big Country" is also scheduled.

Next week, "Living Forests of Australia" will be presented at 1 p.m.

Individual preparation means digging holes 18 inches deep by 18 inches wide. The holes are half filled with one of the amendments or planter mix. A handful of soil sulphur and a handful of bone meal or fruit-flower fertilizer is scattered over the amendment, then hole filled nearly full, mixed well, and watered.

Dry soil should be watered well before preparing the rose bed. Likewise dry rose holes should be filled with water, then several hours later prepared as recommended.

Roses will sprout quickly if the gardener soaks the bare root roses in a deep bucket of water that is fortified with a generous amount of vitamin B-1.

Next day the roots are carefully inspected for any breaks or bruises. Damaged sections are cut off just below the healthy roots.

You may separate the roots into two sections, then gently pull them slightly apart to see if there might be a crack up the trunk. Return a damaged trunk rose to the nurseryman — he will gladly replace it with a good one.

The cone of soil up the middle of the hole is firmed and the roots are laid over it. Be certain the bud union area (swollen area where all the branches grow from) is above ground level. The prepared soil is tamped down well. A ring of soil is built at the edge of the hole to retain the water — and presto, plant is set to grow.

You mean you read the newspaper in school?

Sure. Today we figured baseball averages, graphed standings and made ratios from the won-lost records. Sometimes we do map work using the weather reports. We use headlines to look for parts of speech. Our spelling list this week includes names of cities listed on the front page. And for geography we figure routes and time schedules from the travel ads. We even figure travel distance in metrics. It's really fun!

Newspaper in Education brings a new world of learning to school. Every day.

While the newspaper is being read, students are learning math, geography and language arts. All these ideas and many more are included in the Independent, Press-Telegram's Newspaper in Education Kit, over 300 individual and classroom activities that make learning with the newspaper a fun and stimulating experience.

Militant faces loyalist in fight to lead Steelworkers

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Some people call Ed Sadlowski the Jimmy Carter of the steel mills, with his warmth and smile supporting his populist campaign for the presidency of the United Steelworkers of America.

More important, Sadlowski is a product of the steel mills, a busy street fighter from working-class Chicago with an engaging manner and a chance at one of the biggest prizes in American labor.

HIS OPPONENT, Lloyd McBride, a loyal career unionist more than 20 years older than Sadlowski, refers to him as an upstart and a creation of public relations and warns that if elected he will destroy the union.

The outcome of the campaign, which is being waged in gray steel towns and at plant gates and union halls from Puerto Rico to the Arctic Circle, will affect not only the union, which is the largest and one of the most influential in the AFL-CIO, but will also help chart the course of organized labor.

McBride is supported by virtually the entire labor hierarchy, from AFL-CIO President George Meany down, and they present a formidable political machine that can bring out the votes — on Feb. 8.

SADLOWSKI'S strength lies in the basic steel industry, where the average worker is under 30 and there is the most dissatisfaction.

But the 400,000 workers in basic steel make up less than one-third of the union's membership. The rest are in container, aluminum, chemical and ferrous and nonferrous metals production and fabrication. No one knows whether Sadlowski's strength in basic steel will overcome his apparent weakness in the rest of the union.

When McBride spoke at a meeting of the Alcoa aluminum local in Alcoa, Tenn., last Saturday night, the leadership produced a crowd of 250, including a busload brought in from Nashville, three hours away.

Sadlowski drew about half that number several nights in near-zero temperatures. But Sadlowski upset the union leadership in a campaign similar to this one when he became director of the Chicago-area district, largest in the union.

HE IS A natural campaigner and has found thousands of followers among the union's 1.4 million members who respond to his appeal to give the union back to the workers. It is a ready slogan for any dissenter, and it was used by I.W. Abel, who is retiring from the presidency, when he wrested control from David J. McDonald 12 years ago.

Many are concerned that the firebrand Sadlowski, who is 38, would upset 18 years of labor peace in the steel industry, a critical element in the economy, because of his opposition to the no-strike agreement that Abel implemented.

More than that, the election campaign is the long-expected confrontation between the business unionists who have run labor for two decades, concentrating on bread-and-butter issues and making substantial gains for industrial workers, and the ideologues who are concerned with the quality of work and progressive social issues.

THOSE who contend that labor has grown middle-aged with success have found an advocate in Sadlowski.

Meany, McBride and the union bureaucracy maintain that "outsiders" are trying to take over the union for their own ends, specifically accusing Joseph Rauh, Washington lawyer who is one of Sadlowski's closest advisers; John Kenneth Galbraith, economist, and Victor Reuther, brother of Walter

Reuther, the late president of the United Automobile Workers.

McBride has made much of the Sadlowski contributions from outside the union. Sadlowski said his figures showed that more than 2,000 persons have contributed $150,000 to his campaign, including about $30,000 from people who are not steelworkers.

In an interview, Sadlowski said, "One guy told me, 'If that Polack from the South Side is smart enough to get that money from the rich on the North Side, that's the guy I'm looking for.'"

McBRIDE and Sadlowski are waging national political campaigns crisscrossing the country in search of hands to shake and voters to convince.

Sadlowski has issues as well as appeal — union democracy, lack of responsiveness, safety, pensions, the dues structure, the no-strike agreement. A Sadlowski researcher said in an interview that issues were necessary because liberal intellectuals thought elections depended on them.

McBride contends that Sadlowski is best at catch slogans and that his long economic analyses tend to be muddled and facile.

McBride, 60, who acknowledges that he does not have his opponent's charisma, stresses the union's economic gains.

He also implies that Sadlowski is a tool of leftists. "The only thing I've said about Ed is that he has not repudiated the support he's getting from the Daily World and other left-wing groups," McBride says. "I've never said that he's a Communist."

WHEN McBride visited steel plants in Detroit last Saturday, his reception matched the 5-degree weather.

"I'm Lloyd McBride, and I'd sure appreciate your support for our team in February," he told each worker whose hand he shook at the Great Lakes Steel Co. plant.

"Everyone I've talked to is for Sadlowski," said Kenny Anderson, a seven-year veteran who had just shaken the candidate's hand. "It's time for a change. He's a rebel."

But the mood in eastern Tennessee was all McBride.

"I don't like Sadlowski's leanings, his tendencies," said Gerald Rhyme, who has worked in the Alcoa plant for 31 years.

"Some people say, 'Vote for Sadlowski,'" said Charles Odom, 23. "Some people's got it on their hats. They just say he's tough and everything. But I heard he's a Communist, and I believe it."

Neither candidate is a polished public speaker. They ramble, stepping on applause lines, letting one phrase remind them of another in a stream of consciousness that weaves new thoughts into well-rehearsed ones. They go flat.

McBride is fighting a cold, his back aches and he has an eye infection.

BUT HE presses his cause with all of his diminishing strength. He has worked for the steelworkers' union since 1940 and says he never aspired to the presidency of the union, but was pressed into running to turn back the Sadlowski challenge.

Bare root rose planting

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Soil that has not been improved where roses are to grow, should be supplied with generous amounts of amende material. Admendment material may be compost woid the gardener has developed, leaf mold, pre-moistened peat moss, fine barks, well-aged manure, and planter mix with several of the already mentioned materials.

The amendments mixed with the soil prevents a hard clay soil from packing too tightly, and helps a coarse, sandy soil retain moisture longer.

The rose bed can be prepared one of several ways. The whole rose garden area or individual holes may be improved for the roses.

Bed area preparation involves applying a four-inch layer of the organic amendment material, plus application of minerals that are applied to a hard clay soil, to additionally help break it up, in addition to bone meal and soil sulphur, then tototilling it in well.

Free film

A free film on "Great Gardens of the World — Japan" will be shown today at 1 p.m. in the El Dorado Nature Center, 7550 E. Spring. Another film, "Australia the Big Country" is also scheduled. Next week, "Living Forests of Australia" will be presented at 1 p.m.

Individual preparation means digging holes 18 inches deep by 18 inches wide. The holes are half filled with one of the amendments or planter mix. A handful of soil sulphur and a handful of bone meal or fruit-flower fertilizer is scattered over the amendment, then hole filled nearly full, mixed well, and watered.

Dry soil should be watered well before preparing the rose bed. Likewise dry rose holes should be filled with water, then several hours later prepared as recommended.

Roses will sprout quickly if the gardener soaks the bare root roses in a deep bucket of water that is fortified with a generous amount of vitamin B-1.

Next day the roots are carefully inspected for any breaks or bruises. Damaged sections are cut off just below the healthy roots.

You may separate the roots into two sections, then gently pull them slightly apart to see if there might be a crack up the trunk. Return a damaged trunk rose to the nurseryman — he will gladly replace it with a good one.

The cone of soil up the middle of the hole is firmed and the roots are laid over it. Be certain the bud union area (swollen area where all the branches grow from) is above ground level. The prepared soil is tamped down well. A ring of soil is built at the edge of the hole to retain the water and presto, plant is set to grow.

'Finds' in lost civilization astounding archeologists

By BOYCE RENSBERGER
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The discovery of a major urban civilization that rose in northern Syria 4,000 years ago and rivaled its only contemporaries, Mesopotamia and Egypt, is being acclaimed as one of the most significant archeological advances of the century.

The unearthing of the Kingdom of Ebla by Italian researchers, first reported in the U.S. last fall, was described in New York at the annual meeting of the Archeological Institute of America as "one of those rare discoveries that transforms our knowledge of ancient man."

THE MOST significant find was that of the palace archives, which contained 15,000 clay tablets inscribed with cuneiform writings that, though still only partly deciphered, at-

Cal. drivers set gasoline record

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Californian motorists set a record by using 5.9 percent more gasoline in November 1976 than they did in November 1975, the state said Friday.

In November 1976 California motorists purchased 877,565,880 gallons of gasoline, compared to 828,510,864 the year before. That established a record consumption level for the month of November.

test to a vast commercial and cultural empire that flourished for at least 800 years.

The archives more than triple the known written record of human activity in this crucial period when agricultural villages began to grow into cities that became centers of cultural and political power. It was in those early cities that complex systems of writing developed, apparently as a means of coping with large administrative problems.

The Ebla tablets, most of which are administrative and commercial records, say that at one time the king employed 11,000 administrators and civil servants.

The tablets also contain accounts of military campaigns, international treaties, details of Ebla's government-run textile manufacturing and metal-processing industries, and an account of a wedding between the Ebla king's daughter and a Mesopotamian king, who received several Ebla-dominated towns as a wedding gift.

THERE ARE also hymns and incantations addressed to hundreds of named gods.

The discoveries were made by Dr. Paolo Matthiae, a professor at the University of Rome who is the director of the Italian Archeological Mission to Syria.

Dr. Matthiae had been excavating at the desert site, about 34 miles south of Aleppo, since 1964, believing that the ruined and buried city was from a more recent time. In 1973, however, evidence of a much older city turned up and in 1975 workers came upon a room in the royal palace that was littered with thousands of inscribed clay tablets.

The language was totally unknown to archeologists, but a number of the characters appeared to have been borrowed from Sumerian, the language of the Sumerian people of Mesopotamia. Then a colleague, Dr. Giovanni Pettinato, who is a language expert, found what amounted to a dictionary of the new language, called Eblaite, that defined the word in Sumerian, a language that is known to archeologists.

When this key was used, the tablets revealed that the palace was not just a minor seat of government, but the center of a huge empire that traded with the surrounding agricultural peoples and communicated with the rulers of Mesopotamia and Egypt.

"Before," Dr. Matthiae said in an interview, "Syria was considered a peripheral region. Now we are convinced Syria was an important original center of civilization. This is a real revolution for history."

THE ONLY other comparable societies of the time were those of Egypt and Mesopotamia, the latter including the nations of Akkad and Sumer. These came into flower roughly 5,000 years ago.

Dr. Matthiae suspects that Ebla started as a Mesopotamian colony almost that long ago, but that it quickly evolved into an equivalent and independent center of power.

Excavations thus far have exposed only a few rooms in one corner of the huge palace and some adjacent structures, including towers and ceremonial staircases.

The tell, or mound, presumed to contain more of the ruined city, covers 140 acres. Dr. Matthiae estimates that from 10,000 to 20,000 people lived and worked in the palace and that the kingdom had a population of 260,000.

AMONG the artistic artifacts found at Ebla are staircases inlaid with shells, carved wooden animals and abstract designs that decorated furniture and sculptures in wood, stone and metal depicting such things as lions attacking bulls and warriors piercing one another with swords.

One prized find was a bull with a bearded man's head fashioned out of beaten gold over wood. There are also bowls, urns, jugs and other household objects.

People and ideas

Suicidal Christians

"The Catholic Church must be the true church ordained and protected by God," the priest said. "If it were not, it couldn't have survived all the centuries of attempts at self-destruction."

The death wish is very strong in all branches of Christianity today. This is very strange because the churches, at least in America, are flourishing. Attendance is up. Income is up. Many people, obviously are seeking spiritual guidance.

Too often when they ask for bread they are given a stone, or fish and they receive a serpent.

What is the meaning of this yearning for suicide? Let's look at some aspects of it. But let's also be understanding and realize that "thousands have not bowed the knee to Baal in Israel."

THE LESBIAN PRIESTESS

The Episcopal Church recently voted, with strong opposition, to ordain women to the priesthood. Many believed that this was a triumph for human liberty. The Church was founded in a patriarchal society and has spent most of its centuries in a "father-knows-best" world. Times have changed, and most civilized men and women seek to be peers and equals. So why not receive the Bread and Wine from a sister in Christ?

And so Bishop Paul Moore of New York wrecks everything by ordaining a lesbian to the priesthood. He may have even shattered the troubled Episcopal Church.

We no longer stone homosexuals, and sophisticated people know that many of them are worthy of respect. They have done well in the arts, literature and sciences. Many are fine people to know.

But homosexuals have limitations, some self-imposed and some imposed by society.

One of their limitations is they are unsuited to command positions in most institutions.

A naval captain was asked: "How would a self-declared homosexual make out as the skipper of a ship?"

"It would be a disaster, a shipwreck," he said. He went on to point out that no matter how competent and well-behaved he might be, morale would be shattered.

The priesthood is certainly a command position. And a priest is certainly a shepherd of the young. Most parents would be reluctant to turn children over to the guidance an avowed homosexual.

And, of course, homosexuality has been condemned by the Bible and Christian tradition.

CHURCHES WITHOUT BIBLES

Some churches seldom mention God, Christ or the Bible except in routine rituals. So what excuse do they have for existence?

The sermons are rewarmed humanism, leftovers from the philosophies of the 18th and 19th centuries. But who needs such fare? Every civilized person today is a humanist. We don't have to be converted because we are already believers.

What is missing in so many churches is hard Christianity based upon the Bible. What kind of man or God was this Jesus? His "Good News" is certainly hard to understand and sometimes troubling. Perhaps that is why some pastors would rather not mention the guy.

And in many churches the Old Testament is a closed book, worthy of ceremonial respect but not to be read, discussed or thought about.

Perhaps it is comfortable to go to church and hear a sermon that couldn't possibly offend anyone because it doesn't say anything. But at times even the most placid must yearn for something more. We would like to be told how to live better, think better, act better and love better. That, we thought, was what religion means.

Biblical interpretation, all hell broke loose in a se-date clerical way. A Seminary in Exile and later a new denomination were formed. To outsiders it seemed so unnecessary. Proud, intractable men did their church enormous harm.

IMPORTANCE OF TRADITION

Religion is traditional. It is influenced by all the experiences of the human race. Therefore, it is important that its ceremonies be observed in historic forms.

This doesn't mean that Latin must be the language of the Roman Catholics or Elizabethan English that of the Anglicans. But the dignity, beauty and meaning should be preserved.

Some of the "reformers" don't agree. They want to vulgarize the language and mute the meaning.

Among the worst offenders are some of the radical feminists. They can't accept the fact that Christianity is patriarchal in origin and language. They object to such expressions as "Our Father."

Change is inevitable and often desirable, but changes that cheapen the language and ideas of religion are poisonous.

STUFFINESS IS DEADLY

Some churches tend to become tight little clubs of like-minded people. They are retreats from the world. Time is their form of suicide. One by one the members die without replacement.

The archives more than triple the known written record of human activity in this crucial period when agricultural villages began to grow into cities that became centers of cultural and political power. It was in those early cities that complex systems of writing developed, apparently as a means of coping with large administrative problems.

The Ebla tablets, most of which are administrative and commercial records, say that at one time the king employed 11,000 administrators and civil servants.

The tablets also contain accounts of military campaigns, international treaties, details of Ebla's government-run textile manufacturing and metal-processing industries, and an account of a wedding between the Ebla king's daughter and a Mesopotamian king, who received several Ebla-dominated towns as a wedding gift.

THERE ARE also hymns and incantations addressed to hundreds of named gods.

The discoveries were made by Dr. Paolo Matthiae, a professor at the University of Rome who is the director of the Italian Archeological Mission to Syria.

Dr. Matthiae had been excavating at the desert site, about 34 miles south of Aleppo, since 1964, believing that the ruined and buried city was from a more recent time. In 1973, however, evidence of a much older city turned up and in 1975 workers came upon a room in the royal palace that was littered with thousands of inscribed clay tablets.

The language was totally unknown to archeologists, but a number of the characters appeared to have been borrowed from Sumerian, the language of the Sumerian people of Mesopotamia. Then a colleague, Dr. Giovanni Pettinato, who is a language expert, found what amounted to a dictionary of the new language, called Eblaite, that defined the word in Sumerian, a language that is known to archeologists.

When this key was used, the tablets revealed that the palace was not just a minor seat of government, but the center of a huge empire that traded with the surrounding agricultural peoples and communicated with the rulers of Mesopotamia and Egypt.

"Before," Dr. Matthiae said in an interview, "Syria was considered a peripheral region. Now we are convinced Syria was an important original center of civilization. This is a real revolution for history."

THE ONLY other comparable societies of the time were those of Egypt and Mesopotamia, the latter including the nations of Akkad and Sumer. These came into flower roughly 5,000 years ago.

Dr. Matthiae suspects that Ebla started as a Mesopotamian colony almost that long ago, but that it quickly evolved into an equivalent and independent center of power.

Excavations thus far have exposed only a few rooms in one corner of the huge palace and some adjacent structures, including towers and ceremonial staircases.

The tell, or mound, presumed to contain more of the ruined city, covers 140 acres. Dr. Matthiae estimates that from 10,000 to 20,000 people lived and worked in the palace and that the kingdom had a population of 260,000.

AMONG the artistic artifacts found at Ebla are staircases inlaid with shells, carved wooden animals and abstract designs that decorated furniture and sculptures in wood, stone and metal depicting such things as lions attacking bulls and warriors piercing one another with swords.

One prized find was a bull with a bearded man's head fashioned out of beaten gold over wood. There are also bowls, urns, jugs and other household objects.

People and ideas

Suicidal Christians

"The Catholic Church must be the true church ordained and protected by God," the priest said. "If it were not, it couldn't have survived all the centuries of attempts at self-destruction."

MARK CLUTTER
RELIGION EDITOR

The death wish is very strong in all branches of Christianity today. This is very strange because the churches, at least in America, are flourishing. Attendance is up. Income is up. Many people, obviously are seeking spiritual guidance.

Too often when they ask for bread they are given a stone, or fish and they receive a serpent.

What is the meaning of this yearning for suicide? Let's look at some aspects of it. But let's also be understanding and realize that "thousands have not bowed the knee to Baal in Israel."

THE LESBIAN PRIESTESS

The Episcopal Church recently voted, with strong opposition, to ordain women to the priesthood. Many believed that this was a triumph for human liberty. The Church was founded in a patriarchal society and has spent most of its centuries in a "father-knows-best" world. Times have changed, and most civilized men and women seek to be peers and equals. So why not receive the Bread and Wine from a sister in Christ?

And so Bishop Paul Moore of New York wrecks everything by ordaining a lesbian to the priesthood. He may have even shattered the troubled Episcopal Church.

We no longer stone homosexuals, and sophisticated people know that many of them are worthy of respect. They have done well in the arts, literature and sciences. Many are fine people to know.

But homosexuals have limitations, some self-imposed and some imposed by society.

One of their limitations is they are unsuited to command positions in most institutions.

A naval captain was asked: "How would a self-declared homosexual make out as the skipper of a ship?"

"It would be a disaster, a shipwreck," he said. He went on to point out that no matter how competent and well-behaved he might be, morale would be shattered.

The priesthood is certainly a command position. And a priest is certainly a shepherd of the young. Most parents would be reluctant to turn children over to the guidance of an avowed homosexual.

And, of course, homosexuality has been condemned by the Bible and Christian tradition.

CHURCHES WITHOUT BIBLES

Some churches seldom mention God, Christ or the Bible except in routine rituals. So what excuse do they have for existence?

The sermons are reworded humanism, leftovers from the philosophies of the 18th and 19th centuries. But who needs such fare? Every civilized person today is a humanist. We don't have to be converted because we are already believers.

What is missing in so many churches is hard Christianity based upon the Bible. What kind of man or God was this Jesus? His "Good News" is certainly hard to understand and sometimes troubling. Perhaps that is why some pastors would rather not mention the guy.

And in many churches the Old Testament is a closed book, worthy of ceremonial respect but not to be read, discussed or thought about.

Perhaps it is comfortable to go to church and hear a sermon that couldn't possibly offend anyone because it doesn't say anything. But at times even the most placid must yearn for something more. We would like to be told how to live better, think better, act better and love better. That, we thought, was what religion means.

PSYCHOTIC THEOLOGIES

Several years ago some clerics with impressive theological degrees invented the "God-is-dead" theology. This shocked many, which undoubtedly was the motive. After the shock wore off "God is dead" was dead.

Sometimes the psychotic theologies get translated into action. The Fathers Berrigan and associates decided through some private inspiration that it was their duty to break and enter a draft board office and burn its records. There is nothing in any sane interpretation of the Christian religion to justify such a felony. This is a free country where unjust laws can be changed — but these priestings were unwilling to make the democratic effort.

Again and again in recent years clerical gentlemen have expressed stark mad or nearly mad religious notions. Mostly these are passing fads, but they contribute to the suicidal impulse. Confused believers tend to turn away.

CONSERVATIVE SUICIDE

Sometimes the churchly death wish is expressed by refusal to accept any change.

The Lutheran Church Missouri Synod is ultraconservative. When professors at its Concordia Seminary began to apply historical scholarship to Biblical interpretation, all hell broke loose in a sedate clerical way. A Seminary in Exile and later a new denomination were formed. To outsiders it seemed so unnecessary. Proud, intractable men did their church enormous harm.

IMPORTANCE OF TRADITION

Religion is traditional. It is influenced by all the experiences of the human race. Therefore, it is important that its ceremonies be observed in historic forms.

This doesn't mean that Latin must be the language of the Roman Catholics or Elizabethan English that of the Anglicans. But the dignity, beauty and meaning should be preserved.

Some of the "reformers" don't agree. They want to vulgarize the language and mute the meaning.

Among the worst offenders are some of the radical feminists. They can't accept the fact that Christianity is patriarchal in origin and language. They object to such expressions as "Our Father."

Change is inevitable and often desirable, but changes that cheapen the language and ideas of religion are poisonous.

STUFFINESS IS DEADLY

Some churches tend to become tight little clubs of like-minded people. They are retreats from the world. Time is their form of suicide. One by one the members die without replacement.

OUR BEAUTIFUL CHURCHES

One of the more eye-catching churches of Long Beach is Grace United Methodist, 2325 E. Third St. It was founded in 1903, making it one of the older churches. In 1964 a mad arsonist burned the traditional building. It was replaced by this striking building in the round. The interior is also beautiful and very functional. Sunday services are at 8:30 and 11 a.m. The church sponsors frequent concerts and other events.

Jews should aid emigrants

NEW YORK (AP) — The Synagogue Council of America, representing all three wings of American Judaism, says that U.S. Jews are obligated to assist all Jews emigrating from the Soviet Union, regardless of their destination.

The stand, worked out by a task force on Soviet Jewry, maintains that Jewish agencies have a duty to "encourage and facilitate the migration of Jews in the Soviet Union who seek to live in freedom," whether they are going to Israel or to other countries, such as the United States.

Russia seen key to peace

NEW YORK (AP) — On return from a trip to Israel, the leader of the conservative wing of rabbis in this country said that "no peace is possible in the Middle East without the approval of Russia."

Rabbi Stanley Rabinowitz, president of the Rabbinical Assembly representing 1,000 conservative rabbis, said "Russia may not be able to make peace in the Middle East, but it is able to disrupt peace. Only those who know how to talk to Russia will bring peace."

Shew me thy ways, O LORD; teach me thy paths. Psalm 25:4

Stop smoking Women rejected

The Bellflower-Lakewood Seventh-day Adventist Church is presenting, as a community service, the 5-day plan to stop smoking. This successful international program consists of five group therapy sessions. There will be films, lectures and demonstrations. Emphasis is placed on correct use of the will power and other physical features of daily living to build into the individuals the desire not to smoke.

Conducting the classes will be Pastor Paul C. McFeeters and Doctors Lillian Lindgren, Frank Riseley and L. A. Wallington.

CHICAGO (AP) — The first Methodist leader from Cuba in more than a decade to get permission to visit this country, Bishop Armando Rodriguez, says the word for the church in that Communist-run country is "Viva" — "Alive."

He told a meeting of the World Methodist Council evangelism committee that the Cuban church he heads is providing a "living witness to Christianity," and has active adult and youth organizations.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — For the fifth time, regional units of the Reformed Church in America have refused to ratify a national convention action to approve the ordination of women.

A majority of the regional bodies approved, but by a narrow margin, the measure failed to get the two-thirds required for such a change. The 360,000-member denomination is of the Dutch Reformed tradition, akin to Presbyterians, who allow ordination of women.

OUR BEAUTIFUL CHURCHES

One of the more eye-catching churches of Long Beach is Grace United Methodist, 2325 E. Third St. It was founded in 1903, making it one of the older churches. In 1964 a mad arsonist burned the traditional building. It was replaced by this striking building in the round. The interior is also beautiful and very functional. Sunday services are at 8:30 and 11 a.m. The church sponsors frequent concerts and other events.

Jews should aid emigrants

NEW YORK (AP) — The Synagogue Council of America, representing all three wings of American Judaism, says that U.S. Jews are obligated to assist all Jews emigrating from the Soviet Union, regardless of their destination.

The stand, worked out by a task force on Soviet Jewry, maintains that Jewish agencies have a duty to "encourage and facilitate the migration of Jews in the Soviet Union who seek to live in freedom," whether they are going to Israel or to other countries, such as the United States.

Russia seen key to peace

NEW YORK (AP) — On return from a trip to Israel, the leader of the conservative wing of rabbis in this country said that "no peace is possible in the Middle East without the approval of Russia."

Rabbi Stanley Rabinowitz, president of the Rabbinical Assembly representing 1,000 conservative rabbis, said "Russia may not be able to make peace in the Middle East, but it is able to disrupt peace. Only those who know how to talk to Russia will bring peace."

Shew me thy ways, O LORD; teach me thy paths. Psalm 25:4

Stop smoking Women rejected

The Bellflower-Lakewood Seventh-day Adventist Church is presenting, as a community service, the 5-day plan to stop smoking. This successful international program consists of five group therapy sessions. There will be films, lectures and demonstrations. Emphasis is placed on correct use of the will power and other physical features of daily living to build into the individuals the desire not to smoke.

Conducting the classes will be Pastor Paul C. McFeeters and Doctors Lillian Lindegren, Frank Riseley and L. A. Wallington.

The first free session begins Sunday from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. and continues each evening through Thursday, at the Bellflower-Lakewood Seventh-day Adventist Church, 17008 Bixby Avenue, Bellflower.

The results testify that nearly 80 per cent of those who attend conquer the tobacco habit. Over two million people have quit smoking through the 5-Day Plan. For more information, call 887-4997.

Methodists say 'Viva' in Cuba

CHICAGO (AP) — The first Methodist leader from Cuba in more than a decade to get permission to visit this country, Bishop Armando Rodriguez, says the word for the church in that Communist-run country is "Viva" — "Alive."

He told a meeting of the World Methodist Council evangelism committee that the Cuban church he heads is providing a "living witness to Christianity," and has active adult and youth organizations.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — For the fifth time, regional units of the Reformed Church in America have refused to ratify a national convention action to approve the ordination of women.

A majority of the regional bodies approved, but by a narrow margin, the measure failed to get the two-thirds required for such a change. The 360,000-member denomination is of the Dutch Reformed tradition, akin to Presbyterians, who allow ordination of women.

Largest church

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — North Phoenix Baptist Church broke ground last week for a new $5.5 million worship and Christian education facility, which a church spokesman says will be the nation's largest worship center. It is to be erected on a 40-acre plot and is due for completion in December 1977.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Turn out right

A group of successful men were together recently at dinner and their conversation turned to a man whom they all knew and for whom each of them entertained high regard.

In talking about him, one said, "It's curious, but everything he touches succeeds."

All agreed with this remark and another added, "That's true, but it's hard to explain. Actually, he has only a fair mind, nothing out of the ordinary."

Then, another man spoke up: "I knew him in college. He didn't do particularly well there, never won any honors or broke any records. He was just an everyday run-of-the-mill student."

And, still another went on to say, "I don't think there's anything very special about his personality. Indeed, sometimes he's rather dull."

As the conversation continued these men talked about their friend's shyness, his tendency to avoid people, his obvious inferiority complex. Finally, one summed up for them all, "It's strange, but despite all these handicaps Jack has a touch, a special touch that makes everything turn out right."

Perhaps all of us have known people like that. Usually we think of this touch which makes things turn out right as a gift of genius bequeathed to a few. It is true that now and then a few colossal brains have risen among us, men like Jefferson, Lincoln, Edison and Emerson. But if you study the lives of these four men you will discover that every one of them drew from himself, by constant toil and unflagging perseverance, everything that was in them. It is hardly possible to believe that God favors only a few with the touch of genius, allowing the rest of us to struggle along with mediocre equipment. I believe that if any man or woman wants to release their extraordinary inner abilities badly enough, this touch which makes things turn out right will be theirs in amazing ways.

Robert Browning said that what impressed him most was not what men suffered but what men missed. We could do so much more with our brains if we would only think. The reason we don't think is because we let power escape from us in so many different directions, mostly emotional in nature, like being angry because somebody else has what we want, or we worry ourselves into failure. We make no effort to extract from our brains the power that is there awaiting our orders. But, if a person is really alert, his powers can flow freely, intelligence will take over and we can do the right thing unconsciously.

One of the most alert men I ever knew once told me how he got his first job. He had been interviewed and been told that there was no opening. As he was leaving the office, he saw a piece of string on the floor. He picked it up, walked over to the wastebasket and dropped it in. The interviewer saw this and called to him, "Come back here. We have a job for you after all." It was plain to see that all of that young man's mind was functioning. He was with it. He had the touch.

Most of us don't give our brains enough exercise. Let me tell you one way to get more brain sweat worked up. Take the toughest book you can find, the dullest book, and sit down with it and work over it. Before you go to bed, be sure you understand just one page or even one paragraph of it. Then, when you get up in the morning, when you take setting-up exercises for your body, take exercises for your brain as well.

The best book with which to give yourself a mental and spiritual setting-up exercise is the Bible. Sharpen your brain on it. You may not find this easy, but nothing worthwhile ever is. Approach this great book spiritually and put everything you have into trying to understand it. The Book of Proverbs tells why this is important: "Understanding is a wellspring of life unto him that hath it."

Noah's Ark

Mr. Clutter:

You came down pretty hard on the film about Noah's Ark. The TV ads and other propaganda does give the impression that it is just another attempt to make a buck.

I gasped when I read your article because you called it a hoax and questioned the historical authenticity of the film, but you didn't support your claims. Did you "judge" the film based on the ads? Is that good journalism?

If Noah's Ark has been preserved, then it serves as a reminder that God will judge mankind for sin. That could have a big impact on those that I have been teaching about God where I work. If this is the time near the end of the world, it's a pretty good time for the reminder.

I am no scholar, but do you see what I'm trying to get across? Please review the film and let us readers know if we should see it and take our friends. You used 5" to review the ads, can you give equal time to the movie itself?

Brad Matthews
Editor's note: The remarks about "Noah's Ark" were labeled a "Non-review."

'Injustice'

I'm writing in regards to your short-non-review article in Saturday's paper, Jan. 8, 1977 in which you headlined "Bunk About Noah's Ark."

I am not aware as to how many people read your column but for those that do I think you are doing an injustice to review a Christian and Biblically based movie that you have done no investigating about. In my own personal opinion no one and especially an editor should state an opinion unless he has some actual facts to back it up. You should realize the responsibility you have to your readers and you should know that your interested readers will believe that what you print is true and here is where I feel you are leading many astray. Now who of your readers will go to review this movie as historical fact, which is a fact, when you headline it as "Bunk", a pseudo-history, a fairy tale to amuse and confuse the gullible, end quote. You went on to say, Hollywood, guilty of many hoaxes, should be deeply ashamed of this one.

Being as you evidently did not research whatsoever on this movie I would like to take the privilege to inform you about some facts I know concerning the movie.

In the first place "Noah's Ark" is no bunk or any of the things you so wrongly accused it to be. David Balsiger who is a Christian and author of the book "In Search of Noah's Ark", and also the technical advisor/historian of the movie, is very real and his movie and book are very much fact.

He was recently a visitor of our church Melodyland Christian Center in Anaheim and spoke some of the movie and how he is trying to accomplish a breakthrough in Christian movies and obviously succeeding. And don't you agree, Mr. Clutter, that our country needs more of these Bible based and actual documentary good wholesome movies and less sex and violence and x-rated sickies which only aid to demoralize and worsen our already sick society. It's really ashamed that these movies can continue on with little or no attempt to ban them and with great reviews. And it's even more sad that a Christian Editor would give a great discovery such as "In Search of Noah's Ark," which is actual fact, such a terrible review.

I would recommend Mr. Clutter to unclutter his desk, unclutter his mind, and give serious study to a book entitled "Noah's Ark: I Touched It" by the renowned French explorer — industrialist Fernand Navarra (1974, Logos).

It is not to be presumed that the whole content of the movie, nor all speculation in the above named book, is to be accepted en toto as pure truth. The book (and movie) simply set forth the facts and findings of the several expeditions, and makes some speculations within

I advise, Mr. Clutter, that if you want any readers at all, and especially ones that respect your judgment that you should first investigate before you make any statements.

Perhaps if you read the book, saw the movie and met the author personally your statements would be more authentic and therefore you could come to a conclusion with all the actual facts in hand.

I would appreciate a response on this in your column in the future, if you care to that is. If not, thank you for letting me have this opportunity to speak out.

Fairy tale?

I was greatly disappointed with the cynical denunciation of the movie "In Search of Noah's Ark" as (bunk) by the religion editor (IPT, 1/8/77).

If the "propaganda" material which has "cluttered" Mr. Clutter's desk is bunk to him, it is apparent he approaches Biblical research with the closed mind of some sort of pantheist.

I would recommend Mr. Clutter to unclutter his desk, unclutter his mind, and give serious study to a book entitled "Noah's Ark: I Touched It" by the renowned French explorer — industrialist Fernand Navarra (1974, Logos).

It is not to be presumed that the whole content of the movie, nor all speculation in the above named book, is to be accepted en toto as pure truth. The book (and movie) simply set forth the facts and findings of the several expeditions, and makes some speculations within the realm of possibility based on Biblical history. Mr. Clutter chooses to call this "bunk" and "a fairy tale."

The book includes certain certifications to document the "odd pieces of wood," which were unquestionably removed from the ice-encased glacier-area on Mt. Ararat. Mr. Clutter displays gross ignorance to deny this.

Among the documents are letters from the National Museum of Natural History (Paris); the National Centre for Scientific Research (Paris); the Forestry Institute of Research and Experiments (Madrid); and the Faculty of Sciences, University of Bordeaux, France.

Mr. Clutter implies by his "fairy tale" charge that his qualifications are superior to the men of science represented by those institutions.

Granted, Hollywood has been a hot bed of hoaxes for decades, common knowledge to even the unlearned. But there has been some good come out of Hollywood. I suppose Mr. Clutter considers "Ten Commandments" as pure bunk, and a fairy tale.

Did not the question arise "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" (John 1:46), referring to Jesus. Are we to deny Jesus, and call him "bunk" simply because he came from a small, out-of-the-way town not known for anything good? Of course not.

Another disservice to Christian believers by Clutter's charge is that the movie will only confuse and amuse the gullible. I, for one, am exactly the opposite of one gullible — and I am not sucked in by every wind that blows. I have seen the movie, read the book, and am not easily amused nor confused by the information or conclusions set forth by either. The very least a reasonably intelligent being could say about both is that they are informative, educational, interesting, and thought provoking. (Unfortunately, some people have closed minds and come out with thoughts of bunk and fairy tale).

Mr. Clutter's position seems to be based entirely on the notion that "Hollywood is guilty of many hoaxes, and should be deeply ashamed of this one."

My belief is that Mr. Clutter is the one who should be ashamed for his unexplained charges.

I would hope Mr. Clutter will not continue to discredit God's Word (or Biblical research) by referring to them as bunk and fairy tales. Redemption must also be a fairy tale to the "religion" editor.

Would the (positive) finding of Noah's Ark be any greater miracle than other supernatural acts of God, such as creation, salvation, divine healings, the great flood, the resurrection? Shall we limit God's supernatural power? But, then, Mr. Clutter is probably a simple "religionist" more than a believer in the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

Finally, did Mr. Clutter (of a truth) see the movie before he made such rash statements? Did he read the book cited above before he made wild charges of bunk and fairy tale?

Mr. Clutter should knock 3-grade level commercial ads on prime-time TV before he knocks the one about the movie. I recommend both movie and book.

I trust Mr. Clutter will be able to explain and substantiate his own "hoax" on the IPT readers.

Editor's note: The piece in question was carefully labeled a "Non-review." I have not read the book or seen the show, "In Search of Noah's Ark." But I, like all experienced editors, know a "snow job" when the mailman leaves piles of high-priced photos and propaganda on the desk. We are cynical in the same way about the "snow jobs" of politicians, industries, businesses and, alas, churches. If the Ark is really on Mt. Ararat, why haven't the archaeologists of Turkey and the world mounted one of the greatest "digs" of all time. If they produced Ark, all of us would have to revise our ideas of the Bible and world history. Until it is proved, the book and movie remain a fairy tale. I will read the book or see the movie.

According as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world that we should be holy and without blame before him in love. Ephesians 1:4.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Turn out right

A group of successful men were together recently at dinner and their conversation turned to a man whom they all knew and for whom each of them entertained high regard.

"I'm talking about him," one said. "It's curious, but everything he touches succeeds."

All agreed with this remark and another added, "That's true, but it's hard to explain. Actually, he has only a fair mind, nothing out of the ordinary."

Then, another man spoke up. "I knew him in college. He didn't do particularly well there, never won any honors or broke any records. He was just an everyday run-of-the-mill student."

And, still another went on to say, "I don't think there's anything very special about his personality. Indeed, sometimes he's rather dull."

As the conversation continued these men talked about their friend's shyness, his tendency to avoid people, his obvious inferiority complex. Finally, one summed up for them all. "It's strange, but despite all these handicaps Jack has a touch, a special touch that makes everything turn out right."

Perhaps all of us have known people like that. Usually we think of this touch which makes things turn out right as a gift of genius bequeathed to a few. It is true that now and then a few colossal brains have risen among us, men like Jefferson, Lincoln, Edison and Emerson. But if you study the lives of these four men you will discover that every one of them drew from himself, by constant toil and unflagging perseverance, everything that was in them. It is hardly possible to believe that God favors only a few with the touch of genius, allowing the rest of us to struggle along with mediocre equipment. I believe that if any man or woman wants to release their extraordinary inner abilities badly enough, this touch which makes things turn out right will be theirs in amazing ways.

Robert Browning said that what impressed him most was not what men suffered but what men missed. We could do so much more with our brains if we would only think. The reason we don't think is because we let power escape from us in so many different directions, mostly emotional in nature, like being angry because somebody else has what we want, or we worry ourselves into failure. We make no effort to extract from our brains the power that is there awaiting our orders. But, if a person is really alert, his powers can flow freely, intelligence will take over and we can do the right thing unconsciously.

One of the most alert men I ever knew once told me how he got his first job. He had been interviewed and been told that there was no opening. As he was leaving the office, he saw a piece of string on the floor. He picked it up, walked over to the wastebasket and dropped it in. The interviewer saw this and called to him. "Come back here. We have a job for you after all." It was plain to see that all of that young man's mind was functioning. He was with it. He had the touch.

Most of us don't give our brains enough exercise. Let me tell you one way to get more brain sweat worked up. Take the toughest book you can find, the dullest book, and sit down with it and work over it. Before you go to bed, be sure you understand just one page or even one paragraph of it. Then, when you get up in the morning, when you take setting-up exercises for your body, take exercises for your brain as well.

The best book with which to give yourself a mental and spiritual setting-up exercise is the Bible. Sharpen your brain on it. You may not find this easy, but nothing worthwhile ever is. Approach this great book spiritually and put everything you have into trying to understand it. The Book of Proverbs tells why this is important: "Understanding is a wellspring of life unto him that hath it."

Noah's Ark

Mr. Clutter: You came down pretty hard on the film about Noah's Ark. The TV ads and other propaganda does give the impression that it is just another attempt to make a buck.

I gasped when I read your article because you called it a hoax and questioned the historical authenticity of the film, but you didn't support your claims. Did you "judge" the film based on the ads? Is that good journalism?

If Noah's Ark has been preserved, then it serves as a reminder that God will judge mankind for sin. That could have a big impact on those that I have been teaching about God where I work. If this is the time near the end of the world, it's a pretty good time for the reminder.

I am no scholar, but do you see what I'm trying to get across? Please review the film and let us readers know if we should see it and take our friends. You used 5" to review the ads, can you give equal time to the movie itself?

Brad Matthews
Editor's note: The remarks about "Noah's Ark" were labeled a "Non-review."

'Injustice'

I'm writing in regards to your short-non-review article in Saturday's paper, Jan. 8, 1977 in which you headlined "Bunk About Noah's Ark."

I am not aware as to how many people read your column but for those that do I think you are doing an injustice to review a Christian and Biblically based movie that you have done no investigating about. In my own personal opinion no one and especially an editor should state an opinion unless he has some actual facts to back it up. You should realize the responsibility you have to your readers and you should know that your interested readers will believe that what you print is true and here is where I feel you are leading many astray. Now who of your readers will go to review this movie as historical fact, which is a fact, when you headline it as "Bunk," a pseudo-history, a fairy tale to amuse and confuse the gullible, end quote. You went on to say, Hollywood, guilty of many hoaxes, should be deeply ashamed of this one.

Being as you evidently did not research whatsoever on this movie I would like to take the privilege to inform you about some facts I know concerning the movie.

In the first place "Noah's Ark" is no bunk or any of the things you so wrongly accused it to be. David Balsiger who is a Christian and author of the book "In Search of Noah's Ark," and also the technical advisor/historian of the movie, is very real and his movie and book are very much fact.

He was recently a visitor of our church Melodyland Christian Center in Anaheim and spoke some of the movie and how he is trying to accomplish a breakthrough in Christian movies and obviously succeeding. And don't you agree, Mr. Clutter, that our country needs more of these Bible based and actual documentary good wholesome movies and less sex and violence and x-rated sickies which only aid to demoralize and worsen our already sick society. It's really ashamed that these movies can continue on with little or no attempt to ban them and with great reviews. And it's even more sad that a Christian Editor would give a great discovery such as "In Search of Noah's Ark," which is actual fact, such a terrible review.

It is not to be presumed that the whole content of the movie, not all speculation in the above named book, is to be accepted en toto as pure truth. The book (and movie) simply set forth the facts and findings of the several expeditions, and makes some speculations within

I advise, Mr. Clutter, that if you want any readers at all, and especially ones that respect your judgment that you should first investigate before you make any statements.

Perhaps if you read the book, saw the movie and met the author personally your statements would be more authentic and therefore you could come to a conclusion with all the actual facts in hand.

I would appreciate a response on this in your column in the future, if you care to that is. If not, thank you for letting me have this opportunity to speak out.

A dedicated Christian

Fairy tale?

I was greatly disappointed with the cynical denunciation of the movie "In Search of Noah's Ark" as (bunk) by the religion editor (IPT, 1/8/77).

If the "propaganda" material which has "cluttered" Mr. Clutter's desk is bunk to him, it is apparent he approaches Biblical research with the closed mind of some sort of pantheist.

I would recommend Mr. Clutter to unclutter his desk, unclutter his mind, and give serious study to a book entitled "Noah's Ark: I Touched it" by the renowned French explorer — industrialist Fernand Navarra (1974, Logos).

It is not to be presumed that the whole content of the movie, not all speculation in the above named book, is to be accepted en toto as pure truth. The book (and movie) simply set forth the facts and findings of the several expeditions, and makes some speculations within the realm of possibility based on Biblical history. Mr. Clutter chooses to call this "bunk" and "a fairy tale."

The book includes certain certifications to document the "odd pieces of wood," which were unquestionably removed from the ice-encased glacier-area on Mt. Ararat. Mr. Clutter displays gross ignorance to deny this.

Among the documents are letters from the National Museum of Natural History (Paris); the National Centre for Scientific Research (Paris); the Forestry Institute of Research and Experiments (Madrid); and the Faculty of Sciences, University of Bordeaux, France.

Mr. Clutter implies by his "fairy tale" charge that his qualifications are superior to the men of science represented by those institutions.

Granted, Hollywood has been a hot bed of hoaxes for decades, common knowledge to even the unlearned. But there has been some good come out of Hollywood. I suppose Mr. Clutter considers "Ten Commandments" as pure bunk, and a fairy tale.

Did not the question arise "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" (John 1:46), referring to Jesus. Are we to deny Jesus, and call him "bunk" simply because he came from a small, out-of-the-way town not known for anything good? Of course not.

Another disservice to Christian believers by Clutter's charge is that the movie will only confuse and amuse the gullible. I, for one, am exactly the opposite of one gullible — and I am not sucked in by every wind that blows. I have seen the movie, read the book, and am not easily amused nor confused by the information or conclusions set forth by either. The very least a reasonably intelligent being could say about both is that they are informative, educational, interesting, and thought provoking. (Unfortunately, some people have closed minds and come out with thoughts of bunk and fairy tale).

Mr. Clutter's position seems to be based entirely on the notion that "Hollywood is guilty of many hoaxes, and should be deeply ashamed of this one."

My belief is that Mr. Clutter is the one who should be ashamed for his unexplained charges. I would hope Mr. Clutter will not continue to discredit God's Word (or Biblical research) by referring to them as bunk and fairy tales. Redemption must also be a fairy tale to the "religion" editor.

Would the (positive) finding of Noah's Ark be any greater miracle than other supernatural acts of God, such as creation, salvation, divine healings, the great flood, the resurrection? Shall we limit God's supernatural power? But, then, Mr. Clutter is probably a simple "religionist" more than a believer in the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

Finally, did Mr. Clutter (of a truth) see the movie before he made such rash statements? Did he read the book cited above before he made wild charges of bunk and fairy tale?

Mr. Clutter should knock 3-grade level commercial ads on prime-time TV before he knocks the one about the movie. I recommend both movie and book.

I trust Mr. Clutter will be able to explain and substantiate his own "hoax" on the IPT readers.

Editor's note: The piece in question was carefully labeled a "Non-review." I have not read the book or seen the show, "In Search of Noah's Ark." But I, like all experienced editors, know a "snow job" when the mailman leaves piles of high-priced photos and propaganda on the desk. We are cynical in the same way about the "snow jobs" of politicians, industries, businesses and, alas, churches. If the Ark is really on Mt. Ararat, why haven't the archaeologists of Turkey and the world mounted one of the greatest "digs" of all time. If they produced Ark, all of us would have to revise our ideas of the Bible and world history. Until it is proved, the book and movie remain a fairy tale. I will read the book or see the movie.

According as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world that we should be holy and without blame before him in love. Ephesians 1:4.

Champagne christening for L.A. run Commuters jump into computer van pool

By DICK HOWLAND
Staff Writer

After Dorothy Tobin moved to Huntington Beach, she says, the hour drive to work in downtown Los Angeles was making her "pull my hair out," but she didn't want to give up her job of 22 years. During inauguration ceremonies Friday in Los Angeles for a commuter pool program, Mrs. Tobin broke a champagne bottle over a luxurious new van which she says will extend the life of her 1971 Oldsmobile and hers, too.

She plans to walk from her home to the intersection of Talbert Avenue and Newland Street, where the pool van will pick her up.

"On the way to work, I'll have time to chat with my neighbors, read the paper and knit," she says. "I'll arrive at work in a better frame of mind than I ever was after fighting traffic all the way to work."

"I'll be more relaxed and I'll probably live longer," she added.

Mrs. Tobin, 47, an executive secretary at Ducommun, Inc., was selected to swing the champagne bottle because she was the first woman to sign up for the new van pooling program.

The ceremony was held at the Atlantic Richfield Plaza after a fleet of 15 vans brought employees of several companies to their jobs from suburban communities throughout Los Angeles and Orange counties on the inaugural day.

A 70-van fleet is scheduled to be in full operation in February.

If the concept catches on, more than 150 vans could be in service by the end of the year, which would remove 1,350 private cars from the freeways every day, backers of the program say.

The vans carry 10 passengers and have reclining airline-style seats, individual reading lights, stereo headphones and air conditioning.

The vans are leased from Crocker Bank and administered by Commuter Computer, a nonprofit regional ride-sharing organization.

ARCO has lent several executives to the van program in addition to making a large financial commitment.

Potential riders apply to Commuter Computer, which matches them with other applicants who work and live in the same areas. Fares range from $49 to $63 a month, according to the distance traveled.

That's a bargain when you consider the price of gasoline, insurance and maintenance for the standard private car, estimated by Commuter Computer at $115 a month.

Commuters may volunteer to be drivers. The driver rides free and may use the van on evenings and weekends for personal purposes.

Drivers are trained by ARCO in defensive and emergency techniques.

Fred Rampino, 44, who lives on Verde Ridge Road in Rancho Palos Verdes, is one of the drivers. He is an engineer at Cushman-Wakefield in Los Angeles, and his wife, Sylvia, is a switchboard operator at the same company.

They both use the van pool on the 61-mile round trip to work, a 45-minute drive one way.

"This should have been started 10 years ago," Rampino says. "It's really fantastic. I used to drive a station wagon to work, but I sold it. We still have a Mustang for other kinds of trips."

The van pool will not be available to Long Beach residents until the end of the month, but Ron Milne, 41, a coordinator of traffic services for ARCO who lives in Long Beach, has signed up for the van ride.

Milne already catches a Rapid Transit District park-and-ride bus at the Traffic Circle.

The bus is so crowded that the riders are in an "aggravated mood" and "it's almost a sin to smile," he says. But on the van pool he expects to make friends because the group will be smaller.

Mike Clary, 44, a geologist for ARCO in downtown Los Angeles, calls the van pool a "godsend."

He drives from his home in Newport Beach to a van pickup point in Huntington Beach.

Man tells of visit to Sansinena

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

A San Pedro fisherman testified Friday that he was visiting a friend aboard the Liberian oil tanker, Sansinena, Dec. 17, when it exploded at the dock of the Union Oil Terminal in Los Angeles Harbor.

When the Coast Guard hearing into the cause of the explosion first opened in December there were rumors of a visitor being aboard the ship, but he was not identified at that time.

Savastoa Crocefisso of 1713 Mesa St., San Pedro told the four-man board he had gone aboard with the captain's permission about 7:20 p.m. Dec. 17 to return his friend, Vanetti Corrado, a sailor aboard the vessel who was scheduled to go on watch at 8 p.m.

CROCEFISSO said he and Corrado went below decks to get a cup of coffee and that the explosion occurred while they were in the mess room.

The only testimony he gave about the explosion was to say he saw the captain leap into the water.

He did testify to smelling gas fumes when he walked down the deck of the ship, but several other witnesses have also testified to smelling "some" fumes.

Earlier in the hearing Allan Covy, a senior marine surveyor, testified that the Sansinena had been surveyed in January of 1976 and that no major violations were reported.

He said the third mate and a third assistant engineer did not have licenses for their jobs, but that licenses were not actually required for those positions.

The hearing is scheduled to continue at 9 a.m. today in the Long Beach Harbor Department Administration Building.

Election will decide agent for teachers

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

A hotly competitive contest between two teacher groups will be decided Jan. 20 when educators in the ABC Unified School District go to the polls.

The election will decide whether the ABCFT, affiliated with the American Federation of Teachers, or ABCTA, an affiliate of the California Teachers Association, will act as the sole bargaining agent for 1,275 teachers.

WHEN THE Rodda Act, which grants teachers the right of collective bargaining, was signed in 1976, both teacher organizations began vigorous campaigns to be the agents representing California educators.

An upcoming contract proposal, which is expected to be presented to the ABC School District on Feb. 7, will mark the first time teachers in that district are on what both the ABCFT and ABCTA regard as "equal footing with the district."

Both organizations are competing fiercely to be the voice for the teachers.

The major difference between the two organizations, according to ABCTA President Carl Rogers, is that "we have a stronger organization and a contract which already has teacher approval to bring before the district."

"THE ABCTA has 500 members in the local unit," Rogers continued. "The union has about 275 — we outdistance them by numbers alone. In short, our organization represents teachers that belong to a teacher's organization of teachers who work for teachers."

"By contrast, our opponents are affiliated with the AFL-CIO — a labor organization that can't

Shopping for health at Cerritos fair

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Combining a trip to the store with some lessons in proper health care can be a painless exercise today during the first Cerritos Health Fair on the mall at Los Cerritos Center.

The fair, sponsored by the city and shopping center, features free blood pressure testing, vision screening and pregnancy counseling, as well as exhibits and information on dental health, alcoholism, mental health, lung disease and cancer.

A spokesman said more than 20 community agencies are participating in the fair, which began Friday and is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today.

"It's really been a good fair," said Birth Control Institute representative Holly Skelton Smith as several women paused to look at pamphlets and contraceptive devices spread out on a table.

"Our exhibit has been very busy, but I guess maybe that's a sign of the changing temper of the times. A lot of young people come by and ask questions, and a lot of older people come by and say they wish these things had been available a few years ago."

"But the interest is not just in our exhibit. I think there's more of a public awareness of the state of the environment, and that includes their health."

"Health fairs provide a needed service, and they've usually been very successful."

Exhibits providing information on husband-coached childbirth, prenatal care, care of the newborn, dental hygiene and eye care were among the most popular.

Addicts get a hand as outpatients

By JOE SEGURA
Staff Writer

Former drug offenders are attempting to make a comeback into society by participating in a project conducted by the Long Beach Narcotic Addict Outpatient Program.

The two-year project, known as Accelerated Social Development, was implemented last March. It is designed to help former drug offenders—whom state parole agents working in the program call "outpatients" instead of parolees or ex-convicts—get and keep a job, develop social skills, deal with authority figures and reduce dependency on narcotics.

BECAUSE setbacks are expected, the parole agents do not consider the occasional use of drugs as total failure.

In fact, many former drug offenders participate in heroin-substituting methadone clinic programs while on the accelerated social development project, encouraged by parole agents who regard addiction as a disease rather than a criminal offense.

"As we define it, success is whether a person can function better with our program than without it," explains Francis "Barney" Phelan, supervisor of the project.

DATA ON THE success of the 10-month-old program is still being gathered, according to Al Wiggernhorn, state coordinator of the project, which is funded through the Department of Corrections.

According to Wiggernhorn, the project's impact can be measured if the former drug offenders can phase into society while shaking the habits that exposed them to the drug scene.

He noted that feedback on the project "has been quite favorable" from the outpatients.

"Our batting average is not all that bad," adds Phelan, who admits failures and successes through the project.

"FOR US, there is failure only if the outpatient resorts to crime," he says. "If drugs are used and there's no crime connected with the use, then we consider that somewhat of a success."

That philosophy, Phelan quickly adds, is not completely appreciated by other "tolerant" law enforcement agencies that prefer having some of the former drug offenders behind bars.

"Police view us with a certain amount of skepticism," he notes. "Some feel strongly that those on parole should be back behind bars if they use drugs."

Lt. John Turley, head of the Long Beach Police Department's Narcotics Division, says there is a standing policy to support coordination of the different drug programs through the department's affiliation with the Drug Abuse Council that consists of state and local agencies and residents of the community.

"WE'RE HERE to prevent the crimes the offenders commit to support their habits," he says.

According to Sgt. Mike Hill, recent statistics show that nine out of the last 10 bank robbers caught were heroin users, while six out of the last 30 murders were drug related.

"We take each individual on his own merits," Hill adds. "If the drug offender is committing a crime, the court must decide if anything happens to him or not."

According to Phelan, if an outpatient is arrested, an agent will assist the person only if the authorities request progress reports on the individual.

The outpatient program screens out hard-core drug offenders who may want to use the program to simply get out of a serious charge, and they are aware of the rules allowing them to remain free, Phelan notes.

Irvine Co. is No. 1 O.C. taxpayer

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Orange County Tax Collector Robert L. Citron said Friday the Irvine Co. maintained its place as the county's biggest taxpayer, leading a top 10 that showed some changes in rankings this year.

Citron said collections of first tax installments, due Dec. 10, were slightly better this year, even though bills are generally higher and have brought wails from many taxpayers.

COLLECTIONS are 52.2 per cent of the total two-part tax bill; at this time last year they totalled 52.1 per cent.

The Irvine Co. paid more this year, too, and so did all the other companies in the top 10, Citron said.

The Irvine levy was $12.74 million, up $918,000.

Still in second place was Pacific Telephone, which paid $12.53 million, up $1.38 million over last year.

THE SOUTHERN California Edison Co. bill — $11.22 million — placed it third. It is $588,318 higher this year than last.

Rockwell International kept its fourth place with a bill of $4.16 million, up $155,000.

Standard Oil Co. was next, with $4.07 million, up $1.08 million.

General Telephone Co. was sixth, $3.56 million, up $67,245.

Union Oil Co. stepped up to seventh place, with a bill of $2.58 million, up $89,278.

Aminoil USA, formerly Burmah

Oil, dropped to eighth, with $2.40 million in tax charges, up $540,832.

Walt Disney Productions (Disneyland) ranked as the county's ninth place taxpayer, the same standing it had last year. Its bill was $2.35 million, up $121,000.

McDONNELL Douglas Corp. edged out Southern California Gas

Co. in the 10th spot.

It had a bill of $2.32 million, up $349,000 from last year. The gas company's bill was $2.26 million, up $57,271.

Citron said the top 10 taxpayers pay a total of $57.92 million in taxes, slightly more than 8 per cent of the total tax charge of $866.63 million for this fiscal year.

How to spend Million? Carson asks

The Carson City Council is looking for 16 residents to help them spend $1.1 million.

Several years ago the council appointed a citywide advisory committee to assist in the preparation of the goals for the city's master plan.

When federal block grants became available two years ago under the Housing and Community Development Act (HCDA), the committee was reactivated to serve as a source of community input — input required for receipt of Carson's allocation under the program.

Of the 28 members of the committee, 12 are still active. The status of eight is uncertain and four have formally resigned. At the three most recent meetings attendance was seven, five and eight.

Now the committee is needed for consultation on priorities for use of $1,171,000 Carson is scheduled to receive as its third-year allocation under the five-year HCDA program.

Formal public hearings on the budget are scheduled before the city council on Feb. 3 and 14, and the committee's recommendations will be needed either before or during the hearings.

The council has asked the remaining committee members to recommend individuals to be appointed to vacancies, but any citizen who might be willing to serve on the committee may submit a letter of application to any of the councilmen in care of the Carson City Hall, 701 E. Carson St.

The HCDA grant must be used to improve housing conditions in the city.

Addicts get a hand as outpatients

By JOE SEGURA
Staff Writer

Former drug offenders are attempting to make a comeback into society by participating in a project conducted by the Long Beach Narcotic Addict Outpatient Program.

The two-year project, known as Accelerated Social Development, was implemented last March. It is designed to help former drug offenders—whom state parole agents working in the program call "outpatients" instead of parolees or ex-convicts—get and keep a job, develop social skills, deal with authority figures and reduce dependency on narcotics.

BECAUSE setbacks are expected, the parole agents do not consider the occasional use of drugs as total failure.

In fact, many former drug offenders participate in heroin-substituting methadone clinic programs while on the accelerated social development project, encouraged by parole agents who regard addiction as a disease rather than a criminal offense.

"As we define it, success is whether a person can function better with our program than without it," explains Francis "Barney" Phelan, supervisor of the project.

DATA ON THE success of the 10-month-old program is still being gathered, according to Al Wigenhorn, state coordinator of the project, which is funded through the Department of Corrections.

According to Wigenhorn, the project's impact can be measured if the former drug offenders can phase into society while shaking the habits that exposed them to the drug scene.

He noted that feedback on the project "has been quite favorable" from the outpatients.

"Our batting average is not all that bad," adds Phelan, who admits failures and successes through the project.

"FOR US, there is failure only if the outpatient resorts to crime," he says. "If drugs are used and there's no crime connected with the use, then we consider that somewhat of a success."

That philosophy, Phelan quickly adds, is not completely appreciated by other "tolerant" law enforcement agencies that prefer having some of the former drug offenders behind bars.

"Police view us with a certain amount of skepticism," he notes. "Some feel strongly that those on parole should be back behind bars if they use drugs."

Lt. John Turley, head of the Long Beach Police Department's Narcotics Division, says there is a standing policy to support coordination of the different drug programs through the department's affiliation with the Drug Abuse Council that consists of state and local agencies and residents of the community.

"WE'RE HERE to prevent the crimes the offenders commit to support their habits," he says.

According to Sgt. Mike Hill, recent statistics show that nine out of the last 10 bank robbers caught were heroin users, while six out of the last 30 murders were drug related.

"We take each individual on his own merits," Hill adds. "If the drug offender is committing a crime, the court must decide if anything happens to him or not."

According to Phelan, if an outpatient is arrested, an agent will assist the person only if the authorities request progress reports on the individual.

The outpatient program screens out hard-core drug offenders who may want to use the program to simply get out of a serious charge, and they are aware of the rules allowing them to remain free, Phelan notes.

Latest odd couple: West and Dalton

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — British actor Timothy Dalton was suspicious when his London agent asked him to come to the office for a job discussion. The agent said he didn't want to talk about it on the telephone.

"Now that you're seated," the agent said in his office, "read this." It was an offer for the 30-year-old Dalton to appear opposite Mae West in a new movie, "Sextette."

Seldom has the screen witnesses such an odd couple. Mae West, according to all the record books, was born in 1892, when Benjamin Harrison was President and the motion picture was a faint notion of Thomas Alva Edison.

So here is a Shakespearean-trained actor of 30 playing the sixth husband of an 84-year-old sex symbol.

"The script is very funny," explains Dalton, son of an English music hall family. "It is really a celebration of Mae West, who is a truly remarkable woman and one of the great figures of American films."

"IT IS A comedy about a famous woman who is marrying her sixth husband in London at the same time that an international conference is being held for the promotion of world peace. Many of her former husbands take part in the conference, and the press is more interested in her wedding. It turns out that the world's problems are solved, and we are married. But we never quite make it — at least not in the physical sense."

Timothy Dalton joins an exclusive fraternity of Mae West leading men, the list being small because she made surprisingly few films. Only one actor repeated: Cary Grant in "She Done Him Wrong" and "I'm No Angel," both in 1933.

The others: George Raft, "Night after Night" (1932); Roger Pryor, "Belle of the Nineties" (1934); Paul Cavanagh, "Goin' to Town" (1935); Victor McLaglen, "Klondike Annie" (1936); Warren William and Randolph Scott, "Go West, Young Man" (1938); Edmund Lowe, "Every Day's a Holiday" (1938); W.C. Fields, "My Little Chickadee" (1940); Victor Moore, "The Heat's On" (1943).

She also appeared with John Huston and Rex

Reed in the 1970 disaster, "Myra Breckinridge," but her fans and Miss West herself would rather forget that one.

"SEXTETTE" is a rather curious venture in the 1977 film world. It is based on a late play by Miss West and has been updated by her and comedy writer Herb Baker. After a long preparation, local cynics predicted it would never be made. But producers Daniel Briggs and Don Henderson amassed the $4-million budget, and Britisher Ken Hughes ("Chitty Chitty Bang Bang") is directing on the Paramount lot, which Miss West helped rescue from bankruptcy in the Depression.

Dalton worked for Hughes in "Cromwell," which is as far removed from the current enterprise as one can imagine. In fact, the actor's credits make you wonder what he's doing here.

He made his film debut as King Philip of France in "The Lion in Winter," performed a creditable Heathcliff in the remake of "Wuthering Heights," acted Lord Darnley in "Mary, Queen of Scots" with Glenda Jackson and Vanessa Redgrave.

IN THE English theater Dalton has played Romeo in the Royal Shakespeare Company's "Romeo and Juliet" and has appeared in "King Lear," "Love's Labor's Lost" and "Royal Hunt of the Sun." He continued returning to the theater despite the warming of his film career after "Wuthering Heights" and "Mary, Queen of Scots."

"I realized that I was not going to be a leading man at age 25," Dalton reasoned. "I kept returning to the stage so I would be prepared when that time came."

MAE WEST, with her diamond rings held on high, takes British actor Timothy Dalton for her lawful wedded husband in a scene from the film "Sextette."

THE GIMPEL BROTHERS IN CONCERT

By JUDITH MUSAFIA

There were many felicities in the concert offered by the piano-violin duo of Jakob and Bronislaw Gimpel last week at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena.

The brothers are seldom heard together, the last time in this area more than 10 years ago. Although the pianist lives in Los Angeles and the violinist in London, they seemed to see eye to eye in most musical matters.

One could observe that they have the same fundamental view of instrumental performance which is characterized by continuous forward momentum, broad dynamic range, and knowledge of how to build to the ends of movements for maximum audience effect.

The program consisted of four major sonatas, pillars of the violin repertoire. They were played with knowledge and informed sensibility. Beethoven's Sonata No. 8 was delineated with clarity and just acoustical balance between the instruments.

The last movement conveyed, in addition, a sense of joy that burst forth in playing full virtuosity and temperament.

The Brahms Sonata in D minor had orchestra sonorities in the piano parts, contrasting with the suave lyricism of the violin.

This piece, in particular benefited from being played by a pianist who views himself in any situation as a soloist rather than an accompanist.

The sonata by Debussy which followed after intermission had the lightness and incisiveness required by the style of this composition.

While up to this point on the program the pianist was clearly in the lead on matters of tempi and drive, the writing of the Cesar Franck Sonata in A Major in the first and third movements permitted the violinist to develop his own musical feelings in a freer and more reposed manner.

Shouts of "Bravo" and sustained applause from a near capacity audience elicited one encore, the third movement from Beethoven's "Spring" Sonata.

'The greatest one-man show' didn't need a hit for success

By JOE EDWARDS

NASHVILLE (AP) — Ronnie Prophet is riddling the maxim that you need hit records for success in the music business.

Prophet is a guitarist, singer and comedian who's not had a hit record but has cultivated a faithful following through a highly rated Canadian country music television show and spirited stage act.

"I'm not a great singer, comedian or guitarist, but I am a good entertainer," Prophet, 38, said in his hilltop home in south Nashville where the Battle of Nashville was fought during the Civil War.

"Most acts have two or three supporting musicians behind them. They fill the stage with bodies. The main approach I've worked for is a one-man show that's more than a vocalist, a comic, a musician. I wanted one man doing all three."

Chet Atkins calls him "the greatest one-man show I've seen."

Prophet sings and plays pop, country-Western, rock and show tunes. He impersonates Louis Armstrong, Lionel Barrymore, Johnny Cash, Eddy Arnold, Elvis Presley and many others. He also imitates a duck singing "Help Me Make It Through The Night."

Another of his routines is an imitation of frog conversations and swamp noises. He's recorded an album entitled "Harold the Horny Toad."

He has an echo unit that repeats any sound he makes in less than a second or as long as several minutes, permitting him to duet with himself.

One evening in his Nashville nightclub, the Carousel, he scrambled up a post onto the balcony railing.

"People said, 'That s.o.b. is crazy,'" Prophet recalled.

He thrives on work and always has. When he was a youngster and his father died, he single-handedly put in 35 acres of oats on their Canadian farm.

"I harrowed and disced all the land and sowed and furrowed it," Prophet said. "I also put in the drainage ditches."

AT AGE 17, he worked a club in Stonefield, Quebec, every Sunday afternoon for only $5. He sold sandwiches on the side for a quarter to make some tips.

He's done much benefit work and once helped raise $36,000 in just one afternoon in St. Louis for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis where two rooms are named in his honor.

He customizes guitars himself and built a recording studio in the basement of his home to accommodate 11 musicians.

Playing Las Vegas once, he went to every act in town and recorded the performances. "Then I listened and studied," he said. "It's not stealing. It's research."

He goes to Toronto once a month for six days to

RONNIE PROPHET
'People say I'm crazy'

offered enough money to syndicate in this country, he said.

He recorded four songs in the past year but none was a hit. He admits that recording is not his specialty.

"Chet (Atkins) told me he'd like to record me but didn't know what to do with me," Prophet said. "I refuse to record unless it will be worthwhile. If I do get a hit, I want to be able to come out and perform a lot more than just that one song."

He's proud of his accomplishments and confident of his ability.

"I've told people I'm the best," he said. "It's like Muhammad Ali. He wins because he's the best. I've told people there are 10 others that can't do what I can."

"If there's reincarnation, I'd have to be in the same business in the other life."

Heller hopes movie about wild dogs will pack 'em in

By MARY GANZ

BODEGA BAY (AP) — This tiny coastal community, invaded by critics once before when Alfred Hitchcock filmed "The Birds," soon will be menaced by a new cinematic terror — wild dogs.

Weintraub-Heller Productions, Inc., will begin filming in February with a crew of actors, technicians and mutts.

The movie will be called "The Pack" (not "Jaws," as someone suggested). Co-producer Paul Heller said Bodega Bay's craggy Pacific Ocean coastline will be used to portray a New England resort island off-season.

Heller said the plot centers on a band of bowyers who, left behind when their tourist-owners abandoned the island for the winter, prey on livestock and eventually threaten the villagers.

"It's probably going to be the most complex animal stunt picture ever undertaken," said Heller in an interview from his Los Angeles office.

He said trainers have been at work rehearsing the 18 dogs and their doubles since July.

"One of the biggest problems in training is to get a pack of dogs that will work together and be compatible," Heller said. "It's like putting 18 actors together without fighting."

He said about half the dogs are mongrels and half are breeds, but he said all will be made up to look like mutts.

Not all the human parts for the $2 million movie have been cast yet, but Heller said the lead will be Joe Don Baker of "Walking Tall."

Heller said it is a movie with a message.

"As you know, people pollute with animals," he said. "They go off and leave them. They pick up a couple of dogs from the pound or something so they can play with their kids for the summer, then they leave them."

"This is about that group of people and the dogs that have become threatening."

Liz Brady, administrator of California's Motion Picture Development Council, said the movie makes an important statement: "Don't litter the countryside," she said, "whether it's with cans, bottles or dogs."

She said the problem of "wild" dogs attacking sheep and other livestock is acute near California's state and national parks, where tourists take their pets on vacation and lose or abandon them.

The movie is based on a book by Dave Fisher and screenplay by Robert Clouse, who also directs.

The show is not on American television because he's never been

DENTIST IS BUSY AT HEALTH FAIR

A long line wound around the Air Force exhibit featuring free blood pressure testing, and a group of children and parents intently watched a whimsical dental puppet show presented by the Bellflower Unified School District.

"I'm really pleased that the fair is here," said senior citizen Edna Mensing of Long Beach while waiting for a blood pressure check.

"You know, when you're a senior citizen, every bit of money you can save helps. I might not go to the doctor just for a blood pressure check, but it's a good idea to have one done. If there's a problem, I can go to the doctor to follow up on it."

Blood pressure testing will be conducted throughout today, and the dental puppet show has performances scheduled for 10:30 a.m. and 12:30, 2:30 and 4:30 p.m.

FUNCTIONING in the "straight" world—even through the outpatient program—is not simple for the former drug offender.

The realities of the world—from which many of the former drug offenders tried to escape—remain as major hurdles for many.

But the parole agents, trained to be flexible in handling the offender, know the pitfalls.

For example, the problem of getting or keeping a job.

"When it comes to work skills and habits, they don't have the because most of our people have been in the central criminal justice system for a long time," says Hal Knotts, one of the parole agents for the project.

Without a steady income, he notes, other problems surface, including transportation, housing and food.

SMALL LOANS are made for emergencies, he adds, but the outpatient is expected to be basically self-reliant.

"We must strike a balance in helping the outpatient help themselves," he says. "If there's too much help, they become dependent. If there's not enough help, they have difficulty handling problems."

And, despite the problems, it is important that the outpatient set out on a fresh path.

"It's very hard to maintain old friends, old connections and make an adjustment," Knotts notes.

But for the outpatient who has established better footing, the problems are basically the same as their neighbors.

FOR EXAMPLE, during a recent day in the field visiting several outpatients, Knotts encountered a young man having difficulty financing a new car because of a poor credit rating.

But tabs on the use of drugs is the main assignment on which the parole agents center their attention, and Knotts asked one outpatient he visited to undergo a series of blood and urine tests to determine use of drugs.

"We can monitor clients pretty well," Knotts notes. "We can detect if someone is avoiding testing, and it's our job to stop something before it gets out of hand."

And if the outpatient is proving that he is keeping clean, the parole officer still has an important role to play.

"THE MAIN key is motivation," Knotts claims. "If the outpatient wants help, we can provide it. Or they can shine us on, and it becomes just a monitoring thing."

The parole agents' basic belief that the outpatients have the abilities to make it—despite minor setbacks—allows for flexibility in the program.

"To someone else, he's a brother, a son, a father," Knotts reflects. "We must be aware that this person has certain intrinsic values, and we still must appreciate the person's human value or become over-cynical."

Teacher vote on bargaining agent

The 500 teachers of Bellflower Unified School District will have the opportunity to vote Feb. 17 to determine whether or not they desire to be represented in collective bargaining by the Bellflower Education Association or have no representation.

begin to meet the needs of teachers."

Julien Minard disagrees.

Ms. Minard is president of the ABCFT, and counters Rogers' statements with a smile and a shrug.

"We may not have as many members," Ms. Minard said, "but we're a cohesive, hard-working group. We know who we are and what we stand for. We're a locally run organization. It's not how many members that's important — it's how active and effective they are as educators and as members of our organization."

"I'VE BEEN a teacher for 13 years," Ms. Minard said. "I spent a long time looking around before I decided that the union was doing more for students and teachers than any other group."

"I get a little tired of hearing us rapped for our affiliation with the AFL-CIO. So what? We're professionals and we're union members at the same time. And, we're proud of it. Who says the two can't join hands and be stronger for it?"

Ms. Minard spends two-thirds of her teaching day in the classroom at Fay Ross Junior High School. The ABCFT kicks in a one-third contribution to make up the salary difference.

SHE RECEIVES a $25 per month expense account from the union. Rogers, a teacher at Gahr High School is a full-time teacher. He receives $150 per month expenses from CTA.

Earlier this month, the ABCFT challenged the ABCTA to a debate of issues.

The debate was declined.

It was also brushed aside as a "typical ploy of the underdog" by ABCTA President Rogers.

"They're just looking for a platform — any platform — from which to voice their ideas," Rogers said.

"The whole thing is a false issue. Teachers never said they wanted a debate — and we have polled all the teachers in the district."

"The basic issue is who can best represent the teachers and who can do the best job. We don't need a debate to decide that — the numbers speak for themselves."

ROGERS SAID that, throughout the state, the union represents a total of 14 bargaining units representing 3,259 teachers, while the California Teachers Association is comprised of 621 bargaining units representing 124,000 teachers.

"According to the indications of what's happening throughout the state as each district elects the organization to represent them in collective bargaining, I think the teacher's union in California is in its death throes right now," Rogers said.

The ABC Unified School District has a total of 43 schools, including five high schools, five junior highs, 21 elementary schools and a number of adult education schools.

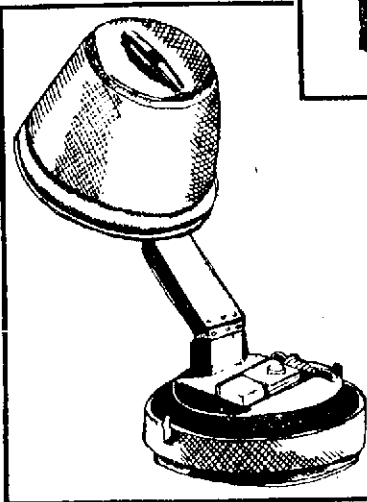

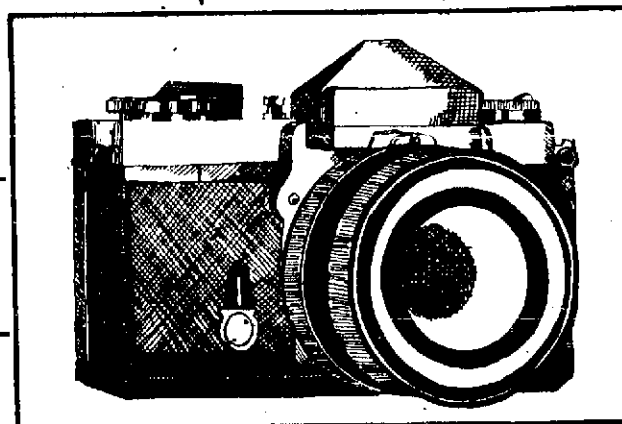

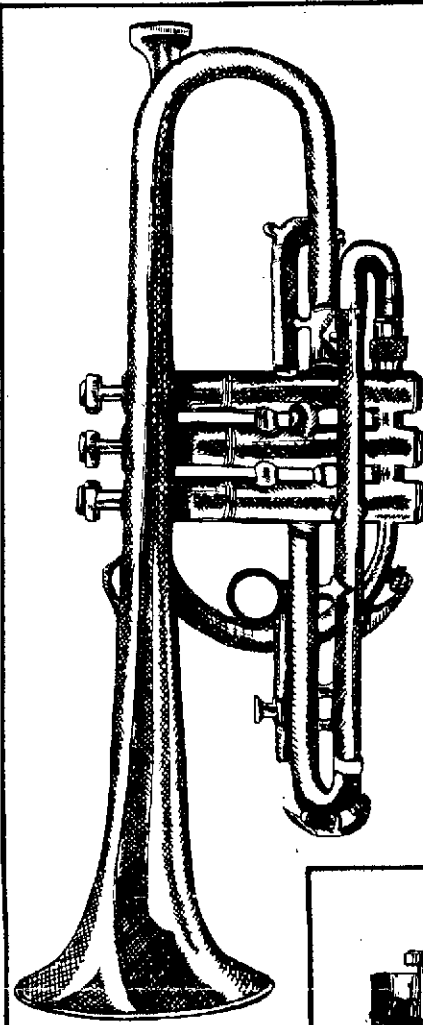

The California Federation of Teachers and the California Teachers Association will square off for a representation election in the Long Beach Unified School District later this spring.

The polls will be at Bellflower High School, 15301 McNab Ave., Bellflower, and at Mann-Wilson School, 6144 N. Clark Ave., Lakewood.

The polls will be open between 11 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. and from 2:15 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.

The ballots will be counted the same day at 4:45 p.m.

CBS documentary on Gary Gilmore Monday

By JACK E. ANDERSON
Knight News Service

Maybe CBS shouldn't have assigned its Bill Moyers to the project he's carrying out — "CBS Reports: The People vs. Gary Gilmore." Moyers said the other day the research and interviews he has done thus far have cast a pall over his thought processes.

"I simply can't seem to draw any conclusions that aren't completely contradictory in this matter," he said in a phone call from Salt Lake City, Utah, where he was desperately trying to complete a documentary for airing on CBS from 10 to 11 this Monday night.

The program, he said, is not about Gilmore, the convicted killer who wants the Utah penal authorities to shoot him at dawn in compliance with the judgment of the court that tried him, but whose execution is being at least temporarily stayed by his mother's and civil rights groups' legal appeals.

"IT ISN'T about Gilmore as such. There's no interview with him. He's merely the man whose life or death situation provoked a moral debate among all Americans. What I think of Gilmore or what Gilmore thinks of Gilmore and what most Americans think of Gilmore are converging stories which have reached an encounter stubbornly complex in moral and legal values."

If that isn't a very lucid explanation of his purpose, it's because Moyers, the most profoundly concerned of television journalists, was still groping for a definition, when I talked to him, of what he wants his CBS Reports to say to its viewers.

A more superficial newsman might have taken on the assignment and whipped out a stack of bone-clean pros and cons and let it go at that. But not Moyers, who defected to CBS last summer from PBS, the public network, where he had established a reputation of note for his studies of national and international affairs.

JUST MAYBE Monday night's program will emerge nowhere nearly as thoughtful as Moyers wants it to be because the press of time will have him throwing up his hands in despair and simply getting it done. But it won't be without cost to his meticulous and discerning way of journalism.

His travel for the study has taken him to New York, Oregon, Colorado, Utah and Florida, talking to people, probing their reactions to the Gilmore case and the worth of the death penalty. He has also questioned other convicted murderers awaiting court decision on whether to carry out death sentences.

In Florida he talked with Leroy Alford, a black, 31-year-old prisoner at the state prison at Starke. Alford has been sitting for three years on death row since his conviction for raping and murdering a 13-year-old West Palm Beach girl. Moyers also talked with the man's parents, Rev. and Mrs. L.J. Alford, who believe their son was convicted on circumstantial evidence by an all-white jury.

"PRISONERS like Alford hate Gilmore's guts," said Moyers, "because they believe his insistence on his execution and making it stick could pull them all down with him, get them executed in states like Florida where the death penalty has been declared constitutional by the U.S. Supreme court."

His own deeply religious East Texas upbringing, he said, tells him the death penalty is morally wrong. On the other hand his contacts with the victims of murderers make a persuasive case for the penalty. "Then when I talk to prisoners, see and hear them as men, I'm persuaded, again that it's wrong."

CBS documentary on Gary Gilmore Monday

Knight News Service

Maybe CBS shouldn't have assigned its Bill Moyers to the project he's carrying out — "CBS Reports: The People vs. Gary Gilmore." Moyers said the other day the research and interviews he has done thus far have cast a pall over his thought processes.

"I simply can't seem to draw any conclusions that aren't completely contradictory in this matter of the death penalty," he said in a phone call from Salt Lake City, Utah, where he was desperately trying to complete a documentary for airing on CBS from 10 to 11 this Monday night.

The program, he said, is not about Gilmore, the convicted killer who wants the Utah penal authorities to shoot him at dawn in compliance with the judgment of the court that tried him, but whose execution is being at least temporarily stayed by his mother's and civil rights groups' legal appeals.

"IT ISN'T about Gilmore as such. There's no interview with him. He's merely the man whose life or death situation provoked a moral debate among all Americans. What I think of Gilmore or what Gilmore thinks of Gilmore and what most Americans think of Gilmore are converging stories which have reached an encounter stubbornly complex in moral and legal values."

If that isn't a very lucid explanation of his purpose, it's because Moyers, the most profoundly concerned of television journalists, was still groping for a definition, when I talked to him, of what he wants his CBS Reports to say to its viewers.

A more superficial newsman might have taken on the assignment and whipped out a stack of bone-clean pros and cons and let it go at that. But not Moyers, who defected to CBS last summer from PBS, the public network, where he had established a reputation of note for his studies of national and international affairs.

JUST MAYBE Monday night's program will emerge nowhere nearly as thoughtful as Moyers wants it to be because the press of time will have him throwing up his hands in despair and simply getting it done. But it won't be without cost to his meticulous and discerning way of journalism.

His travel for the study has taken him to New York, Oregon, Colorado, Utah and Florida, talking to people, probing their reactions to the Gilmore case and the worth of the death penalty. He has also questioned other convicted murderers awaiting court decision on whether to carry out death sentences.

In Florida he talked with Leroy Alford, a black, 31-year-old prisoner

at the state prison at Starke. Alford has been sitting for three years on death row since his conviction for raping and murdering a 13-year-old West Palm Beach girl. Moyers also talked with the man's parents, Rev. and Mrs. L.J. Alford, who believe their son was convicted on circumstantial evidence by an all-white jury.

"PRISONERS like Alford hate Gilmore's guts," said Moyers, "because they believe his insistence on his execution and making it stick could pull them all down with him, get them executed in states like Florida where the death penalty has been declared constitutional by the U.S. Supreme court."

His own deeply religious East Texas upbringing, he said, tells him the death penalty is morally wrong. On the other hand his contacts with the victims of murderers make a persuasive case for the penalty. "Then when I talk to prisoners, see and hear them as men, I'm persuaded again that it's wrong."

A killing out of love

'Son isn't addict anymore,' says ex-Cleveland griddier of mercy shooting

ORE CITY, Tex. (AP)—Former professional football player Forrest (Chubby) Grigg says he watched his son become a victim of drugs until, out of love, he killed him.

(Grigg is no relation to Forrest Gregg, who played 15 seasons for the Green Bay Packers and is presently the Cleveland Browns' head coach.)

This week, after a jury could not agree on a murder conviction, Grigg pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of manslaughter and was sentenced to a five-year probation in this East Texas town of 1,000.

Grigg, who played for the Cleveland Browns from 1948 until 1951, was charged with killing his son, Mike, 20, last Oct. 31.

Constable Joe Ferguson testified that on that night he received a call from Grigg to come to his home. Grigg met him at the door, handed him a

.22-caliber revolver and told him: "I just shot Mike and I killed him. That's all there is to it."

Grigg's lawyer had entered a plea of innocent by reason of insanity.

But testimony presented Grigg as a man tortured as he saw his son, a high school athlete, turn to drugs and become a dropout who could not hold a job.

Dr. Charles Armistead, a Shreveport, La., psychiatrist, testified that the older Grigg "did not know the act (of killing his son) was wrong." He added Grigg did not care about the outcome of the trial and was a man who had exhausted all avenues of help for his son, but did not criticize his son's past actions.

"Sure I regret what I did," Grigg said after the trial, "but I am still relieved that he is relieved. He is not on drugs anymore. He is not under any more pressure."

A family friend, Conrad Coppedge, testified that before the shooting he had found Grigg pacing the floor and crying, and had gone with him to the site of a minor traffic accident involving the younger Grigg.

"I loved him," Grigg said. "He was my pride and joy. Everybody loved him. He was not a drug addict. He would sometimes go a week at a time without using drugs. I thought I'd get him straight, and then he'd go off again."

He said Mike refused to take treatment for drugs and would tell his parents he could handle them.

State Dist. Court Judge Virgil Mulanax said: "On the facts of the case, I do feel like it was a fair sentence. I had no reservation in granting the probation."

Lakers kings of NBA road

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Cazzie Russell fired in 34 points and Luciu Allen added 24 as the Lakers claimed their fourth successive National Basketball Association road victory Friday night, edging San Antonio, 109-106, before a standing-room-only crowd of 11,248.

The Lakers are the first team in the NBA to win four in a row on the road.

San Antonio led, 106-105, with 1:33 remaining, but the Lakers went ahead, 107-106, after the Spurs' George Gervin was called for goaltending on a shot by Johnny Neumann. Two free throws by Allen ended the scoring.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 18 points for the Lakers, seven blocked shots and 15 rebounds.

Gervin led San Antonio's scoring with 27 points, followed by James Silas with 24 and Larry Kenon added 22.

Angry Wrigley will trade bat champ Madlock

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago Cubs owner Philip K. Wrigley confirmed Friday he already has made moves to trade National League batting champion Bill Madlock, saying, "I don't think fans come out just to watch these superstars."

The 82-year-old chewing gun company chairman said that if players like Madlock and recently traded star centerfielder Rick Monday have their way on salaries, it could ruin baseball.

"The same thing happened to grand opera," Wrigley said. "They solved their problem by selling public subscriptions."

Wrigley said the Cubs have made a number of exploratory moves toward trading Madlock, the two-time National League batting champion who says he is dissatisfied with a salary offer reported to be slightly more than $100,000. Asked if other clubs have shown much interest in the star third baseman, Wrigley said:

"No, I don't know why not. You'll have to ask them."

Wrigley said he does not believe his team will be able to come to terms with Madlock and will trade the batting champ if another team "is foolish enough to have him."

He said he believes such a trade would improve team morale.

"Most of the players resent very much the kind of player who comes in and bleeds the company hollow and doesn't leave anything for them," he said.

Asked if Madlock deserved more than most players as winner of the batting crown, Wrigley replied:

"He was the National League batting champion two years ago and he was the National League batting champion last year, but what's he going to do this year? That's the question."

"When these players are impossible to deal with, I'd rather let somebody else have them."

RUSS IDEA FITS LIKE A GLOVE

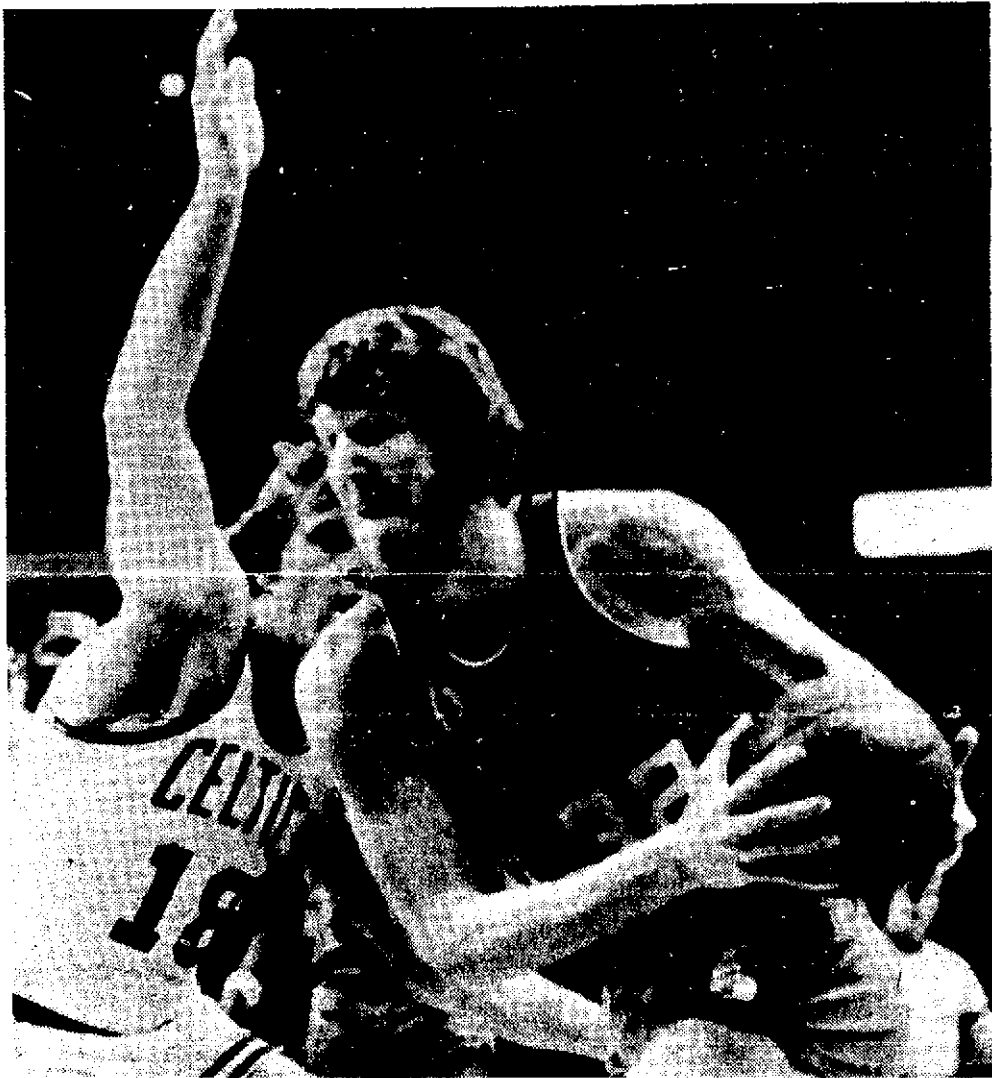

MOSCOW (AP)—The Tass News Agency said Friday that Soviet ingenuity has come up with a new invention—a better boxing glove.

The new glove, which does not have a separate section for the thumb, protects boxers from injuries by preventing them from clenching their fists, Tass said.

The glove's lining is made from latex and other resilient materials, and "this lessens the impact of blows that were causing knockouts and traumas."

For this reason, according to Tass, the new gloves will improve the quality of boxing by allowing boxers to concentrate on finesse, without having to worry about getting hit too hard. "They will help increase young people's interest in boxing," Tass concluded.

The Russians did not do well with regulation gloves in the 1976 Summer Olympics.

WASHINGTON CLAIMS GOOF BY OFFICIAL

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Oregon's controversial 72-68 Pacific-8 Conference basketball victory over Washington in overtime Thursday night may be protested by Washington coach Marv Harshman.

"If we have grounds for protest, we will follow it up," Harshman said.

The controversy surrounds the confusing closing seconds of regulation play, when, with the score tied, 65-65, and two seconds remaining, it appeared Oregon had called a timeout when it had none remaining.

Had Oregon called the timeout, a technical foul would have been assessed, and Washington would have been given a free throw and a chance to win the game. And the Huskies would have had possession of the ball.

Oregon guard Mike Drummond told the Portland Oregonian after the game that he, indeed, had signaled for a timeout.

The newspaper quoted Drummond as saying, "I called timeout. I was running toward the official and I yelled 'timeout,' then I tried to bring my hands together for a 'T.' It was then that Ernie Kent grabbed my hands."

Late shot fails as LBCC loses

By PAUL MCLEOD

Football has been described as a game of inches. After Friday night, Long Beach City College could claim the saying also applies to basketball.

Rhett Heckel's 15-foot jumper with four seconds left in the game hit the lip of the rim and fell off as Pierce College scored a 59-58 Metropolitan Conference victory before fewer than 100 fans in the Brahma gym.

The loss is Long Beach's fifth in its last seven games and its third defeat in a row.

Pierce evened its Metro mark to 1-1 and over-all chart to 13-7, the same as Long Beach.

The Vikings have lost their first two Metro encounters by a total of three points—and a couple of inches.

On Tuesday night, Ken Scott's 20-foot jumper from the corner with one second remaining against Valley also drew iron but did not drop. LBCC lost that one, 58-56.

Heckel's shot was nearly a duplicate of Scott's. Twelve seconds earlier, the 6-3 guard had pulled Long Beach within one. Then, when Pierce's Roger Wilson missed the front end of a one-and-one with 11 seconds to go, the Vikings got the ball to Heckel, hoping he could shoot over the Brahmas' 2-3 zone.

Jones: 'Gauchos have an edge'

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

SANTA BARBARA — Dwight Jones subscribes at least partially to the theory that things are easier the second time around.

"Santa Barbara," says Jones when asked who has the advantage in the second game of a "back-to-back" duel between UC Santa Barbara and Long Beach State.

The teams opened Pacific Coast Athletic Association a week ago with Jones' 49ers recording a 79-63 triumph in a contest that was even until the final eight minutes.

They meet again tonight at 8 in the Gauchos' 3,100-seat Robertson Gym. The conference encounter will be broadcast on KFOX-AM (1280) and KKOP-FM (93.5). The schools' junior varsities clash at 5:45.

"In a situation such as this, the team that lost the first game probably has a little edge," explains Jones. "They played us very well at our place and they'll play even better in theirs."

"Our guys are going to remember we won by 16 and forget how hard we had to struggle to do it. If they don't take Santa Barbara seriously, we could be in for a long evening."

In the first game, the Gauchos surprised the 49ers with a full-court press, a tough two-three zone and an active, passing-game type of offense.

All presented problems.

"We've worked hard in practice on the press and, hopefully, we'll attack it better this time," says Jones. "We've got to, we need to get some easy baskets out of it."

"Defensively, we've got to get better, too. We play defense pretty well most of the time, but when we have a breakdown it kills us."

"When most teams have a breakdown it means there's a guy three or four feet from the shooter. But we've got a quick team that takes chances, is always fishing around, and when we have a breakdown, there's no one around when the guy takes a shot."

The adjustments involve intensity, and Jones plans no tactical changes tonight. He'll start season-long regulars Richard Johnson and Dale Dillon at guards, Clarence Ruffen at center and Lloyd McMillian and Larry Hudson at forwards.

Santa Barbara's likely starters are Andy Oliveira, Tex Walker, Tom Flavin, Dave Brown and Richard Ridgway.

"If we have grounds for protest, we will follow it up," Harshman said.

The controversy surrounds the confusing closing seconds of regulation play, when, with the score tied, 65-65, and two seconds remaining, it appeared Oregon had called a timeout when it had none remaining.

Had Oregon called the timeout, a technical foul would have been assessed, and Washington would have been given a free throw and a chance to win the game. And the Huskies would have possession of the ball.

Oregon guard Mike Drummond told the Portland Oregonian after the game that he, indeed, had signaled for a timeout.

The newspaper quoted Drummond as saying, "I called timeout. I was running toward the official and I yelled 'timeout,' then I tried to bring my hands together for a 'T.' It was then that Ernie Kent grabbed my hands."

Late shot fails as LBCC loses

By PAUL MCLEOD

Football has been described as a game of inches. After Friday night, Long Beach City College could claim the saying also applies to basketball.

Rhett Heckel's 15-foot jumper with four seconds left in the game hit the lip of the rim and fell off as Pierce College scored a 59-58 Metropolitan Conference victory before fewer than 100 fans in the Brahma gym.

The loss is Long Beach's fifth in its last seven games and its third defeat in a row.

Pierce evened its Metro mark to 1-1 and over-all chart to 13-7, the same as Long Beach.

The Vikings have lost their first two Metro encounters by a total of three points—and a couple of inches.

On Tuesday night, Ken Scott's 20-foot jumper from the corner with one second remaining against Valley also drew iron but did not drop. LBCC lost that one, 58-58.

Heckel's shot was nearly a duplicate of Scott's. Twelve seconds earlier, the 6-3 guard had pulled Long Beach within one. Then, when Pierce's Roger Wilson missed the front end of a one-and-one with 11 seconds to go, the Vikings got the ball to Heckel, hoping he could shoot over the Brahmas' 2-3 zone.

Warriors 113, Pacers 109

INDIANAPOLIS — Charles Johnson banked in a 22-footer with three seconds to go, then Barry added two free throws at the buzzer to give Warriors narrow victory after they had blown a 76-51 lead early in the third period. Billy Knight brought the Pacers back with 26 of his 32 points in the second half.

PHILADELPHIA — The 76ers also let a big lead get away before rallying for the win. Philadelphia built a 16-point edge but the Kings went on a 16-2 spurt to tie the score at 67-67. The 76ers quickly regained the lead and the Kings never got closer than five points in the final period.

The Pierce guard sank both free throw attempts. Viking coach Bill Fraser claimed Marcotulli had fouled Mulder and asked Pierce coach Larry Hankammer if he agreed. Surprisingly, Hankammer did.

"You want a quote?" fired Fraser following the game. "We were jobbed. The guy (Marcotulli) had to reach in to take the ball and he fouled Gary (Mulder). The officials let him get away with that."

Who is world's fastest human?

4 swifties challenge Quarrie

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

Who's the world's fastest human?

This morning it's Donald Quarrie of Jamaica, winner of an Olympic Games gold medal at 200 meters, a silver medal at 100 meters.

This afternoon it may be someone else.

Quarrie gallops against some of the quickest starters in captivity today in 50 and 60-yard dash features of the Sunkist Invitational in the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

The players: Dwayne Evans, Montreal silver medalist in the 200; Hasley Crawford of Trinidad, winner of the gold in the 100; Steve Riddick, who ran anchor on the victorious U.S. 400-meter relay team, and Houston McTear, injured at Montreal, but younger—and perhaps faster—than the others.

The targets: 5.0 for 50 yards, 5.8 for 60.

Two contenders for world's swiftest, Valeriy Borzov and Steve Williams, scratched. Borzov says he is hurt; Williams says he is hurting for confidence and condition.

Hothouse records in the high jump, 500, 1,000 and pole vault also will be challenged.

Four Montreal gold medalists will aim for the record of 54.4 in the 500: hurdler Edwin Moses, and relay runners Herman Frazier, Benny Brown and Maxie Parks.

Mike Boit of Kenya will lead the assault on the 1,000 record of 2:05.1. His chief challenger probably will be Sammy Kipkurgat of Kenya.

Dan Ripley, indoor vault record holder at 18-3 1/4, is in tough against Earl Bell (18-7 1/4) and Antti Kalliomaki of Finland (18-5 1/4).

Dwight Stones, who owns more records than RCA, will try to surpass his indoor mark of 7-6 1/2 against 7-5 leapers Rory Kotinek and Tom Woods.

Stones raised the record in this meet last year. This year? "I'll be competing in a better facility (than in Maryland Friday night), in front of the people who know me. That's what gets me psyched up."

Other headliners in the flossy field of 500 are world shotput record holder Aleksandr Barishnikov of Russia, who opposes former record owners Terry Albritton and Al Feuerbach; Frank Shorter in the two-mile; Viktor Saneyev of Russia, No. 1 in the world and the Olympics in the triple jump; Arnie Robinson and Randy Williams, 1-2 in the Montreal long jump; and four-time Olympian Willie Davenport in the hurdles.

Long Beach State will be represented by Jim Knaub and Don Baird in the vault, John Peterson in the high hurdles, and Brian Saunders in the 600. Saunders, a Canadian, will enroll at L.B. State on Jan. 23.

High school events will start at noon, the open competition at 12:30 p.m. Tickets will be on sale at the Sports Arena.

Blalock Lietzke leads Colgate Tucson tee fest leader

PALM SPRINGS (AP)—Defending champion Jane Blalock of Highland Beach, Fla., shot an even-par 72 Friday to take the first-round lead in the 36-hole $50,000 Colgate Triple Crown Golf Tournament, the opening event of the 1977 LPGA tour.

The event is being played at Mission Hills Golf Course in Rancho Mirage.

Miss Blalock, who won the event last year with a birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff with JoAnne Carner, birdied the 17th hole Friday with a 20-foot putt. She jumped into the lead after trailing or being even with Carner throughout the round.

It was Mrs. Carner, of Lake Worth, Fla., who again had to be satisfied with second. She finished the first round tied with Jan Stephenson of Palm Springs, at two-over-par 74s. Miss Stephenson is a professional at Canyon Country Club in Palm Springs.

Mrs. Carner and Chako Higuchi of Tokyo, who were paired at the teeoff in the 10-woman field, led at the turn with par 36s. They were still leading at the 14th hole with even par rounds, while Blalock—still at the 11th hole—was one over par.

But the disaster struck the early leaders on the 14th when Mrs. Carner hit into the water and wound up bogeying the hole. Meanwhile, Miss Higuchi double-bogeyed the same hole.

Mrs. Carner could have salvaged a one-over 73 on the 18th when she putted to within two feet of the hole, but the ball hit the cup and bounced away.

TUCSON (AP)—Hard-hitting Bruce Lietzke, reaching all the par-5s in two big blows, came out of the pack with a six-under-par 66 and took a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $200,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open golf tournament while Johnny Miller and Jerry Pate had to struggle to make the cut.

Lietzke, a third-year pro and another of the huge corps of former Houston players now on the tour, put together a two-round total of 136, eight under par for two trips over the green-dyed fairways that make up 7,305-yard Tucson National Golf Club course.

Dr. Gil Morgan, Lietzke's playing partner and a non-practicing optometrist, shared the lead until he bogeyed the final hole just before darkness settled over the desert layout. He finished with a 70 and was alone in second at 137.

Veteran Gene Littler holed a bunker shot on his first hole and went on to a 67 that put him in a tie with Tom Watson, Charles Coody and big Andy Bean at 138.

Bean had the best round of the tournament, a 64, Coody shot 68 and Watson had to settle for a 71 after pushing one shot into the water. "That kind of ruined the round," the former British Open champion said.

Billy Casper, with a 67, headed a group of four at 139. He was tied with Ed Sabo and Morris Hatafsky, also with 67s, and Andy North, who matched par 72 in the mild, sunny weather.

Miller, the current British Open king and winner of this tournament for the last three years, rallied for a 70 that put him at 144, eight shots back. Pate, the U.S. Open champ and a winner at Phoenix last week, had to birdie his 17th hole for a 71 that just got him under the wire at 145, the cutoff score for the final two rounds.

SUPER XI DRAWS TOP TV RATING

NEW YORK (AP)—The Super Bowl telecast reached more homes than any sporting event in history, NBC reported Friday.

According to rating figures, the Super Bowl XI game between Oakland and Minnesota was watched in 31,610,000 homes by an estimated 75 million persons.

It earned a 44.4 rating and 73 share of the viewing audience.

Bruins eye sweep; Trojans...?

USC tries to avoid its 19th consecutive Pacific-8 Conference defeat today (noon, Channel 4) at California while UCLA eyes a Bay Area sweep at Stanford (8 p.m., Channel 5).

The Bruins (12-2, 2-1) will likely contest the Cardinals (8-5, 1-2) without starter Raymond Townsend. The junior guard from San Jose was hospitalized after Thursday's 82-74 win over Cal for stomach pains.

He was admitted to a Berkeley hospital at 11:45 p.m. and spent the night in the intensive care unit while undergoing tests. He was reported in satisfactory condition Friday.

UCLA received 34 points and 15 rebounds from David Greenwood while foul-hampered Marques Johnson contributed 20 points and 8 rebounds before fouling out.

The Bruins were plagued with inconsistent shooting from their guards, a collective 8 of 21 from the backcourt.

Stanford has the Pac-8's highest scoring guard in Mike Bratz, who scored 21 points in the 68-64 win over USC. That raised his season average to 19.1.

Runnerup for scoring honors Thursday night was former Millikan High and Long Beach City College star Jeff McHugh with 16. He starts at forward alongside freshman Kimberley Belton.

USC (3-11, 0-3) had three men in double figures against Stanford but succeeded in blowing an eight-point lead.

California (2-10, 0-3) will be led by soph guard Gene Ransom, a classy playmaker, who scored 17 points and handed out 11 assists against the Bruins. Many of those passes went to muscular Ray Murry—the leading Pac-8 foul shooter—who hit 12 of 18 shots and pulled down 9 rebounds in a 29-point effort.

Anchovie limit remains same

SACRAMENTO—The California Fish and Game Commission Friday refused to approve the 200,000-ton anchovie reduction quota which the Department of Fish and Game had requested.

Instead, the commissioners decided by 3-2 vote to keep the commercial quota at the present 100,000 tons for the Southern Zone, south of Point Buchon and 15,000 tons for the area from Buchon to Monterey.

It was a victory for the Southern California sport-fishermen who had fought the proposal of the DFG biologists which had been presented to the commission one month ago at its meeting in Los Angeles.

The Department's proposal was based mainly on the fact that the federal government will take over ocean fishery management March 1 when the 200-mile limit goes into effect, and then set its own arbitrary quotas.

COMMISSIONER Timothy Doherty made a motion to accept "the concept of the department's anchovie proposal, but limit the tonnage to its present figure of 100,000 tons in the south and 15,000 tons in the north."

Th motion was seconded by Sherman Chickering. Joseph Russ III joined them in the 3-2 vote. Berger Benson and Elizabeth Venrick voted against the motion. In fact, Ms. Venrick argued for the larger commercial tonnage, saying that she thought the anchovies should be taken from one particular zone in order to find out what affect such intensive seining would have on the resource. She did not specify the zone.

Hawley voted Canadian award

TORONTO (AP)—Jockey Sandy Hawley has been named Ontario's 1976 Athlete of the Year in a poll of the Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters' Association.

The 27-year-old native of nearby Mississauga led North American jockeys in victories with 417 in 1976. His mounts won a total of $4,546,723. That amount was second only to the total of Angel Cordero.

Hawley won handily over Olympic gold medal winner, skier Kathy Kreiner. Center Darryl Sittler of the Toronto Maple Leafs was a distant third.

Replant seeks Los Feliz repeat

Replant, hero of the Los Feliz Stakes in his last outing, leads stablemate Text in a field of six at Santa Anita today in the $44,450 San Miguel Stakes, a six-furlong test for 3-year-old derby hopefuls.

Replant scored a three-length victory in 1:09 1/2 in the Los Feliz Jan. 4. Prior to the Los Feliz, his most impressive performance came in Oak Tree's $100,000-added Norfolk Stakes, when he finished second to the meeting's top juvenile, Habitany. The son of No Robbery will shoulder co-top weight of 117 pounds with Fernando Toro aboard.

Text, who will run in the Elmdorf-owned entry with Replant, will carry jockey Angel Cordero and 114 pounds. Following a runner-up finish in Arlington Park's Arch-Ward Stakes last summer, the chestnut colt scored an allowance in at Bay Meadows and finished in a deadheat for second in the Los Feliz, his last outing.

Sharing second-place honors with Text in the Los Feliz was Smasher, who will have Bill Shoemaker in the irons. The Maryland-bred colt scored an allowance win in his West Coast debut here on opening day. He will carry 114 pounds.

Winner of four stakes events last year, Mr. Davey shares highweight of 117 pounds, with Rudy Campus aboard. In addition to minor stakes wins at Portland Meadows and Fresno, the colt captured a division of Hollywood Park's Westchester Stakes last summer.

She's Precious heads Los Al

Making her first appearance of the New Year, She's Precious, in the running for 1976 national honors as Mare of the Year, tops a field of six quarter horses that will compete tonight in the $15,000-added Directors' Handicap at Los Alamitos Race Course.

The swift Roma Charge mare ruled as the top horse in California last year but closed out the season with a disappointing eighth place finish as the favorite in the $75,000 Champion of Champions when Dash For Cash shat.

Leaders remain perfect

Suburban race still knotted

The Suburban League leaders—Bellflower, Artesia and Mayfair—continued on a collision course Friday. The trio recorded victories to run their records to 4-0.

Wednesday, Artesia hosts Bellflower and next Friday Mayfair travels to Artesia.

Luc Boily (19) and Rick Diffine (14) led a 23-point second quarter spurt for Mayfair that helped the Monsoons stop Neff, 64-45. Boily, who sank 8-of-11 floor shots, also grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds. Diffine chipped in with six assists.

Bellflower jumped to a 44-21 halftime advantage and went on to beat Excelsior, 70-49.

Kurt Herbst scored his season-average 25 points, sinking 9-of-15 floor shots to pace Bellflower. Kevin Farnum chipped in 18 points (7-of-13). Hershel McMahon paced a balanced Excelsior attack with 14.

Artesia jumped to a 44-21 halftime advantage and then fought off a frantic Glenn rally to post a 65-57 victory.

Bill Woolsey (22) and Kyle Raphael (14) helped Artesia gain the big advantage but Glenn, enjoying a 15-point performance from Mark Van Holland, whittled the lead to seven in the fourth quarter. However, Artesia outscored Glenn 12-4 to ice the win.

Keith Korver sank two free throws with one second remaining to lift Paramount over Norwalk, 51-49.

Paramount, which held an 11-point lead, went five minutes before its next basket and Norwalk, which rattled off 13 points, tied the contest with 22 seconds remaining. The Lancers apparently won the contest when Phil Davis tipped in a basket, but he was called for an offensive foul. Then Korver scored the winning points.

St. John Bosco wins opener in last second

Junior guard Alex Rivera hit a 14-foot jump shot with one second remaining in overtime Friday night to give St. John Bosco a 57-56 win over host Notre Dame in the Del Rey League basketball opener.

The losers had gone ahead seven seconds earlier on a shot by Darrell Winston.

Notre Dame, which led by as many as nine points in the third quarter, sent the game into overtime when Pat Scott hit both ends of a one and one free throw opportunity with no time remaining.

In another overtime thriller, Warren guard Frank Watson scored six points in the extra period to lead the Bears over host Huntington Beach, 92-89.

Warren never trailed after missing an opportunity for the winning basket in the late moments of the fourth quarter. Guard Jerry McCarthy led the Bears (12-4) with 30 points, while Watson added 16.

Downey, behind a balanced-scoring effort of Toby Simoli (13), John Ritchie (13), Herb Harper (11), and Kevin Hughes (10), ended its non-league season with a 13-2 record when the Vikings stopped Monrovia, 60-43. Harper also grabbed 15 rebounds while Ritchie added 13 boards. Downey jumped to a 35-29 halftime lead and was never challenged.

Lynwood got 27 points from Tom Freeman and hung on for a 62-52 victory over Edison.

The Knights (11-4) led by only four with 3:30 remaining but a couple of steals led to two breakaway baskets and an eight-point margin. Tyren Naulls added 16 for the winners while Bob Herson scored 21 for Edison.

Yarborough blazes to Winston 500 pole

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

RIVERSIDE—Cale Yarborough concluded the 1976 Grand National stock car season—his 19th since joining the "good, ole boys" of NASCAR as an 18-year-old—by collecting his first-ever NASCAR driving championship.

Friday he gave every indication the trend would continue in 1977.

Yarborough and his Holly Farms Chevrolet tore around the 2.62-mile, 8-turn Riverside International Raceway road course at 112.686 miles per hour to nail down the pole position for Sunday's 15th Winston Western 500, getaway event on this year's 30-race, $4.5 million series.

Qualifying next-to-last among 47 drivers running against the clock, Yarborough became the third driver of the day to eclipse Bobby Allison's one-year-old track record of 112.416 mph.

David Pearson, the other front row starter for Sunday's 11 a.m. race, posted a lap of 112.491, in his No. 21 Purolator Mercury, while Darrell Waltrip clocked 112.419 in his Gatorade Chevrolet, good enough for the inside of the second row.

West Grand National driver Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills surprised observers by claiming the No. 4 spot at 111.872 in his Stock Car Products Chevelle. Insolo edged such NASCAR superstars as Allison, Buddy Baker, Dave Marcis and the king himself, Richard Petty.

Sonny Esley of Van Nuys qualified sixth fastest at 110.941 mph. It marks the first time in this event that two Southland products have cracked the elite "top 10" on the first day of time trials.

Ottinger favored in Permatex chase

RIVERSIDE—L.D. Ottinger, NASCAR late model Sportsman champion, leads a field of 42 drivers in today's $22,500 Permatex 300 at Riverside International Raceway.

The "300" is a bit misleading. The race—which serves as a preliminary to Sunday's $147,440 Winston Western 500—is scheduled for 300 kilometers, or 186.64 miles.

His qualifying run was so superior that second-place Ivan Baldwin of Modesto was two seconds and 2 mph slower at 109.511 mph, thus making Ottinger a prohibitive favorite to win the race he lost last year. The Tennessee charger led most of the 1976 race before he retired with a blown engine with less than 10 laps remaining.

Defending race winner, Ferndale lumberman Jim Walker, sits in the No. 3 starting post and is in a good position to repeat. Although he qualified 17th, Mike Hiss, the 1972 Indianapolis 500 rookie of the year, also could be a factor in his '73 Ford Torino.

The 72-lap race will be flagged away at 1 p.m.

Leaders remain perfect

Suburban race still knotted

The Suburban League leaders—Bellflower, Artesia and Mayfair—continued on a collision course Friday. The trio recorded victories to run their records to 4-0.

Wednesday, Artesia hosts Bellflower and next Friday Mayfair travels to Artesia.

Luc Boily (19) and Rick Diffine (14) led a 23-point second quarter spurt for Mayfair that helped the Monsoons stop Neff, 64-45. Boily, who sank 8-of-11 floor shots, also grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds. Diffine chipped in with six assists.

Bellflower jumped to a 44-21 halftime advantage and went on to beat Excelsior, 70-49.

Kurt Herbst scored his season-average 25 points, sinking 9-of-15 floor shots to pace Bellflower. Kevin Farnum chipped in 18 points (7-of-13). Hershel McMahon paced a balanced Excelsior attack with 14.

Artesia jumped to a 44-21 halftime advantage and then fought off a frantic Glenn rally to post a 65-57 victory.

Bill Woolsey (22) and Kyle Raphael (14) helped Artesia gain the big advantage but Glenn, enjoying a 15-point performance from Mark Van Holland, whittled the lead to seven in the fourth quarter. However, Artesia outscored Glenn 12-4 to ice the win.

Keith Korver sank two free throws with one second remaining to lift Paramount over Norwalk, 51-49.

Paramount, which held an 11-point lead, went five minutes before its next basket and Norwalk, which rattled off 13 points, tied the contest with 22 seconds remaining. The Lancers apparently won the contest when Phil Davis tipped in a basket, but he was called for an offensive foul. Then Korver scored the winning points.

Los Amigos, Bolsa Grande gain victories

Los Amigos (4-0) and Bolsa Grande (3-0) remained undefeated in Garden Grove League basketball play with wins Friday night.

Los Amigos got good scoring from Phil Valoff (26) and Orlando Ward (17) in downing Garden Grove, 69-48. The game was closer than the final score indicates, as the Lobos led by only two before out-scoring the hosts, 22-3, in the final period. Mike Gray, a 6-6 sophomore, led Garden Grove with 19 points.

Bolsa cruised over Pacifica, 77-41.

St. John Bosco wins opener in last second

Junior guard Alex Rivera hit a 14-foot jump shot with one second remaining in overtime Friday night to give St. John Bosco a 57-56 win over host Notre Dame in the Del Rey League basketball opener.

The losers had gone ahead seven seconds earlier on a shot by Darrell Winston.

Notre Dame, which led by as many as nine points in the third quarter, sent the game into overtime when Pat Scott hit both ends of a one and one free throw opportunity with no time remaining.

In another overtime thriller, Warren guard Frank Watson scored six points in the extra period to lead the Bears over host Huntington Beach, 92-89.

Warren never trailed after missing an opportunity for the winning basket in the late moments of the fourth quarter. Guard Jerry McCarthy led the Bears (12-4) with 30 points, while Watson added 16.

Downey, behind a balanced-scoring effort of Toby Simoli (13), John Ritchie (13), Herb Harper (11), and Kevin Hughes (10), ended its non-league season with a 13-2 record when the Vikings stopped Monrovia, 60-43. Harper also grabbed 15 rebounds while Ritchie added 13 boards. Downey jumped to a 35-29 halftime lead and was never challenged.

Lynwood got 27 points from Tom Freeman and hung on for a 62-52 victory over Edison.

The Knights (11-4) led by only four with 3:30 remaining but a couple of steals led to two breakaway baskets and an eight-point margin. Tyren Nauls added 16 for the winners while Bob Herson scored 21 for Edison.

Los Alamitos hit two more field goals, but host Westminster converted 19 of 29 free throws to topple the Griffins, 57-54. Mike Sudders scored 20 points while Tim Page and Mike Kiriara chipped in with 12 apiece for the Lions.

Yarborough blazes to Winston 500 pole

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

RIVERSIDE—Cale Yarborough concluded the 1976 Grand National stock car season—his 19th since joining the "good, ole boys" of NASCAR as an 18-year-old—by collecting his first-ever NASCAR driving championship.

Friday he gave every indication the trend would continue in 1977.

Yarborough and his Holly Farms Chevrolet tore around the 2.62-mile, 8-turn Riverside International Raceway road course at 112.686 miles per hour to nail down the pole position for Sunday's 15th Winston Western 500, getaway event on this year's 30-race, $4.5 million series.

Qualifying next-to-last among 47 drivers running against the clock, Yarborough became the third driver of the day to eclipse Bobby Allison's one-year-old track record of 112.416 mph.

David Pearson, the other front row starter for Sunday's 11 a.m. race, posted a lap of 112.491, in his No. 21 Purulor Mercury, while Darrell Waltrip clocked 112.419 in his Gatorade Chevrolet, good enough for the inside of the second row.

West Grand National driver Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills surprised observers by claiming the No. 4 spot at 11.872 in his Stock Car Products Chevylle. Insolo edged such NASCAR superstars as Allison, Buddy Baker, Dave Marcis and the king himself, Richard Petty.

Sonny Easley of Van Nuys qualified sixth fastest at 110.941 mph. It marks the first time in this event that two Southland products have cracked the elite "top 10" on the first day of time trials.

Mark set by woman in quarter

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Lorna Forde of Barbados set a women's indoor record in the 44-yard run Friday night with a 53.8 second clocking in the 10th National Invitational Indoor Track Meet.

The 24-year-old Olympian, a junior at Long Island University, defeated Robin Campbell of the Florida Track Club, who was timed in 55.1.

OTHER RESULTS: High jump—Barron (Georgia) 73, Shanes (Long Beach) 72; 2-mile relay—Rogers (Long Beach) 1:40.45; 40 hurdles—Ship (Long Beach) 7:11; 400—Fraser (Ariz.) 5:11; 55.1 women's mile—Larney (Pacific Coast Club) 4:24; 1000—Pocall (W. Ottinger favored in Permatex chase

RIVERSIDE—L.D. Ottinger, NASCAR late model Sportsman champion, leads a field of 42 drivers in today's $22,500 Permatex 300 at Riverside International Raceway.

The "300" is a bit misleading. The race—which serves as a preliminary to Sunday's $147,440 Winston Western 500—is scheduled for 300 kilometers, or 188.64 miles.

Ottinger, from Newport, Tenn., used to joke that he needed a road map to find his way around Riverside's tricky 2.62-mile, 8-turn road course. But last Sunday Ottinger and his '72 Chevrolet Nova found the right combination in time trials by clocking 111.955 mph, breaking the former track record of 109.589 mph set by Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills in 1975.

His qualifying run was so superior that second-place Ivan Baldwin of

But Yarborough and Pearson remain the center attractions for Sunday's race, to be run at 500 kilometers, or 311 miles and 119 laps.

Last year, Yarborough realized a childhood dream when he won the NASCAR title for the first time, doing it in all-encompassing fashion. The 36-year-old Timmonsville S.C. resident won nine races, including four in a row at one point, and bankrolled $307,591.

Although he has not won a California race in two years, Yarborough pulled a "Riverside double" in 1974, winning both this race and the California 400 in June.

Twenty-five cars qualified Friday. Another 10 will be added in today's trials (9 a.m.-noon). The Permatex 300 preliminary for Sportsman division cars starts at 2 o'clock.

Modesto was two seconds and 2 mph slower at 109.511 mph, thus making Ottinger a prohibitive favorite to win the race he lost last year. The Tennessee charger led most of the 1976 race before he retired with a blown engine with less than 10 laps remaining.

Defending race winner, Ferndale lumberman Jim Walker, sits in the No. 3 starting post and is in a good position to repeat. Although he qualified 17th, Mike Hiss, the 1972 Indianapolis 500 rookie of the year, also could be a factor in his '73 Ford Torino.

The 72-lap race will be flagged away at 1 p.m. today.

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Brings on a sustained run of tentative planning to meet both obvious and not-so-visible contingencies. Learn to think on your feet this year -- the past is an insufficient basis for even routine future habits as external conditions change greatly. Relationships are intense, delicately poised. Today's natives have uneven tempers, are fond of sports, fads, novelties. Those born this year will need help in managing some theoretical or intangible matter.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Leave hard facts, figures aside; concentrate on human, spiritual possibilities. Enjoy relationships for what they are, not for how you can use them.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Devote today to home life. Have the courage to let chips fall where they may, but make no final decisions. Finances defy the best judgment, need correction later.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Helping with others' complex problems, you lose sight of your best interests. No explanation satisfies criticism of unusual things you try. Go ahead anyway.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): Friends decide to do what they promised, then drop the ball. The less said the better. Proceed on your own. Relinquish commercial objectives until tomorrow.

unfamiliar places adds zest to life.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your keen eye for discrepancy is matched now by similar traits in others; not so tactfully expressed. Let reality defend itself; you're not the target.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Despite misgivings about money, business, put them aside. Help friends who want advice on emotional dilemmas. Make no promises, see how you feel tomorrow.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Those who value your opinion will ask others don't want guidance. Today has all the uneasiness of final rehearsal. The show goes on the road tomorrow morning.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Instructions are simplistic; old hands tell only half the story. Be discreet among confusing attitudes. Think for yourself, leave conclusions tentative.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Sit this one out. Others want to furnish impetus for today's action; let them. Where you see error, reserve judgment. Offer correction only on request.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The fine difference between acceptance and tolerance becomes clear as you cope with mixed signals. You please nobody, so do what you prefer without apology.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Solitude is best if you run out of energy. There's no chance of taking blame for anything. Skip or keep business at minimum. Take no initiative on sales.

ACLU gets new judge in busing

Associated Press
Superior Court Judge Parks Stillwell, who was to oversee court-ordered integration in the Los Angeles school district, was taken off the case Friday at the request of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Presiding Superior Court Judge William Hogboom did not name a successor immediately. Hogboom and Stillwell issued a joint statement that they agreed to avoid any question of bias in the case.

"If any segment of the community has any doubts about the impartiality of Judge Stillwell, well-founded or not, it is in the best interest of all concerned that he be relieved of the responsibility," the joint statement said.

The ACLU is the plaintiff in the suit, which was filed in 1963 and finally brought to the state Supreme Court, which affirmed a lower court order that the district eliminate segregated schools.

The ACLU and the school district agreed last month that Stillwell be the judge to oversee the district's efforts to make sure the court order was satisfied.

Integration by transfers called useless

Associated Press
The goals of integrating Los Angeles' school faculties cannot be met by voluntary teacher transfers, a school district official testified Friday.

Deputy Supt. James Taylor said teachers were forced to transfer because of a one-year program of seeking volunteers was not very successful. The district soon reached "the bottom of the barrel for teacher volunteers," Taylor testified.

The district is being sued by teachers groups who say the forced transfers are discriminatory in that volunteers were offered certain incentives that were not given teachers forced to transfer.

Among the incentives for volunteers was a promise that the teacher could return to his original school after two years and prime consideration for summer-school assignments.

The district's goal is to have at least 20 per cent and no more than 40 per cent minorities teaching at each of the district's 580 schools.

Restaurants urged to cut out water

SACRAMENTO (AP)—California restaurants should stop serving water unless the customer asks for it, a state legislator said Friday.

Assemblyman Gene Chappie, R-Roseville, called on Gov. Brown to urge such a policy for restaurants, citing the drought and energy crisis. Chappie said "serving of water with meals is not necessary, and many times it is not even consumed by the customer."

"I feel we have to start somewhere in getting people to realize the seriousness of the problem, and possibly this is a good starting point."

Boy accused in bombing

INDEPENDENCE (AP)—A juvenile has been charged with the bombing of a Los Angeles Department of Water and Power aqueduct in Inyo County last Sept. 14.

Inyo County Sheriff Floyd Barton said the unidentified youth was also charged with stealing the explosives that were used in the blast. The youth's name and further details were not released because he is a juvenile, Barton said.
